"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

On December 20, 1967, I directed a communication to all Vice Presidents, International Representatives, Deputy International Representatives, Local Unions, State, District and Provincial Councils concerning the action taken by Dr. John T. Dunlop, Chairman of the Hearings Panel subsequent to the Supreme Court decision not to grant our petition for a writ of certiorari. On December 18, 1967, Dr. Dunlop, by letter, stated that the Hearings Panel Decision on Ceiling Systems would be effective on all contracts after January 15, 1968.

The Supreme Court, in denying our petition for a writ of certiorari, did not rule on the merits of our case but simply decided that the subject matter was not appropriate for review by the Supreme Court, thereby leaving the Appeals Court decision in effect.

We have known from the outset of this long fight that the obstacles to overcome were many, and that there was no guarantee of the outcome. We decided, as instructed by the LIU Executive Council and the Convention of the LIU, to exhaust every means possible to enforce the agreements and decisions of record in the Green Book, and have done so. The legal battle that we have been compelled to make was just and necessary.

After attempts to retain our rightful jurisdiction through the voluntary machinery of the Building Trades Department failed, we initiated litigation to protect the membership of this International Union. Every step taken has been reported to you in my past reports in the Lather. You will recall that our suit in the Court of Appeals was based on our belief that the Hearings Panel did not have the authority to render a decision on Ceiling Systems, in the face of binding decisions and agreements of record in the Green Book. This action by the Hearings Panel is not only detrimental to the Lathers International Union but to all International Unions in the Building and Construction Trades Department who depend upon decisions and agreements of record to protect their basic jurisdiction.

A full text of the decision and record of the proceedings was included in the October, 1966 issue of the Lather, and you may recall that one of the points in the decision was that "the installation of the 1½" channel or similar carrying channel and hangers in any of the above types of systems (Direct Hung; Attached Concealed without backing board; Furring Bar Attached; Furring Bar Suspension; Indirect Hung Suspension or similar systems) shall be performed by lathers." This section of the decision illustrates the importance of our Local Unions having sufficient qualified journeymen to service the work jurisdiction.

The Hearings Panel Decision deals only with the matter of Ceiling Systems and does not in any way affect the installation of metal studs to receive drywall. Metal studs to receive drywall are included in the Status Quo Agreement and the original assignment will prevail.

I have long urged all Local Unions to implement apprenticeship programs to the fullest in order to be able to satisfy demands for any and all lathing skills with qualified and trained mechanics. I have also urged organization of non-union elements of our industry in order to better control all the work that falls within the jurisdiction of the Lather.

It is extremely important that Employers not be able to justify the assignment of our jurisdiction to other crafts based upon the complaint that the Lathers do not supply the necessary manpower needed. This situation has arisen often in the past and cannot be allowed to continue. It is now more important than ever that we make progress in this connection so that employers will not be able to use the excuse that Lathers are not available, and thereby deprive us of our rightful jurisdiction.

There are still many details to be taken care of with respect to this decision, and I am at the present time in contact with Dr. Dunlop, Impartial Umpire of the Hearings Panel, and all interested parties, and will continue to keep you fully informed of any developments in subsequent reports.

As an important part of our continuing efforts to protect our jurisdiction, we have organized new facilities at L.I.U. Headquarters and developed improved reporting procedures. A jurisdictional library has been created containing all information in our possession at the present time such as photographs, samples of materials and samples of various systems in use at the present time.

In order for these potentially valuable resources to be applied in the most effective manner, we need the full cooperation of the Local Union officers and members. It is imperative that we receive full and complete information on all jobs on which jurisdictional disputes exist.

Forms provided by the L.I.U. entitled "Jurisdictional Filing Form" must be completed in their entirety. Supporting evidence should include the following:

- (a) Letters from employer listing jobs in your area on which disputed work was performed by members of the Lathers International Union.
- (b) Plans or drawing describing work in dispute.
- (c) Catalogue description of material involved.
- (d) Photographs illustrating work involved in dispute.
- (e) Supplementary information describing the past history of the disputed work and the events which led to the dispute.
- (f) A step by step description of the actual installation procedure as it is actually being done along with any extraordinary conditions that may exist.

The above information is extremely necessary for us to adequately prepare our case and also give the National Joint Board the information it requires.

The time element is especially critical on cases where we are in possession of the work and another craft is requesting a decision. In accordance with the Procedural Rules of the National Joint Board we are given five working days from the date of notification. If we have no prior knowledge of the dispute it means that we have to request information from the Local Union and that information has to be received in Headquarters within that five day period. It is obvious that time is precious and that insufficient information sometimes can make the difference between winning and losing.

The rules of the National Joint Board also stipulate that an effort must be made on a local level to adjudicate the dispute.

In the event that a contractor has not been notified that a dispute exists, the case would not be properly before the Board. Jobs on which a work stoppage exists cannot be processed by either union until the work stoppage has been eliminated.

The presentation of our cases before the National Joint Board has been handled by International Representative, Bob Georgine. Bob's detailed preparation and forceful presentations have been most effective. He has established a working relationship of the highest professional caliber which has resulted in the Lathers' position being sustained in the vast majority of issues brought to the attention of the National Joint Board.

I am looking forward with confidence to a productive and constructive New Year, and I would like at this time to extend to the entire membership my best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Sincerely and fraternally,

SAL MASO, General President

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

We will soon be mailing out the 1968 COPE books to all locals, and I would like to urge every member of the LIU to purchase one. The important role of COPE in labor electioneering was examined in some detail in my last Report. Suffice it to say now that 1968 is an election year, and it's a year in which organized labor has to recover some ground lost in 1966. For us it is one of the most important elections in many, many years. By buying your COPE book, you'll be buying a personal piece of your political future.

Elsewhere in this Journal there is a full report on the AFL-CIO and Building Trades Convention, held recently in Florida. I would like to call your attention to a few of the more important events that took place.

In the staggering amount of business that was conducted, evident from the long list of major points covered in the full story, there was a formal and unanimous vote of the Building Trades Department to re-affirm the policy of the Department in equal employment in the construction industry regardless of race, creed, or color. "We wholeheartedly support apprenticeship programs," the official AFL-CIO resolutions said, "and selection procedures which are nondiscriminatory, uniform and fair."

The Building Trades Department invited the Labor Department officials to discuss the matter of hiring negroes and other minority group individuals in depth," in the hopes that sources of conflict may be diminished and a higher degree of cooperation obtained."

As we have discussed several times in the past, construction labor's record is better than the general public appreciates. There are inherent difficulties in putting up a good "front." Where, for example, are enough qualified minority apprenticeship candidates to be found to satisfy the people who criticize the rate at which they are being indentured? Where are enough minority group candidates to be found who have an interest in becoming skilled tradesmen? Who is going to oversee the development of integration, and how?

In partial answer to these questions, the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department delegates in Miami drafted a resolution listing labor's objections to proposed regulations which find the unions "guilty before trial," and destroy the voluntary character of already-successful programs. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, while not agreeing with all items of the resolution, said that, "I think it is an error," to talk in terms of "one or more negroes or whites or anybody else as being required" on every single construction job.

We see a still long and difficult path ahead of construction labor on this issue, but we also see signs of hope for a more equitable adjustment. The fact that the hard core issues are being brought out in the open seems to be, in the long run, good news.

Another action of the delegates to the AFL-CIO Convention was heartwarming support for the men and their families involved in the strike against the copper industry. To show support for the members of the 26 unions which have been backing their convictions with strikes of the copper producers since July 15, a pleasant Christmas present in the form of $500,000 was raised by the delegates. Besides this generous pledge, the convention delegates urged the Johnson Administration to "renounce publicly" any intention of breaking the strike with a Taft-Hartley injunction or by using the government stockpile of copper, so long as the industry declines to bargain collectively.

We have been critical of the administration of the Medicare program in the past, as have many knowledgeable organizations, but we should make it clear that we do not criticize the basic Medicare concept. Just as the AFL-CIO wholeheartedly backed the bill when it was being considered in Congress, despite shortcomings, so we champion the existing law at the same time that we search for ways to improve it. Weaknesses are almost certain to be strengthened in the future, and we will benefit by the wisdom of experience as we progress through the years of its administration. The fact that Medicare does work, and work well, when it is fully supported by the doctors, is proved by the report below. It is heartening to see Medicare at work in the manner in which it was designed to operate. We wish all doctors were as anxious to make it so.

As part of its broad attack on the civil rights problems, the Senate voted in November to outlaw job discrimination against older workers. While the basic justice of this bill cannot be argued, we wonder about the limitations of practical application. How can it be effectively enforced? There is to be an education program for employers, to convince them of the value of the older worker, and eventual recourse to the courts if voluntary methods fail, yet it is doubtful that the government can afford the cost of reaching into one local area to help one older worker.

Better, we think, are direct efforts through local labor unions, such as those which have been implemented by some of our own locals in accordance with a specific recommendation of the LIU Constitution. A number of our locals follow the suggestion that one man over 50 years of age be working for every five men on the job. It's a sound concept which should be applied by even more locals.

In the November issue of the LATHER, we reported on an experimental slum rehabilitation project in Chicago, backed by the U.S. Gypsum Company in conjunction with Federal and local governments. We urged the project planners to consider the use of lath and plaster in the project, to provide the best protection and durability possible, within the cost limitations.

Since the item was published, we have received word from the General Manager of Rehabilitation for United States Gypsum, Mr. J. H. Pintof, that the project in Chicago, as well as a similar project in Cleveland, has been planned from early in the design stages to use thincoat plaster over gypsum lath. We applaud the United States Gypsum company, the governments involved, and the architects, for their vision and common sense in putting at least a minimum of permanent protection and durability into these rehabilitation projects. There can be little doubt that in the long run, these walls will be cheaper than substitutes with a lower "first" cost.

On the same subject, I want to call your attention as well to the fine promotional material produced by the Pfizer Company, and reproduced elsewhere in this issue. In addition to putting some facts which we all know into fresh perspective, this brochure makes an excellent presentation piece to go with a discussion about the benefits of lath and plaster. It's worth taking advantage of.

I urge all of the Local Unions as well as Promotional Bureaus to put it to work.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General-Secretary-Treasurer.

WHEN MEDICARE WORKS!

The shortcomings of the new Medicare program have received their share of publicity in the labor journals, if not the general press, and it is therefore encouraging to be able to report a specific instance where the Medicare program did exactly what it was designed to do—relieve those elder citizens who are least prepared to handle sudden, staggering financial burdens brought about by illness or disease.

Jim Morris, Sr., a retired member of the LIU, recently wrote to say "no one can say that Medicare is not good for us old people. . . . I had a heart block and when I went in the hospital my heart beat was just 29, and they asked me how I was walking around.

"Well, I was very weak, but not sick. I told them I was a Seabee and also a lather, and us boys could do. Well, Earl, on October 16 they put a heart pacemaker in me. Now my beat is around 80 all the time.

"I was in what they call intensive care for 11 days at $75.00 a day. Then in another room for four days that was $70.00. . . the Hospital bill was $1,904.80, and putting in the pacemaker was $1,250.00.

"I have two good doctors that know how to put in the bill to Medicare. I pay the hospital $45.50 and the doctor $52.00, and they get the rest from Medicare. I am sure pretty darn happy that I was 65 in June so I did get in on the Medicare."

The Biggest AFL-CIO Convention Ever

Close to 1000 delegates convened in Bal Harbour to lay plans for '68. The Building Trades met earlier in the same location.

The Seventh constitutional Convention meets.

Organized labor charted its course for the next two years during the biennial AFL-CIO convention held in December at Bal Harbour, Florida.

In a four-day conclave crowded with activity, 943 delegates dealt with 263 separate resolutions and proposals. The delegates adopted 109 programs and policies covering every aspect of American life and relations with other nations. There were 22 rejected and 48 referred to the 27-man Executive Council for added study or action. The remainder were either covered by other resolutions or policy statements or withdrawn.

The LIU was represented at the Convention by a delegation headed by General President Sal Maso, General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson, and First Vice President C. J. Haggerty. General President Sal Maso served on the Committee on State and Local Bodies of the Convention.

The Building Trades Department convention was held prior to the general AFL-CIO Convention, and among major items of business, it took a firm stand on job bias, affirming the Department's belief in the principle of equality regardless of race, creed or color, but simultaneously objecting to certain restraints imposed from above, and unfair public criticism. During the Building Trades Department convention, General President Sal Maso served as Chairman of the Laws Committee, and General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson served on the Organization Committee.

Many prominent speakers were heard by the delegates. President Lyndon Johnson was the most-prominent. Among the other speakers heard were: Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Transportation Alan Boyd, Attorney General Ramsay Clark, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John Gardner, Director of the Peace Corps Sargent Shriver, Presidential Assistant for Consumer Affairs Betty Furness and others.

A brief description of the principal actions taken during the course of the convention follows:

- Gave Congress a blueprint for action to protect the health, safety and buying power of the American consumer.

- Called for an expansion of the war on poverty by Congress and the Administration and by labor at the local level.

- Reaffirmed its conviction that the American economy can support the extension of social advances at home while meeting the needs of Viet Nam and called for further action by the government to implement the policies spelled out in the Employment Act of 1946.

- Spelled out its determination to achieve full equality for all minority groups in all aspects of American life, noting the accomplishments to date and the long distance still to be traveled.

- Called for a comprehensive national health insurance program as the key to dealing effectively with the mounting problem of health care.

- Urged a beefed-up drive on air and water pollution to correct the present weaknesses in funds and enforcement.

- Detailed specific programs for the development, management and conservation of natural resources for the benefit of all citizens.

- Assailed extremists of both the right and left as a continuing threat to American life.

- Called for a massive national effort to provide quality education for America's youth, regardless of race, background or income.

- A resolution on the Intl. Confederation of Free Trade Unions reaffirmed the AFL-CIO's strong support for continuation of the ICFTU's ban on trade union exchanges with the government-controlled unions of totalitarian countries.

In the area of labor relations and internal federation activities the convention took these actions:

- Cited the gains in AFL-CIO membership as fresh evidence that American workers recognize that trade unionism and collective bargaining provide the surest machinery for economic and social progress.

- Pledged full support for the continuing drive to organize farm workers, noting the dramatic and substantial progress and the dedication of the farm workers themselves.

- Called for a Presidential executive order to establish the policy that willful and repeated violators of the National Labor Relations Act shall not be given federal contracts.

- Urged basic changes in the NLRA to make a reality out of the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively, including repeal of Section 14(b) which allows "right-to-work" laws, ending of interminable delays in handling unfair labor practice cases and correction of the procedure governing the issuance of mandatory court orders.

- Reaffirmed the strong, overriding opposition to compulsory arbitration.

- Backed the eventual creation of a labor college starting as a training institute for union officers and staff. A feasibility study is currently under way.

- Pledged labor's continued support to its broad-ranging community services program and called for stepped-up participation of unions and union members in the voluntary health and welfare field.

- Reaffirmed the long-standing policy that all applications for affiliation or reaffiliation with the AFL-CIO should be given consideration by the council in light of federation policies and standards.

- Reasserted the need for minimum federal standards for unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation because of inadequate state laws.

- Urged a national effort to humanize technological change to alleviate the damage and disruption caused by rampant automation geared to engineering and financial concepts.

- Stressed the continuing need for major improvements in social security benefits and public assistance programs.

- Cited the need for enactment of legislation setting out a comprehensive national manpower policy keyed to a commitment to full employment, making the government the employer of last resort.

- Called again for a clearly warranted increase in the minimum wage to $2 an hour, coverage of all workers, and a 35 hour workweek.

The convention's strong reaffirmation of support for the Johnson Administration's policies in Viet Nam to halt Communist aggression in Southeast Asia was backed by a series of other resolutions dealing with international affairs:

- On international trade the convention made clear that its support for expanded trade involves increased employment and progress at home and among America's allies does not extend to the undercutting of U.S. wages and working conditions.

- The delegates stressed their concern over the cut-backs in foreign aid and the need to expand economic assistance to the underdeveloped nations.

- In a review of the international situation, the convention said the principal threat to world peace and freedom comes from communism's "imperialistic drive." It asked a strengthening of the Atlantic Alliance and assurances that the U.S. has not abandoned Europe because of its commitment in Viet Nam.

- Progress and continuing problems were noted in resolutions dealing with Latin America and Africa. In both areas, a strengthened trade union and cooperative role in developing the economies was urged. In the Middle East, the convention asked direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab nations to bring a lasting peace. It condemned Soviet arms aid to aggressive Egyptian and Syrian governments.

All officers of the federation were re-elected unanimously. The next convention will be held in September, 1969, in Kansas City, Missouri.

THE BUILDING TRADES DEPARTMENT MEETING

The Building Trades' stand on the racial bias issue was put squarely on the line at the department meeting preceding the general AFL-CIO convention in Bal Harbour, Florida. Members of the 18 unions present, representing the 3.5 million building tradesmen of which the lathers are an important segment, made it clear that they oppose and "will not tolerate discrimination" in the trade. They also made it clear, through a resolution drafted by a special committee, that construction labor objects to proposed regulations for Federal apprenticeship training programs which, in effect, accuse the unions of discrimination before the facts of the matter have been determined.

The voluntary nature of apprenticeship training, the committee said, is essential to its success, and any Federal regulations which destroy this voluntary character may, ultimately, destroy the apprenticeship programs upon which America's construction industry depends.

The Building Trades specifically condemned the use by the Office of Federal Contract Compliance, a Labor Department agency, of such formulas as the one that requires "minority representation in every craft in every phase of the work" on every Federal building project. Such formulas, the Department asserts, are "often impossible of fulfillment and destructive of working conditions and performance standards." One might well ask what the Office of Federal Contract Compliance would do about a skill with a total work force of two men on a job. Conversely, if there are 100 men of one trade on a job, is there any assurance that 20 minority group men skilled in the trade are available today?

A call to action to contractors to join labor in opposing "unrealistic approaches and unsound formulas which could destroy the efficiency and flexibility of an industry which historically has met the needs of the country in war and peace," was voiced by the Department. It also affirmed that construction labor can "continue to meet those needs totally without discrimination."

New four-year terms in office were voted without contest for Dept. Pres. C. J. Haggerty and Sec.-Treas. Frank Bonadio, and two-year terms for the department's 10 vice presidents, all top officers of affiliated unions.

Bonadio reported that, since the 1965 convention, the department chartered 22 new councils and issued more than one million quarterly membership cards.

In other actions, the convention voted to support the present Administration policy on Viet Nam but strongly condemned the activities of two government departments—that of the comptroller general for assertedly advising the Atomic Energy Commission and other federal agencies that they need not observe prevailing wage rates set by Wirtz for contractors on federal construction jobs, and the office of Federal Contract Compliance, which was accused of trying to force hiring quotas for a specified number of minority-group members.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Robert C. Weaver praised Haggerty for welcoming the opportunity to provide workers and to train new workers for the model cities program and others designed to rebuild rundown neighborhoods in 63 "demonstration" cities.

Weaver also proposed that organized labor help raise $1 billion to match the amount pledged by U.S. insurance companies to "create new and rehabilitated" housing.

COPE Deputy Director Joseph Rourke warned of the need for extensive COPE voter registration drives and the collection of badly needed COPE dollars in coming election campaigns.

He said "there are at least 10" friendly senators who could "go down to defeat unless we do the job." He added: "If we lose 30 more congressmen—and it can happen—we'll have the book thrown at us" in the form of punitive laws.

To those who are looking for a home with built-in value!

Since the dawn of civilization, the buildings which man erected to live or work in have always had one basic element: the room—a floor, four walls and a ceiling.

Nothing could be simpler or more obvious. And nothing could explain more readily why man began to take his walls and ceilings for granted—and to forget the fundamental importance of the materials of which they were made.

During the post-war building boom, with its problems of rising costs and material shortages, substitute materials found their way onto the market with less resistance than ever before.

Today, in the more nastily-constructed buildings of our crowded cities and suburbs, people are beginning to question the claims with which some of these substitutes were introduced.

As insurance and mortgage rates mount, as rents go up and as crowding increases the desire for privacy, people are once again thinking about the basic function of walls & ceilings—and remembering the beauty, the peace and the security that traditional Lath & Plaster gave to the homes of yesteryear.

These assets are still being built into a majority of the nation's better-constructed homes and into almost every one of its larger office and institutional buildings. Durable, incombustible, regularly applied in thicknesses more than one-third again greater than the average substitute, Lath and Plaster will always be the choice of those who understand that value and economy are one and the same.

How to tell the difference

WHAT TO LOOK FOR ...

WHAT TO LISTEN FOR...

WHAT TO ASK.

The ultimate test is the test of TIME

The history of Lath & Plaster stretches back to prehistoric times. The pyramids of Egypt still contain fine plaster work executed 4000 years ago.

Five centuries before Christ, the Greeks used plaster to perfection—in some cases choosing plaster as a facing for walls made of marble.

One of the greatest and most enduring masterpieces of Western art, Michelangelo's

Substitute materials do not impede sound transmission as effectively as traditional lath and plaster.</li> </ul>
BEST OF ALL—ASK SOME ONE WHO IS LIVING IN A SIMILAR HOUSE, OR THE NEXT APARTMENT!

- ▶ ABOUT SAFETY—Safety experts and laboratory tests have proved that plaster provides far greater fire endurance and combats fire spread more effectively. Why? Because plaster does not burn—has no seams or joints to act as fire paths between walls.
- ▶ ABOUT ECONOMY—Your banker will tell you that plastered houses are preferred by the mortgage department, because structures with durable lath and plaster walls are good investment risks. And they always have better resale value.
- ▶ ABOUT APPEARANCE—Any decorator will tell you that only with genuine plaster walls can you safely remove old wallpaper, paint, repaper or restyle wall surfaces whenever you wish. That isn't all—you don't risk a broken mirror or a hole through the wall when you want to hang decorations.

Creation, was painted in the Sistine Chapel on a ceiling made of plaster.

Plaster was extensively used in his last great building, the Guggenheim Museum, by the late Frank Lloyd Wright, a peerless architect who built with his eye on the future.

The virtues of Lath and Plaster have proved themselves over the ages. They will always do so. For there is no substitute that can combine these many advantages:

Monolithic, seamless finish . . . Protection against fire . . . Flexibility of design & style . . . Unlimited potential for decoration . . . Strength and long life . . . Long-term value per dollar . . . Increased resale value . . . Superior sound insulation qualities, laboratory-proven . . . Economy and ease of cleaning, maintenance and surface repairs.

WHETHER YOU PLAN TO RENT OR BUY—AN APARTMENT, A CO-OP OR A HOME—CHOOSE LATH & PLASTER . . . THE MATERIALS WHICH UNITE QUALITY & ECONOMY.

St. Mary's Church

Local Nine Members install lath for a plaster-beamed ceiling.

For the work, Foreman Wilbur Miller receives a Washington Building Congress Craftsmanship Award.

Washington has been called one of the fastest growing Metropolitan areas in the country. Each year, the city swells its ranks by 100,000 people, and residents who have looked for homes relatively close to the central city lately know that home prices match the demand for housing.

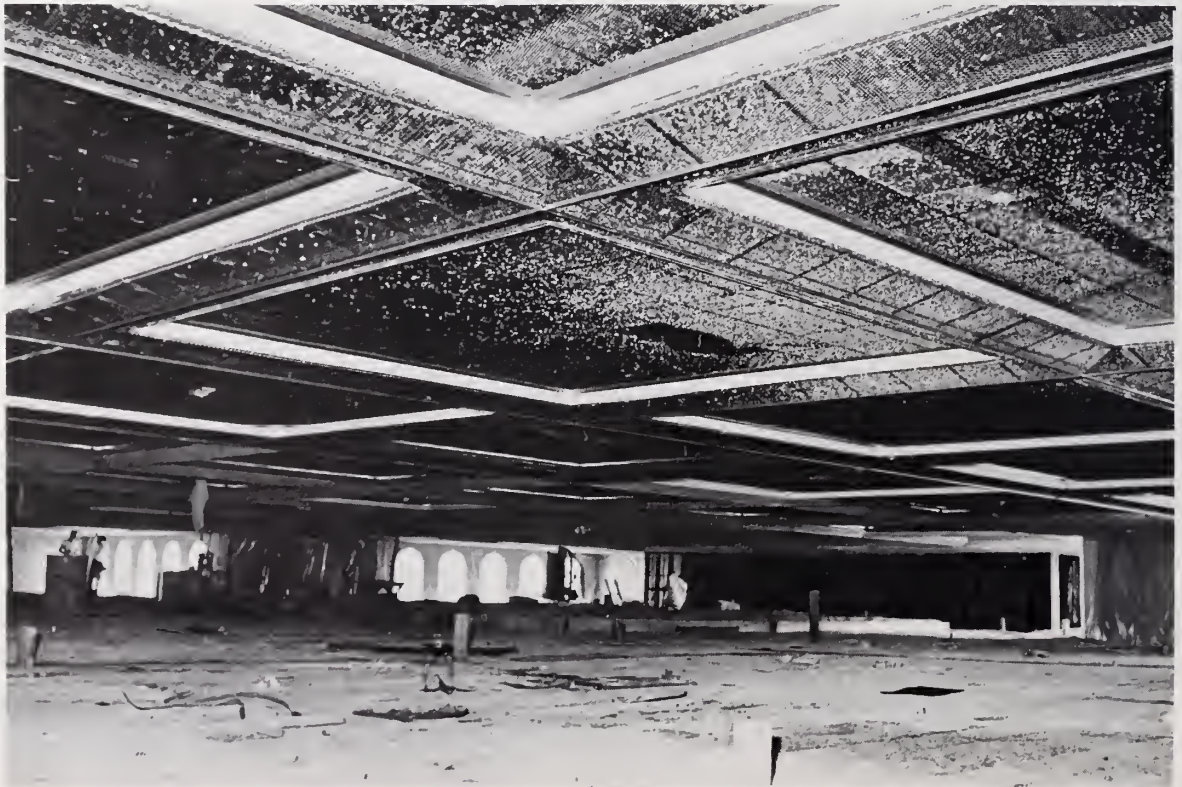

But while the building boom in the nation's capital and its environs may mean bad news for the pocketbook of the worker on a steady income, it appears to be good news for those involved in church construction.

St. Mary's Catholic Church, shown here, is located in Landover Hills, Md., a few miles out of the center of Washington, and the heart of one of the burgeoning suburbs. Designed by the architectural firm of Johnson and Boutin, Rockville, Maryland, the building construction was contracted by Victor R. Beauchamp Associates, Inc., who subcontracted the lathing and plastering work to Rubino and Farris, of Washington.

The most interesting feature of the work is the ceiling, which employed flat "V"-shaped plaster beams, 10 feet on center, in a rectangular pattern. The lathing work was done by members of Local 9, Washington, and the foreman was Ed Tansill.

Approximately 30,000 feet of beam was constructed, and the area between the beams was used as an acoustical plaster field.

Labour Seeks MP's Support

Adoption of changes being proposed in federal labour relations legislation would seriously damage if not destroy the intent of existing legislation, Donald MacDonald, acting president of the Canadian Labour Congress, said today. Mr. MacDonald made public a letter which he has sent to each member of both the House of Commons and the Senate, outlining the objections of the Canadian Labour Congress to Bill C-186, an act to amend the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act which is now before Parliament.

Text of the letter follows:

"We are writing you with regard to Bill C-186, an Act to amend the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, which, as you are aware, is now before Parliament.

"This legislation strikes at matters which are of deep concern to all Canadians and threatens to introduce new and deeper divisions between people in various parts of Canada.

"In particular, the adoption of Bill C-186 would open the way for the destruction of the efforts which have been made, with some degree of success, to narrow regional differentials in wages and living standards through the practice of national bargaining where this is appropriate. Bill C-186 opens the way for a widening of these differentials.

"Its adoption would be a serious blow to the efforts being made to develop better labour-management relations in Canada and to develop greater harmony within the labour movement itself. It would further introduce new and potentially dangerous practices into the field of industrial relations.

"Despite the hesitation in some quarters to discuss the reasons behind this legislation, it is no secret that it is designed to meet the pressures which have been applied by the Confederation of National Trade Unions. The CNTU is an organization based almost entirely in one province—Quebec—and which represents barely ten per cent of the trade union members in Canada, but which has been demanding equal representation with the Canadian Labour Congress on government boards.

"The CLC represents more than 1,500,000 trade union members in all parts of Canada—including more members in Quebec than the total membership of the CNTU. The CLC does not seek, and never has sought, to use its larger membership to the disadvantage of such organizations as the CNTU—and the CNTU is by no means the only smaller labour group in Canada. The records of the Canada Labour Relations Board clearly show that the CNTU has been fairly dealt with, both with regard to the processing of its applications and with regard to full opportunity for the presentation of cases in either language.

"Bill C-186 proposes two major changes in the procedures of the Board. One provides for the establishment of panels, which means that instead of the whole Board, which is equally representative of labour and management, dealing with cases, they may be referred to a selected panel. The other major change introduces an Appeals Board. Neither labour nor management would be represented on this Board which would be superimposed upon the Board itself. This is a course of action which has been carefully avoided throughout the entire history of labour-management relations in this country. Its introduction constitutes an invitation which would undoubtedly be widely accepted, for one appeal after another, leading to endless delays and seriously damaging if not destroying the entire intent of the legislation.

"It is surely significant that no amendments have been made to the Industrial Relations and Disputes Act in 20 years. During that period times have changed, in industry as in other areas. We are all well aware of the rapidly increasing effect of automation which, as you will recall, was the subject of a major study by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman as a Commissioner some time ago. This resulted in specific proposals, some directed at the Industrial Relations and Disputes Act; yet the Government has not seen fit to respond with any action whatsoever.

"You are also doubtless aware of the widespread inquiry into the whole area of labour-management relations being conducted under the Government's sponsorship, by what the Prime Minister has described as a "Task Force" chaired by Dr. H. D. Woods of McGill University. Such importance has been attached to this undertaking that both the Prime Minister and the Minister of Labour have previously indicated that no major changes should be considered until the findings of the Task Force are received.

"It seems peculiar that, under these circumstances, the Government should move Bill C-186 to a top position in the lengthy list of priority legislation now before the House, thus introducing changes into procedures that have been accepted by both labour and management and which have worked with remarkable success for the past 20 years.

"The Canadian Labour Congress will avail itself of the opportunity of appearing before the House Committee on Labour to present in detail our views on this legislation. We will, at that time, provide you with a copy of our submission so that you may be more fully informed as to our views.

90th Congress, First Session...

'You Have Sat Here Too Long...'

Oliver Cromwell told the British Long Parliament: "You have sat here too long for any good you have been doing. In the name of God, go."

He must have anticipated the 90th Congress by some 300 years.

After 11 weary, dreary months, the first session of the 90th adjourned. If it earns any nickname it will be the "cutback Congress" for it took a hatchet to much of what the 89th achieved. It also will be remembered as the "comeback Congress" for the Dixiecrat-conservative GOP coalition after two brief years in exile.

Like any Congress, this one enacted legislation. Indeed, some of it—though all too little—was new and constructive, notably clean meat legislation.

But on most major fronts it bombed out, and its failure was as much in the manner it treated progressive proposals as in the consequences of its treatment. One liberal House member of 25 years called it "the meanest Congress I've ever seen."

Meanness pervaded the entire session. It showed up in spiteful defeat in the House of a rat control measure last summer. Public disgust and anger were so great, the House ultimately reversed itself.

Meanness showed up again in the bill expanding social security benefits. An amendment to it puts a freeze on the proportion of dependent children eligible to receive welfare aid.

In an act of pure spite, the House initially voted to exclude poverty workers from a federal pay raise bill, but in the end retreated from this position.

The poverty program was extended but seriously harmed when community action funds were turned over to local public officials by a "city hall" amendment and when the President's minimal $2.06 billion fund request was slashed to $1.773 billion.

Aid to education programs, landmarks passed by the 89th Congress, suffered body blows, as well. They got money, but they also got a hooker: Funds for innovative new education programs will be turned over to state boards of education, which are notoriously hidebound and reluctant to strike out in new directions.

Rent supplements and model cities programs survived, but in poor health. The President asked $40 million for the rent program. He got $10 million. He asked $662 million for model cities and got $312 million.

At one point, the House rammed through a meat-tax economy measure which nearly put half the government out of business. In a saner moment, this action was rescinded.

The over-all feeling of the Congress seemed to be one of revenge against the disadvantaged.

How did it turn out this way? The answer is simple: In 1966 elections, liberals took it on the chin and the conservative coalition came back. Congressional Quarterly claims the coalition racked up more House victories than at any other session of the past 10 years.

As 1967 ends, what the return of the coalition means for 1968 and beyond is unmistakable: More of the same kind of revenge action. Worse still: If the coalition gains in strength as a result of 1968 elections, 1967 will prove to be just a prelude to legislative mayhem.

RTW Backers In Hot Water

The National Right to Work Committee is in hot water.

The dismal failure of the committee and its Oklahoma cohorts to secure enough signatures to get RTW on the ballot in Oklahoma has left it casting about for a place to turn.

Its first public task, obviously, will be to try to explain away its humiliating defeat with a plausible cover story. On December 4, when the Oklahoma open-shoppers had to produce 104,000 valid signatures of registered voters, the Oklahoma secretary of state ruled they came up short and were not entitled to a place on the ballot. While his ruling is undergoing an appeal process, it is unlikely that sufficient valid signatures will be found.

This made it twice in four years the right-to-workers have been rejected in Oklahoma. In 1964, they lost at the polls.

But tougher than the public explanation for failure will be the private finagling to keep NRTWC backers on the hook.

Reportedly, NRTWC shelled out $153,000 for the campaign, or about $1.50 per name for the 103,000 names on petitions in Oklahoma. Another bundle was dropped by local Oklahoma RTW forces.

Backers of NRTWC reportedly are grumbling over coming up empty-handed after huge cash outlays and nearly a year of work. Persistent rumors that circulated before the big boffola for the committee had it that both the U.S. Chamber and National Association of Manufacturers were threatening to withdraw future support from NRTWC if it fumbled in Oklahoma. The Chamber and NAM always have been major spearheads in RTW drives and financial angels for state open shop campaigns.

In effect, NRTWC has been their front since 1955. They may be ready to drop it.

A further source of agony for the right-to-workers: Republicans, who normally can be relied on to support RTW publicly and financially, cold-shouldered the petition campaign in Oklahoma.

The word in Washington is that NRTWC now is looking for a way to bail out its sinking ship with an early victory in a small eastern state. Most mentioned targets: Connecticut and Delaware. Reason: Both are compact, making for less expensive campaigning.

However hard it tries to breathe new life into RTW, the Right to Work Committee may be on its last legs. It has suffered one defeat after another in the past 10 years.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said the failure of RTW in Oklahoma proves it is a "dead issue in this country." He suggested that the business community take a sharp look at the "sorry record" of NRTWC and then "read it out of business."

Meany charged NRTWC "is kept pasted together by a group of professional fund-raisers who milk gullible businessmen and then use those funds to pay handsome salaries to themselves and their fellow promoters so they can raise more money to repeat the cycle indefinitely."

Meany added: "Now that the National Right to Work Committee has fallen flat on its face in Oklahoma, it is interesting to recall that it hailed the 1966 election results as a 'mandate for right to work' and promised vigorous campaigns for the compulsory open shop law in all 31 states which do not have it."

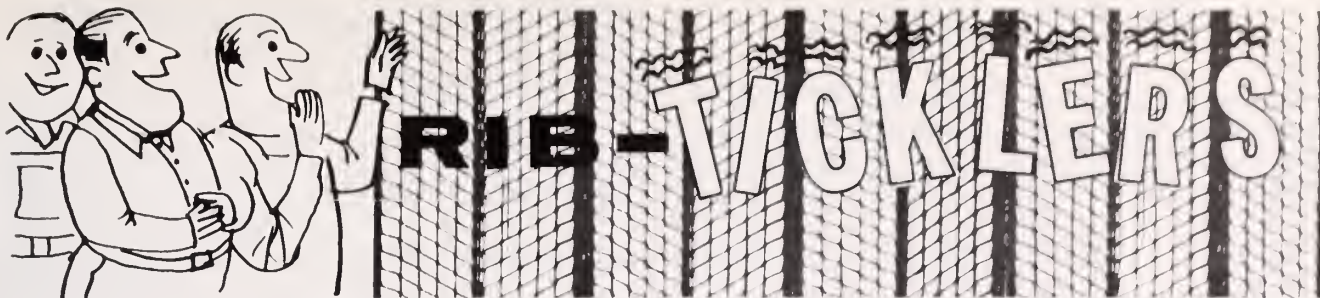

The AFL-CIO president pointed out RTW was soundly beaten in every state legislature where it was proposed this year. In view of this, he said, the least RTW sponsors can do now is to give the issue "a decent burial."

Rough Draft

Seems there was this architect, and he found a neat little way of proving that you gotta read the fine print, if you're a lathing contractor.

The job had been underway two months or so, when the architect dropped in to say hello. He told the sub that the work looked just fine, thank you, and where was his case of cold beer.

"Cold Beer.?"

"Cold Beer!"

Well, allowed the contractor, that would be mighty nice, as he would like to share one with the architect, but he was afraid he hadn't even seen one can, let alone a case, on the job site. Would the architect like to drop by the corner pub. . . .

"Oh no, . . . I'm talking about the case of beer in the specifications."

"In the spec . . . in the what?"

"Didn't you read the fine print?"

"Of course, or I wouldn't have made a bid on the job."

"Sorry Sam. Better dig them up and we'll see what they say." Under "Special Conditions—you know, where all the little wording is."

"Yeh . . ."

So they dug them out, and sure enough. It was spelled out very clearly that "on the 15th of each month the lathing contractor will furnish the architect with one case of cold beer."

A Hollow Laugh

JOHNNY CARSON: "Here's a young man who's a former writer on the Tonight Show and is now a working comedian, entertainer and very bright. Would you welcome Dick Cavatt. Dick."

(MUSIC, APPLAUSE)

CARSON: "Welcome back."

DICK CAVATT: "Greetings."

CARSON: "Good to have you here tonight."

CAVATT: "It's good to be here. Everybody says that."

CARSON: "Don't they. It's good to be here. Partly because I'll do anything that gets me out of my apartment and . . ."

CAVATT: "I can explain that, you know. I live in one of those new buildings that they're putting up with the ridiculously thin walls and that's really bad. There's a couple in the next apartment, man and woman, and . . ."

(LAUGHTER)

CAVATT: "I live uptown. They argue all the time; and it's incredible. Last night was the prize winner, I could not believe my ears. The gist of the argument was, since they already have the plastic madonna on their dashboard, do they also need seatbelts?"

(LAUGHTER)

CARSON: "You pick up some real jewels, don't you?"

CAVATT: "It's terrible with thin walls. I pay like $149.37 a month, you know, for this flimsy wall pad and I can't sleep if the neighbors are watching television and that drives you nuts, you know. I just don't—I don't mind so much, you know, being able to hear it, but not being able to see it . . ."

(LAUGHTER)

CARSON: "They're that thin

CARSON: "They're that thin, huh."

CAVATT: "You feel stupid asking the landlord for another coat of wall on your paint."

"I hear our union is against some sort of 'Ride-to-work' law. What's wrong with riding to work?"

NOTICE:

Equal Opportunity Report Filing Date

We wish to remind all Locals with 100 or more members that the deadline for filing the new mandatory Equal Employment Opportunity Report, EEO-3 has now passed, (December 31, 1967) and that failure to file, according to the reporting requirements which were published in full in the October Issue of the Lather, "may result in court action to compel its filing." Local Union Officers are urged again to check the requirements, either in the October Lather, or in copies of the reporting requirements which should have been sent to their offices by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. If you have not heard from the Commission, you should write Coordinator Alvin Golub, at 1800 G. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Buy Bonds where you work.

They do.

They work for freedom. It isn't a white collar job. Or a safe one. But it is a satisfying one. And the men who work at it think it is so important that more than seven out of ten of them are supporting freedom with their dollars, too — through investment in U.S. Savings Bonds. When you buy Bonds, you can save up for a rainy day, a home, a free and comfortable future — and at the same time show these brave men you're on their side. Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or buy Bonds where you bank. You'll walk a bit taller.

New Freedom Shares

Now, when you join the Payroll Savings Plan or the Bond-a-Month Plan, you are eligible to purchase new U.S. Savings Notes, "Freedom Shares," as a bonus opportunity. Freedom Shares pay 4.74% when held to maturity of just four-and-a-half years (redeemable after one year), and are available on a one-for-one basis with Savings Bonds. Get the facts where you work or bank.

Join up. America needs your help.

Establishment of the National War Labor Board April 8, 1918

Many of the labor-industry problems of wartime (World War I) were creating such living cost pressures on the working people and on the economy that it was apparent the Government would have to intervene. A War Labor Conference Board was established which recommended the establishment of the National War Labor Board. Labor as represented by the American Federation of Labor and industry as represented by the National Industrial Conference Board agreed to the general program. The Board had five representatives from the AFL and five from industry with Frank P. Walsh and ex-President William Howard Taft as co-chairmen.

The establishment of the National War Labor Board had great significance as a new attitude by Government toward labor and foreshadowed yet other steps to be taken in the New Deal years 15 years later. Labor was accorded virtually all of its demands and the right to organize and bargain collectively through its "chosen representatives." Point No. 1 in a policy memorandum said: "The right of all workers, including common laborers, to a living wage, is hereby declared."

Labor was loyal to the nation and to the war effort and upheld its end of the Government-labor-industry bargain and Secretary of War Newton D. Baker observed that labor had proved to be "more willing to keep in step than capital."

Government action through a national board brought into focus a new concept in labor relations, an immensely important change and certainly a landmark in labor relations in the history of the nation.

VOLUME 68

FEBRUARY, 1968

NUMBER 2

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

SAL MASO

In further reference to my last report on the Hearings Panel Decision on Ceilings Systems, a meeting was held January 11, 1968, with Dr. John T. Dunlop, Chairman of the Hearings Panel, General President Hutcheson and 2nd Vice President William Sidell of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and International Representative Robert Georgine and myself. Also present at the meeting were Mr. Jeremiah Burns and Mr. George Brueggeman representing the Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association and Mr. C. O. Johnson and Thaddeus S. Snell representing the National Acoustical Contractors Association.

Agreement was reached by the Committee as a whole that General President Hutcheson and myself appoint a representative from each International Union to resolve any disputes that cannot be resolved locally involving the meaning, application and implementation of the Decision on the Installation of Ceiling Systems issued by the Hearings panel on December 15, 1967. The full text of the portion of the decision, dated August 24, 1966, pertains to ceiling systems is reproduced below:

DECISION ON THE INSTALLATION OF CEILING SYSTEMS

1. The decision of this Hearings Panel is limited to the jurisdiction disputes or work assignments in controversy between lathers and carpenters involved in the installation of ceiling systems. Nothing in this decision shall affect the jurisdiction or work assignment of any other trade, such as, but not limited to, the sheet metal workers, electricians, iron workers, etc., with a claim or interest in the installation of ceiling systems. Contractors shall use this decision as a basis for making work assignments only with regard to work in the installation of ceiling systems involving carpenters and lathers.

2. The installation gypsum wallboard and other types of panels fastened directly to ceiling joists shall be performed by carpenters. In the event that a carrying channel is used with gypsum wallboard or other types of panels attached thereto, notwithstanding paragraph 4(a) below, the contractor may use carpenters to install the carrying channel in areas not exceeding 300 square feet where there are no lathers on the job.

3. The installation of light iron work in ceiling systems with gypsum, Portland cement, acoustical or other plasters sprayed-on or trowel-applied over lath or directly to structural members shall be performed by lathers.

4. The following types of ceiling systems are included in this paragraph: Direct Hung Suspension System; Attached Concealed System without Backing Board; Furring Bar Attached System; Furring Bar Suspension System; Indirect Hung Suspension System or similar systems.

(a) The installation of the 1½" channel or similar carrying channel and hangers in any of the above types of systems shall be performed by lathers.

(b) The installation of all other work, including the installation of a ceiling system in its entirety if no 1½" channel or other carrying channel is used, shall be performed by carpenters.

5. This decision shall be effective on all work assignments made on construction contracts let after October 1, 1966.

HEARINGS PANEL: Peter T. Schoemann; Hunter P. Wharton; Wm. E. Naumann; Ed S. Torrence; John T. Dunlop, Impartial Umpire.

I have appointed International Representative Robert Georgine to represent the interests of the LIU membership in this matter, and Carpenters' General President Hutcheson has appointed Second Vice President Sidell to represent the interests of the Carpenters.

All disputes that cannot be settled locally shall be referred to International Representative Georgine at LIU Headquarters. The telephone number is (Area Code 301) 270-1200. Bro. Georgine will confer with William Sidell on all disputes.

I will keep you fully informed of any further developments.

The broad sweep of legislative efforts by the white house in this second session of the 90th Congress was defined by the President in his state of the union message. Although there was little of specific promise to the laboring man of the nation, there was nothing lacking for the man who numbers himself as a consumer, as all working men are. Among the specific items proposed for the coming congressional year are a major study of automobile insurance, a study which has long been urged by the Executive Council of the AFL-CIO. The president backed the Amalgamated Meat Cutters drive for insuring the quality of fish and poultry, and called for added safeguards against injurious radiation from TV sets—radiation which had originally been pointed out by conscientious union men and women who make the sets.

But as heartening as these suggestions to protect and help the consumer may be, there is no lack of unfinished business in the second session of this Congress. A prime example is the Situs Picketing Legislation, which never got out of the committee in the last Congress.

The House Rules Committee had the bill bottled up on the House side, and hearings expected in the Senate before the Labor subcommittee never materialized.

Co-sponsors of the new bill that will be considered this session are Senators Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.). The forecasts are reasonably good for passage. First, the bill enjoys the support of the chairman of the Senate Labor Subcommittee, Sen. Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.). Secondly, both the Senate Labor Committee and the subcommittee are known to favor it at this point.

Action in the Senate could spur a release of the bill from the House Rules Committee, and even if this fails, the bill is almost certain to get to the floor of the Senate for a vote.

Among the other measures which represent a long slate of "unfinished business" from last session is a top-priority list compiled by AFL-CIO

President George Meany. He calls for action on jobs for the hard-core unemployed, effective action against the urban crisis, which we discussed in the November issue of the Lather, a massive housing construction drive for low and middle income citizens.

In mid-January, he also called for better consumer representation on the Medicare advisory board. Meany called for the appointment of representatives of trade unions, senior citizens organizations, and other bonafide consumer groups. The present 19-man Advisory Committee has only three laymen on it, one of whom is Nelson Cruikshank, former Social Security Director for the AFL-CIO.

This year, as the story on page 6 outlines in detail, is Labor's year at the polls, and all of us should consider very seriously our obligation to vote the ticket which will support our vital interest in an improved climate for collective bargaining, the passage of situs picketing bill, and the repeal, once and for all, of the mandatory open shop at the national level. I personally urge each and every one of you to follow the candidates and the issues as if your paycheck were riding on them. In a very real sense, they are. If we put in enough of our candidates this year, the rewards can be rich. If we don't, we can expect to see many repressive anti-labor measures being considered.

A final note on a subject of interest to all of us: the research program of the Heart Fund which is now soliciting contributions for the 1968 drive. George Meany has again consented to serve as national sponsor of the Heart Fund Campaign, to be conducted this month. Mr. Meany has pointed out that much progress in controlling heart disease has been made by the American Heart Association. As you probably are aware, heart and cardiovascular disorders kill more Americans than any other diseases.

In behalf of the Heart Fund Campaign I wish to urge all of you to give whatever you can to this year's campaign. It can be done as a group through your local. Send all contributions to the American Heart Association, Inc., 44 East 23rd Street, New York, N. Y. 10010.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

Despite what the antagonists of organized labor would have the mass of the uninformed American people believe, labor is not a "crusty old fossil," as Mario Azpcitia, President of the Cigar Makers International Union so aptly has pointed out in a recent issue of the "Cigar Maker."

Mario says that the figures of the National Labor Relations Board prove that organized labor is doing more than nodding its head in a comfortable old rocker. In 1966 the NLRB received an all-time record of almost 29,000 new cases. These cases are a measure of the militancy of labor—of the working man's willingness to fight for justice and for a fair and reasonable standard of living.

The AFL-CIO unions won the largest number of bargaining elections ever in 1966. NLRB certification was received by the AFL-CIO for 244,877 more workers. The Federations membership has jumped by more than a million and a half workers in all categories—including construction of course—in the last three years.

These figures tell us something that it's too easy to forget once we're "in"—that there's something of real value to be gained by becoming a member of organized labor. Otherwise, these impressive figures of growth and activity would be impossible to explain. More Americans, even in this day of plenty, are aware of the fact that much of the bounty has been brought through the historic fight of labor for the betterment of all, and that future gains are not likely to come out of the voluntary goodness of the employer's heart.

Belonging, after that initial glow of pride has ebbed, is more than passing time in a rocker. It's making contracts stick. It's settling disputes. Dealing every day in the realities of practical politics and practical business for the benefit of the members. All of us could well afford to contribute a little more toward these things, and a most important contribution is to attend your meetings regularly.

More distorted information about the employment of minority races in the construction industry can be laid at the doorstep of "Fortune" magazine, the super-slick, super expensive ($1.50 a copy) organ of the super-businessman. The AFL-CIO recently pointed out that a "Fortune" article entitled, "The Case Against the Unions," part of a series on the problems of the cities, claimed labor was interested in "white supremacy."

The figures which Fortune writer Thomas O'Hanlon used to support claims of gross discrimination in AFL-CIO unions were either used out of context, or were incorrectly reported. Figures for the building trades, according to AFL-CIO Civil Rights Department Chief Donald Slaiman, which were supposed to illustrate discrimination, were taken from a volume which notes that "Negroes made appreciable gains in skilled manual trade in both construction and in manufacturing. The number of Negro carpenters rose from 27,000 to 43,000, with other construction craftsmen increasing from 94,000 to 123,000." The figures were for the 1959-64 period. Even these facts, Slaiman pointed out, were gathered before the Civil Rights Act of 1964 went into effect, which proves that the building trades were integrating long before the government made its move, and that the situation isn't as bad as many strong-lunged opponents would have us believe. This writer is going on 50 years of membership, and recalls that during his apprenticeship the union was already integrated.

Today, Slaiman says, the government reports that more Negroes hold skilled jobs in construction than in most other industries, and apprenticeship opportunities in construction are widening, employment in the larger firms with government contracts. Slaiman said in a recent radio interview, is 16.6 percent Negro. In the largely unorganized white collar parts of industry, the Negro employment ratio is under 1 percent.

A major problem, Slaiman says, is how to get minority group members to "come through the doors when the doors are open." He made these remarks on nationwide radio's Labor News Conference. In the last three years, recruitment programs have brought more than 1,000 Negro and Puerto Rican apprentices into construction jobs in 16 cities, but the number of recruits is still small.

Modern architecture demands far greater skills and background education than in years past, so there must be a massive effort by everyone, including cities, employers and unions, to upgrade youngsters to the point where they can enter the skilled trades.

While most of the drug manufacturers huddled behind a common skirt as government hearings uncovered more and more damaging facts about them, the lone wolf—George S. Squibb—confirmed what many people had already known. Refusing to lie or mislead, the great-grandson of the founder of one of the drug giants, E. R. Squibb and Sons, faced up to a great moral obligation, and suggested that the drug industry will either have to straighten itself out, or face increasing government restraint.

The testimony of the younger Mr. Squibb lost him a job, and although it's doubtful that he or his descendants need ever worry about income, we commend his courage and his concern for the welfare of the common man. Drug prices, he said, are as high as twenty times the factory cost. No one expects a drug manufacturer to stay in business for no profit, for to undermine the profit motive is to blur one of the basic distinctions between our system and the socialist system. No one expects the immense cost of research before a drug breakthrough is made to be paid for entirely out of the pockets of the drug firms. Yet none of us should have to pay more than a reasonable profit figure—say 10 percent—on top of the actual long-range cost of development and production.

The construction industry may enjoy high wages, but it also has the distinction of being one of the most hazardous of occupations. A recent Associated Press story by reporter Neil Gilbride pointed out that out of four million workmen in construction, there were 2,800 deaths and 240,000 severe injuries last year.

Working time lost in construction accidents, according to Building Trades Department head Neil Haggerty, totals 174 million man-days a year, almost 30 times the loss the industry claims from strikes. The tragic toll in deaths and injuries has a price tag—for those who reckon such things in this way—of about $2 billion a year out of the $75 billion spent on construction. The number of deaths has been steadily rising from 2,500 in 1959 to the 2,800 figure last year.

One solution is a stiff penalty for contractors refusing to correct a safety hazard which has been brought to their attention. A bill to this effect has been introduced in the House by Rep. James G. O'Hara (D-Mich). It would provide for a $3,000 fine or 90 days in jail. It's a big step in the right direction.

The J. P. Stevens Company has finally been brought to justice. We've reported its long and flagrant violation of Federal orders to return workers to work, to bargain collectively, and other infractions, but until two recent major legal actions, one by the U.S. Supreme Court and the other by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Stevens had been airily ignoring law and reason. The Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling by refusing to review its finding that Stevens unlawfully interfered with the rights of 71 workers by firing them back in 1963 to smash an organizing drive. Stevens employees' right to organize was thus affirmed, and the company finally sent notices to 69 of the employees who remain in the vicinity to come back to work, even if they are union members.

In the wake of this Supreme Court action, the Textile Workers Union of America is launching a new organizing drive. We wish them the best of luck.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General-Secretary-Treasurer.

Social Security – Over Three Years

The cavalier refusal of Reader's Digest to print responsible refutation of its allegations about challenging the soundness of Social Security has resulted in the burgeoning indignation of many citizens, especially the elderly.

All of this takes place at a time when there is considerable unhappiness over the 1967 legislation which fell far short of what many of the nation's top authorities felt was needed.

Some basic distinctions must be made, however, between what is labeled crude and blanket fabrications about Social Security, carried in the Reader's Digest article, and the disappointment over the legislation in 1967.

To set the record straight, there have been some impressive advances in Social Security under amendments passed in 1965, 1966 and 1967. In a memorandum to President Johnson, John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, summed up the gains.

In the last 30 months, Gardner says, a total of 1,883,000 additional people are now getting cash benefits. Here's the way this number is broken down:

1. Reduced benefits for widows, aged 60-61 years, 121,000.
2. Benefits to people aged 72 and older with limited amounts of Social Security coverage, 124,000.
3. Benefits under broadened definitions of child, 20,000.
4. Benefits for children aged 18-21 and in school, 406,000.
5. Benefits for disabled under broadened definitions, 60,000.
6. Benefits for blind under liberalized requirements, 7,000.
7. Benefits for certain people aged 72 and older with no work (or very little work) under Social Security, 730,000.
8. Increased benefits for certain people aged 72 and older with no work (or very little work) under Social Security, 70,000.
9. Reduced benefits for disabled widows and widowers aged 50 and older, 65,000.
10. Benefits for workers disabled before age 31, and their dependents, 100,000.

11. Benefits for dependents of women workers on basis of liberalized eligibility requirements, 180,000.

This, of course, is only one part of the story.

Under Medicare, hospital protection was extended to 19 million citizens and supplementary medical insurance to 17.6 million people 65 years and older.

To date, they have received $3.1 billion for inpatient and outpatient hospital services covering 5.3 million hospital admissions. In addition, $1.18 billion has been expended for physicians' bills and other medical services, $275 million for 400,000 admissions to skilled nursing homes and $40 million for services rendered by the 250,000 home health care plans.

During the three-year period cash benefits to aged persons, widows, orphans and the disabled were increased on the average of 23 per cent—over 7 per cent in 1965 and 16 per cent in 1967.

The total annual cash benefits in Social Security in 1967 were $21.4 billion or $1.4 billion more than in 1966.

Monthly benefits are now going to 23,600,000—some 800,000 more than a year ago at this time.

The Social Security rolls now consist of almost 16 million retired workers and their dependents, over 5.5 million widows and orphans and over 2 million disabled workers and their wives and children.

So, the statistics offer evidence: Social Security is not exclusively the province of the elderly.

The average value of benefits under Social Security increased 35 per cent over the last three years. This includes cash benefits of 23 per cent and 12 per cent for Medicare.

This is not a negative record. It is one of positive accomplishment. But much more needs to be written into the law before Social Security provides the full measure of security that most of us envision.

This year, 1968, is another opportunity—both in Congress and at the ballot box. . . . (Press Associates, Inc.)

Medicare Rate Rises $1 For Doctor Bill Coverage

The 18 million elderly Americans now paying $3 a month for the voluntary medical insurance part of the medicare program—Part B—will pay $4, effective Apr. 1, the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare announced.

The largest single item going into the increase is higher doctor fees, which have gone up sharply since the medicare program began and are expected to rise still further.

The government will match the $4 premium, just as it has paid half the cost of the present program, so the insurance remains an outstanding bargain.

Part of the increased cost will also go to pay for added benefits provided in the medicare provisions of the new social security amendments. There will be fewer exclusions under the new law. For example, the insurance will pay the full charge for X-ray and pathology services to patients in hospitals and cover more physical therapy services.

The new rates anticipate an increase of about 5 percent a year in physician fees on top of the rise that has already taken place.

The Year of the Voter

1968 means opportunity for labor to win huge gains, or lose a generation of progress. It won't take many votes to make the difference.

Everybody in Washington agrees on this point: 1968 is a year in which organized labor can, if it backs up its wishes with power at the polls, undo a year of Congressional accident and then some. The field is wide open.

The Presidency, every single seat in the House of Representatives (there are 435 of them) 34 seats in the Senate—and even the governorship of 22 states—are up for grabs in the November 5 elections. Labor lost a lot of ground back in 1966. Perhaps it was overconfidence, or a lack of understanding of the precarious balance by which any party keeps tight control on the ebb and flow of legislation. Whatever it was, Labor was hurt. The bright new liberal lights in the House that had been swept in originally with Johnson were swept out. The net loss then was 47 liberals in the House. The Senate, more or less, has been safe for liberals in the last few years with a present makeup of 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans. But it takes both houses of Congress to make music, and we all know what has happened—or what hasn't happened, from labor's standpoint, in the first session of the 90th Congress.

Passed were an air pollution control bill, a teacher corps bill, a public television bill, a model cities program, a meat inspection bill, and a few assorted measures related to foreign affairs, the Viet Nam war, and economics. Only the model cities bill and the meat inspection bill really touch the workers. There may have been general consensus of agreement on the others, and they may represent progress, but there are many pieces of unfinished labor business this time.

George Meany talks about a "shocking backlog" in jobs for the unemployed, the need for multi-pronged attack on the decay of our cities, meeting the housing needs of the poorer. Public sentiment runs high, if Congressional applause is any indicator, of the need for anti-crime measures. President Johnson mentioned this item in his state of the union message.

The last session of Congress and the opening shots of this second session of the 90th, increasingly bared a deep and exceptional disagreement between the Congress and the President over the basic matter of money. Johnson wanted his added tax bite, ostensibly to pay for the war in Viet Nam, yet he seemed unwilling to cut back some of his spending programs. For example, the expensive and controversial government investment in a Supersonic Transport design is continued in the President's proposed budget for the coming fiscal year. Some critics think this is the very kind of program that could be dropped in a year when there are very urgent matters to be settled in Viet Nam and on the home front.

The President is expected to ask for major programs on housing and hospital construction in addition to those already mentioned, and in the Senate a battle is shaping up on the tough civil rights issue.

Just before adjournment of the first session of the 90th Congress, Senate Majority leader Mike Mansfield asked for a bill in this session making it a federal crime to injure, intimidate or interfere with a person exercising specified civil rights, including among other voting, attending school, applying for a job, or making use of public accommodations.

The bill passed the House and in somewhat improved form was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Civil rights supporters hope to amend it on the Senate floor to add on other portions of the Administration's civil rights program—which had initially been broken up into several bills to speed action.

The other sections include an open housing proposal, strengthening of equal employment opportunity enforcement, and a bar on discrimination in selection of juries.

Committee action is likely to dominate the House side of the Capitol during the early weeks of the session.

A bill of special importance to the AFL-CIO and the nation's farm workers will be the order of business when the Education and Labor Committee meets Jan. 23.

The subcommittee-approved bill would end the exemption of farm workers from the National Labor Relations Act. It would provide for union recognition and bargaining rights under the same procedures used in the construction industry, where the work force is also temporary.

Awaiting action by the House Rules Committee is a "truth-in-lending" bill similar to a Senate-passed measure. Supporters of a strong law plan to seek to strengthen it on the House floor to include disclosure of interest on department store revolving credit accounts.

As a follow-up to the meat inspection law enacted last year, union and consumer groups are planning a major push for strengthening poultry inspection. Eighty-seven percent of all poultry is already federally inspected, but there is virtually no state inspection of the remainder.

Election year logistics assure that the second session will be shorter than the 1967 session, which did not wind up until Dec. 15.

Both political parties hold their national conventions in August and there is a slim chance that Congress might wind up before then. More likely, however, is a recess during the convention period, reconvening in September. The demands of political campaigning will build heavy pressure for final adjournment before October.

Both these election-year demands on the Congressmen's time and the present political makeup of Congress argue against any significant labor gains. If they're to be made, it will be in the 91st Congress.

The 91st Senate is perhaps more in doubt at the polls than the House. Out of the 34 seats contested this fall, 23 are Democratic and only 11 are Republican. Nine of the truly liberal Democratic Senators face some stiff competition. Eight of them won by less than 55 percent of the total vote six years ago. The ninth, Sen. Ernest Gruening (Alaska), won with 58.1 percent but will encounter a rough scrap this year.

In Idaho, Sen. Frank Church is the target of the state's strong ultra-conservative faction. Though a right-wing effort to have him recalled failed, it helped coalesce the forces opposing him. They're already at work to shake him loose. Church won with 54.7 percent of the vote in 1962.

Others who won squeakers six years ago and again face hard battles are: Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (Conn.) who won with 51.3 percent of the vote; Sen. Birch Bayh (Ind.), 50.3 percent; Sen. Joseph S. Clark (Penn.), 51.1 percent; Sen. George McGovern (S.D.), 50.1 percent; Sen. Warren Magnuson (Wash.), 52.1 percent; Sen. Gaylord Nelson (Wisc.), 52.6 percent.

In addition, Sen. Carl Hayden meets up with the comeback try of former Sen. Barry Goldwater in Arizona. Hayden, who won with 54.9 percent of the vote in 1962, may retire. But whether he or someone else runs against Goldwater, it will be at best a toss-up.

Three of the Republicans seeking re-election nipped in last time: Sen. Peter Dominick (Colo.), 53.6 percent; Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper (Iowa), 53.4 percent; Sen. Wallace Bennett (Utah), 52.4 percent.

Two GOP senators are retiring: Frank Carlson of Kansas, and Hickenlooper. In the latter state, liberal Democratic Gov. Harold Hughes has announced for the Senate seat being vacated by Hickenlooper.

In the House, the 1966 election losses were crippling. They reflected in the consideration of just about every major piece of social legislation to come before the 90th Congress. Few programs escaped without wounds.

While the 1966 elections left the President with a majority in the House, it was more apparent than real. The present balance of 274 Democrats to 187 Republicans—with one vacancy—simply does not provide a liberal majority.

Add anywhere from 60 to 90 Dixiecrat votes to an almost solid GOP vote on most issues and you come up with a conservative majority—in truth, the revival of the Dixiecrat-GOP coalition that ruled the roost in the House for almost 30 years before the 89th Congress interrupted its reign.

About 30 incumbent liberals scraped by with 55 percent or less of the total vote in their districts in 1966. Many of them are survivors of the 1966 "slaughter of the innocents" which cut so deeply into the ranks of the 89th Congress freshmen liberals. Now with two terms under their belts, a win in 1968 will entrench them solidly in their districts and help them move up the important committee ladders in the House.

Similarly, there are about 30 incumbent conservatives running whose grip on their districts is far from unshakable, winners by 55 percent or less of the vote in 1966. Among them are congressmen who have cast no or precious few "right" votes on the COPE scoreboard.

The Presidential race is in the public limelight, and it's revealing to find that Johnson's popularity is off 15 to 20 percent from his peak in 1964 when he defeated Goldwater. But he is rebounding, and the polls are not always accurate thermometers of the political heat of the day. Truman proved this conclusively twenty years ago.

Not all of labor's troubles in Congress, can be laid at Johnson's feet. The best President can do little with a hostile Congress, and besides, there is much legislation that has been passed since Johnson took office that's worth talking about. Since 1963, expenditures for education have tripled to $12 billion. The number of college students has increased 1.8 million, and about one and one-quarter million are receiving some kind of Federal assistance. The greatest boon here has been for children from lower-income families.

There has also been a 28 percent increase in adult vocational education—job retraining programs included. Nine million poorer students have benefitted from classroom, teacher and library programs. Medicare was passed. One hundred and thirty-seven mental retardation clinics have been built.

The average weekly wage of factory workers has gone up from $100.85 to more than $116, and 9.1 million more workers are covered by the minimum wage. This month, the minimum wage will have gone up by 35 cents. If you're inclined to gripe about the political situation, it's smart to keep these gains in mind.

Age-Old Curves And Space-Age Wrinkles

An unusual Richmond, Virginia Building wraps itself in aluminum foil that provides texture and shape contrast to lath and stucco work by members of Local 63.

An unusual foil-wrapped building by Richmond Architect Haigh Jamgochian, whose philosophy about lath and plaster in the next half century was reported in the December issue of the Lather, carries the cursive lines of the exterior facade through to the lobby ceiling and soffits with metal lath and stucco.

Working closely with the architect on the job were members of Lathers' Local 63, Richmond, Virginia. The foreman was Eddie Y. Duck, and among other members of the Local on the job were C. S. Jones, Willie and Frank Duck, and Herbert Gibson, Secretary of the Local Union.

Architect Jamgochian checks lath in the lobby area.

"It was a job on which Eddie worked side-by-side with the architect," said Brother J. F. Burke, Business Agent of the Local. Mr. Jamgochian, who executes the unusual, likes to keep close tabs on a job, and to modify where necessary as the job progresses in consultation with the skilled trades on the job.

The aluminum sheet that was wrapped around the face of the three projecting balconies, for example, had originally been designed to receive an undercoating to dampen the sound expected with expansion and contraction of the aluminum due to heat changes, and with movement due to wind. The installed material gained so much additional strength through the wrinkling and pounding that no undercoating was used. So flexible before installation that it would not stand up under its own weight, the .032-inch untempered aluminum got enough hammering to partially temper it.

Basically specified for its unusual appearance, the wrinkled aluminum sheet also provides its own built-in expansion and contraction flexibility, and saved the owner a substantial amount over conventional panelling. This would have cost about $50,000, Jamgochian says, while the aluminum, including labor cost, was just $10,000. The work of unrolling the aluminum sheeting and wrinkling it into place (see diagram) began slowly, as might be expected, but as the crew got used to the technique they could unroll more than two feet a minute.

The Markel Building in Richmond is home for a truck and bus insurance company, and the firm asked Jamgochian for a building that would not only serve departmental office operations, but would identify the company as a unique and progressive organization. The second purpose has been admirably served by the exterior. The interior provides modern space, accessible from a central core elevator and stairs area which provides storage as well. All offices are located on the exterior walls, sheltered from the direct rays of the sun by the deep overhang of the aluminum-faced balconies.

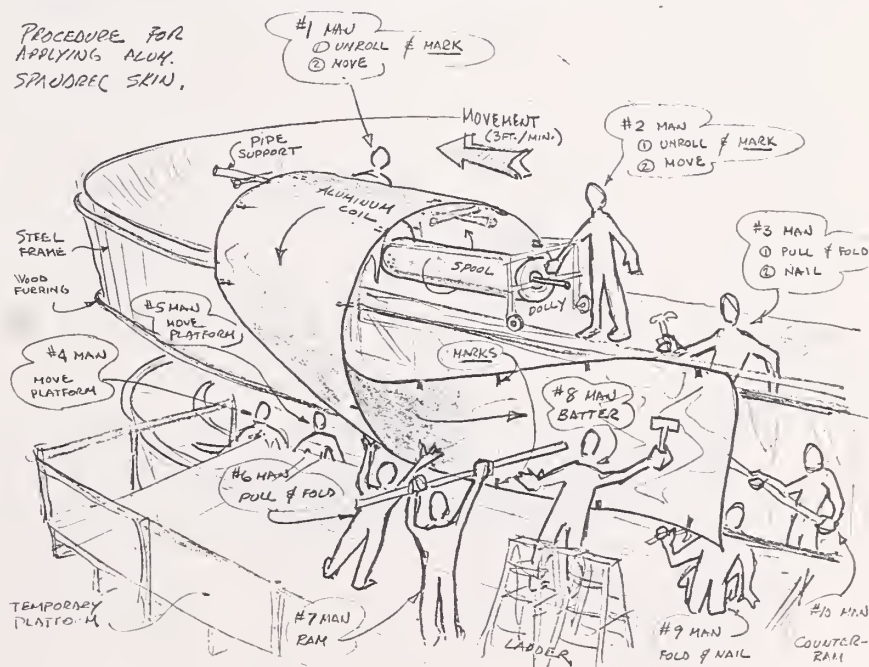

The most extensive lath and stucco work is found in the open-air main lobby area at ground level, which provides sheltered parking for automobiles around the glassed-in central core lobby that serves as the pedestrian entrance. Soffits on the first floor, an extension of the parking area ceiling, as well as those on the second and third, were lath and stucco.

The final result of Jamgochian's departure? Practical, beautiful, and memorable architecture, combining the age-old plastic curvatures possible only with lath and plaster with a space-age surface that constitutes a first for the construction industry.

Below, the architect's original sketch of the job of placing the aluminum. The original estimate of 3 feet per minute was not far off the eventual on-the-job mark, and the effect was better than expected.

CLC Urges Stronger International Service

The Canadian Labour Congress has urged the government to expand rather than reduce its international radio and television service. Donald MacDonald, acting president, said he had wired Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin expressing concern over reports that the CBC International Service was to be abandoned or reduced.

"Canada has established an enviable reputation in this field and it would be little short of criminal to walk out and abandon it", Mr. MacDonald said. "The White Paper on Broadcasting presented by Miss LaMarsh last year said the government was 'convinced of the importance and value of the international service and is generally prepared to accept the recommendations of the Advisory Committee with regard to the necessary renewal of the physical plant and the extension and improvement of programming.'

"Under these circumstances it is difficult to understand the suggestions now being advanced that the service should be abandoned, or at least reduced", Mr. MacDonald continued. "Existing world conditions make effective communications more important now than at any time in the history of man. To discontinue or reduce this service would be a most retrograde step."

Text of Mr. MacDonald's telegram to Miss LaMarsh and Mr. Martin follows:

"Canadian Labour Congress deeply disturbed by reports of discontinuance or reduction of CBC International Service. Your 1966 White Paper properly emphasizes importance this service. Vacating this field would mean abandonment by Canada of a most valuable and firmly-established international position. World conditions today give us the responsibility for increasing rather than reducing such international activities."

Indian Housing Improved

Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing announced recently that over $6 million had been spent during the last six months to improve living conditions on Indian reserves in Canada. The 5-year, $112-million improvement program was designed to hit hard at the low standard of living in many Indian communities. "The Indian people want more and better-quality houses, with electricity and proper plumbing," the Minister said. "This is what our program is for—to bring the standard of living of every Indian on every reserve in Canada up to the level enjoyed by other Canadians."

More than three-quarters of this money has gone toward housing. So far this year, 580 houses have been built, and another 1,178 are under construction. Electricity has been extended to 991 Indian houses, at a cost of $274,198. A total of $357,693 has been spent to install pressurized water in 330 homes and to provide another 232 with sewers or septic tanks.

One hundred and seventy miles of new roads are making it easier for Indians to get to and from schools and centers of employment. Another 170 are being constructed, bringing the total cost to $602,403.

Two Dams Recommended

The construction of two dams on the Pembina River is recommended—one just west of Walhalla, North Dakota, and the other south of Manitou, Manitoba. The project would be intended to provide adequate flood-control protection, a supply of water of suitable quality for municipal and industrial purposes, and irrigation. It would also be designed to provide water recreational sites, and to improve the quality and quantity of game fish in the area.

Canadian authorities are studying the report with a view to joint consideration of its recommendations.

Whither Goest Thou?

In 1923 a very important meeting was held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. Attending this meeting were nine of the world's most successful financiers.

Those present were:

- The president of the largest independent steel company;
- The president of the largest utility company;
- The president of the largest gas company;
- The greatest wheat speculator;
- The president of the New York Stock Exchange;
- A member of the President's cabinet;
- The greatest "bear" in Wall Street;
- Head of the world's greatest monopoly;
- President of the Bank of International Settlements.

Certainly we must admit that here were gathered a group of the world's most successful men—at least, men who had found the secret of "making money."

Twenty-nine years later let's see where these men are:

The president of the largest independent steel company—Charles Schwab—died a bankrupt and lived on borrowed money for five years before his death.

The president of the greatest utility company—Samuel Insull—died a fugitive from justice and penniless in a foreign land.

The president of the largest gas company—Howard Hopson—is now insane.

The greatest wheat speculator—Arthur Cutten—died abroad—in-solvent.

The member of the President's cabinet—Albert Fall—was pardoned from prison so he could die at home.

The greatest "bear" in Wall Street—Jesse Livermore—died a suicide.

The head of the greatest monopoly—Ivar Krueger—died a suicide.

The president of the Bank of International Settlements—Leon Fraser—died a suicide.

All of these men learned well the art of making money,

NEW! STAINLESS STEEL MAGNETIC NAIL DRIVER

Because it's longer—a full 7"—and slimmer—only 3/16" diameter—you'll find it a lot easier to reach into those hard-to-nail channels and corners with this new nail driver. Has a strong, everlasting Alnico V magnet set in the nose to grip nails tightly. And thanks to 3/8" hexagonal shank it's easier to get a good hold on this time and effort saving tool.

CHROME STEEL MAGNETIC NAIL HOLDER

Here's a rugged, well-balanced, shaped-to-fit-your-hand nail holder that's long been a favorite of journey-men who refuse to settle for less than the best. Has a heat treated steel insert with Alnico V permanent magnet that makes nails stick to it like glue so you can spot 'em right where you want 'em! 5 1/2" long, 3/4" diameter nose.

TODD'S WIRE NIPPERS WITH REPLACEABLE JAWS

Lather's favorite tool for cutting steel lath, tiles, all wire products. Simple, rugged construction with hardened, high carbon steel jaws that are replaced quickly, easily to make the tool good as new time after time. Easy on the hand thru the longest day, too. A tool you'll swear by after the first time you use it! 8" long with 1 1/2" jaws.

04 680 H7 ..... Only $6.40
Extra Jaws—04 580 H7 ..... $2.50

DUAL PURPOSE SELF-CHALKING LINE BOX

It's a Chalk Line and a Plumb Line, too! Plumb Bob Tip is refill cap. A twist of the fingers opens it for easy refill, another twist locks it. Complete with extra strong 100' line.

09 301 H7 ..... Only $2.00
CHALK for box above. Won't cake. 8-oz. cans.
Dark Blue—09 304 H7 55c Red—09 306 H7 55c

ESTWING SUPREME LATH HATCHET

An UNBREAKABLE lath hatchet with easy-to-replace razor sharp blade. Forged in one piece of finest steel. Exclusive molded-on Nylon-Vinyl cushion grip will never loosen, age or wear out. Scored face prevents glancing blows, flying nails. Weighs 1 1/4 lbs.

04 300 H7 ..... Only $6.95
Pack of 4 Extra Blades—04 303 H7 ..... $1.00

FORGED TOOL STEEL END CUT NIPPERS

A high quality lather's nippers worth more than the price. Built to take it of perfectly forged and tempered tool steel that's perfect for cutting wire. Easy to handle, too—you can use 'em for all day without tiring your hand.

LATHER'S PAL LEATHER NAIL BAG

Soft, heavy chrome tanned split cowhide, stitched with linen cord drawn thru wax for extra strength. Reinforced on both sides with smooth rivets that can't scratch your hands. 14 1/2 x 10" with 9" deep pocket.

04 451 H7 ..... Only $3.25
G.I. BELT—Sturdily woven, with rugged non-rusting clasp. Will last years.
04 452 H8 ..... Only $2.45

Yes, YOU can reduce your risks of heart attack

While scientists are searching for cures, everyone can take these simple precautions: see your doctor periodically; reduce if overweight; eat foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol; stop smoking cigarettes; control high blood pressure, and exercise regularly.

You also reduce your risk when you give to the Heart Fund to support your Heart Association's program of research, education and community service.

GIVE...so more will live HEART FUND

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF THE RAILROADS

December 28, 1917—March, 1920

One of the major labor-management steps taken in World War I era was Government control of the nation's railroads. On December 28, 1917 President Woodrow Wilson, under congressional authority, took over all operation of railroads and water transport. As Director-General of the Railroad Administration under the Federal Control Act, the Secretary of the Treasurer, William G. McAdoo was appointed.

The Director-General showed friendliness and a realism toward labor and its problems in a series of orders and directives. He ordered all supervisors to cease discriminating against workers for forming unions and to recognize unions for purposes of collective bargaining.

Organized labor and particularly the railroad unions when the time came to return the rails to private ownership advocated the "Plumb Plan" for Government ownership and operation. While this plan failed, the impact of Government ownership on the forward march of unionization in the industry was significant and rates as a landmark of labor, particularly of railway labor.

from the General President

SAL MASO

As you have read in the papers recently, a very significant step was taken by the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO at its recent Miami meeting. We have agreed to cooperate fully with the Government and contractors in the Government's model cities program to open up construction labor job opportunities to those living in the central city. As widely reported in the press, this is an "opening up" of construction jobs to minority groups, because in many slums the majority of the residents are underprivileged Negroes, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, and other non-white minorities.

Opportunities for minorities were tied in with the Model Cities Act, formally known as the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966. Cities are eligible for this Federal assistance in rebuilding their slums only if they provide maximum opportunities for employing residents in the area in all phases of the program, and provide enlarged opportunities for training.

It was my distinct privilege and honor to sign the agreement of the Building and Construction Trades Department to accept this responsibility. This agreement, which has been submitted to the Honorable Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor, by Department President C. J. Haggerty, binds us to foster, with the cooperation of contractor groups, programs to recruit qualified applicants from the minorities, and to overcome the special existing deficiencies affecting the full qualification of the minority group applicants for construction jobs. We have also endorsed pilot programs in those cities which have already begun this kind of program, known as "Outreach" and "Leap" in 48 cities. Local unions are urged to give full cooperation to such efforts.

The Building and Construction Trades Department has agreed to recommend that apprenticeship programs, sponsored or co-sponsored by local unions, give out full information on program entrance and qualifications to "sources of potential minority candidates within the community" as well as to the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training. Mr. Haggerty wrote that "each segment of the industry will adapt and adopt this proposal according to its structure and requirements with full recognition of the joint characteristics of the apprenticeship program. There will be maximum utilization of responsible civil rights organizations willing to join in a cooperative effort to effect this proposal with full recognition of the necessity for industry to formulate its requirements for employment and entry into the trade." The full text of Mr. Haggerty's letter is reproduced below.

HONORABLE W. WILLARD WIRTZ
SECRETARY OF LABOR
Washington, D.C. 20210

DEAR MR. SECRETARY:

The Building and Construction Trades Department, desiring to implement the action taken by its 54th Convention which endorsed affirmative action generally and in principle for the purpose of preventing any possible discrimination in the operation of local unions chartered by its affiliated International Unions, proposes to undertake, both directly and through the individual General Presidents, subscribing hereto, the following:

(1) To foster, with the cooperation of appropriate management organizations:

(a) Programs of recruitment of qualified applicants for apprenticeship from the Negro population and other minority groups, and

(b) Programs for special attention to deficiencies affecting the full qualification of Negro and other minority group applicants, if such exist, and remedy the same if practical;

(2) To endorse and support projects such as OUTREACH AND LEAP in those 48 cities where such projects have been undertaken and in other cities where such projects are started in the future, urging local unions to give full cooperation, not only by disseminating information concerning the apprenticeship program to those who operate the project, but also by working actively with the project so that it may be better able to recruit applicants specifically according to the needs and requirements of the apprenticeship program;

(3) To counsel and urge its affiliates to consider appropriate means whereby suitable minority candidates may be recruited;

(4) To recommend that apprenticeship programs, sponsored or co-sponsored by its local unions, disseminate full information concerning program entrance and necessary qualifications, not only to the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, but also to one or more source of potential minority candidates within the community;

(5) To urge upon all affiliate local unions the social and economic necessity of striving for satisfactory minority participation;

(6) To recommend that affiliate local unions and joint apprenticeship committees explore mutual problems with appropriate organizations directly representative of minority groups within the community.

Each segment of the industry will adapt and adopt this proposal according to its structure and requirements with full recognition of the joint characteristics of the apprenticeship program. There will be maximum utilization of responsible civil rights organizations willing to join in a cooperative effort to effect this proposal with full recognition of the necessity for industry to formulate its requirements for employment and entry in the trade.

We offer this form of public-private cooperation as a means of recognizing and meeting social responsibilities in full and voluntary support of government efforts to eliminate, once and for all, discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, or national origin, with the endorsement of the Department's Executive Council.

Sincerely yours,
C. J. HAGGERTY,
President

In his reply to Mr. Haggerty, Willard Wirtz suggested that the Department's proposals, when carried out, would be a "strong and progressive forward step toward answering, once and for all, complaints that building trades unions may not be exerting their best efforts in full support of private and public action to eliminate discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin."

MR. C. J. HAGGERTY, PRESIDENT BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT, AFL-CIO
815 Sixteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006

DEAR PRESIDENT HAGGERTY:

I am gratified to receive your letter of February 1, 1968 in behalf of the Building and Construction Trades Department and subscribing General Presidents. In your letter, you express in detail an affirmative action program to eliminate any discrimination in apprenticeship programs, thereby proposing to implement action taken by your 54th Convention.

When these proposals are carried out, they will, in my opinion, represent a strong and progressive forward step toward answering, once and for all, complaints that building trades unions may not be exerting their best efforts in full support of private and public action to eliminate discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, or national origin.

This action of yours is entirely in accordance with my remarks to you at your convention, and I welcome your complete expression of cooperation with the thought that best possible solutions may lie in voluntarism by the unions themselves, in cooperation with appropriate management organizations. This is, indeed, recognizing and meeting social responsibilities in support of government efforts under law. You are to be commended for the forthright position you have taken.

Meanwhile, in the light of these assurances and in furtherance of my responsibilities under Executive Order 11246 and the Fitzgerald Act, P.L. 75-308 (August 16, 1937), I propose to continue carrying out anti-discrimination provisions concerning apprenticeship, contained in 29 CFR 30, without change or amendment, through the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, in accordance with present regulations. Any conflict between governmental action under these regulations and the activities of the Office of Federal Contract Compliance shall be called to the attention of the Under Secretary of Labor for satisfactory resolution.

Sincerely,
WILLARD WIRTZ
Secretary of Labor

Under the proposed plan, the minority group slum dweller would be given an opportunity to work at any trade, provided he shows the minimum entrance level aptitude required, whether it be for apprenticeship or for some kind of pre-apprenticeship training, and that this opportunity be on a 6-month trial basis. If, at the end of that time, both labor and management agree that the man qualifies for the work, he can continue, and work toward full journeyman status.

It would also be provided that if the area residents qualify right away, they can begin to be paid at the prevailing wage rate for the trade, as established by the local agreement. Trainees who have had previous construction experience may be given preference. Those who meet the apprenticeship qualifications would generally be paid apprentice scale, and those less qualified would be paid a trainee rate specified in local supplements to the general agreement between the Building and Construction Trades Department and the contractors' national organizations. The local supplements would be necessary to accommodate the differences in wage rates and conditions of employment from area to area. Each local supplement will probably provide for a joint administrative committee made up of representatives of the local unions and contractor associations. The trainee wage rate will probably not vary from trade to trade.

The local supplements will probably spell out the procedures for recruiting, preliminary screening, and pre-job-site training, to include safety. They will also specify the ratio of local slum residents to skilled mechanics.

On the question of jurisdiction, it appears likely that agreement will be reached by the affected local unions and contractors before the start of specific rehabilitation projects, and any disputes arising out of these procedures might be resolved under the new agreement instead of through the established procedures for settling jurisdictional disputes in the industry. A no-strike provision also is likely.

Inasmuch as the local wage rates will prevail under the new agreement, the Building and Construction Trades Department adopted a most significant resolution in Miami. The resolution is reproduced below:

RESOLUTION NO. 33

Re: Declaration of Policy of the Building and Construction Trades Department with Respect to Federal Agencies which Do Not Comply with Rulings and Interpretations of the Secretary of Labor Concerning the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts.

Submitted by: Executive Council, Building and Construction Trades Department

Referred to: Committee on Resolutions

WHEREAS, Labor Organizations and employees in the Building and Construction industry have a vital interest in the proper and lawful interpretation, application and administration of the Davis-Bacon and related Acts; and

WHEREAS, Reorganization Plan No. 14 of 1950 issued by President Harry S Truman provides that "In order to assure coordination of administration and consistency of enforcement of the labor standards provisions of the (Davis-Bacon and related Acts) by the Federal agencies responsible for the administration thereof, the Secretary of Labor shall provide appropriate standards, regulations and procedure which shall be observed by the agencies" . . . ; and

WHEREAS, The Secretary of Labor has issued such appropriate standards, regulations and procedures (Part 5) and, in particular, has provided that:

"All questions arising in any agency relating to the application and interpretation of the rules contained in this part and in parts 1 and 3 of this subtitle and of any of the labor standards provisions of statutes referred to in Section 5.1 shall be referred to the Secretary for appropriate ruling or interpretation. The rulings and interpretations shall be authoritative and those under the Davis-Bacon Act may be relied upon as provided for in section 10 of the Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947 (29 U.S.C. 259) . . ." (Second 5.12); and

WHEREAS, Certain Federal agencies which are subject to the said standards, regulations and procedures of the Secretary of Labor have not accepted or acted upon the rulings and interpretations of these labor statutes by the Comptroller General with consequent deprivation of the rights of labor; now therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Building and Construction Trades Department (AFL-CIO) declares its policy in the case of any such non-complying agency to be:

- 1) not to make the good offices of the Department available for negotiation of any project agreement in connection with any contract involving such non-complying agency; and
- 2) to recommend and urge all national and international unions affiliated with the Department to develop and negotiate with employers holding agreements with the respective national and international union appropriate clauses providing that the no-strike provisions in such agreements shall not apply to contracts involving such non-complying agency PROVIDED THAT nothing herein shall affect the normal operation or negotiation of no-strike provisions in labor agreements between local unions and their employers.

It is unnecessary to dwell on the impact of this program, nor upon the need for every local union officer, and, in fact, every member of the LIU to keep himself aware of these developments, and to adhere to any agreements which may result.

The LIU has had a long record of fairness and justice to minority groups which forms a fitting backdrop for events which are sure to come under the model cities program. The LIU has had members of minority groups in its ranks virtually from its inception. All of us will continue to regard members of minority groups with no special concern. We are more interested in the development of this immense task of rebuilding our cities. It will be done. Union labor, now bolstered by the hands of those slum dwellers who are willing and able to do so, will get on with the job, on a business-as-usual basis.

Sincerely and fraternally,

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

If you think you got a raise in 1967, you better check again. You know the reason. The cost of living continues to edge upward, and for many wage-earners the increase in the price of essentials is outpacing hard-won increases in pay. The Government's Bureau of Labor Statistics says the December, 1967 cost of living was 3.1 percent higher than it was a year before that. Anyone earning $10,000 in 1967, therefore, would have had to earn $10,310 in 1968 just to break even. Put another way, inflation made it necessary to spend $11.82 for what $10 would have bought a year ago.

The average factory worker, says the Government, suffered a loss of about 20 cents a week in actual buying power from 1966 to 1967. Things were actually worse between 1965 and 1966, when the percentage increase in the cost of living was 3.3, but the inflation rate of 1967 took even the Government forecasters by surprise. They had predicted a decay in the value of money of no more than 2.5 percent.

Where was the greatest loss in purchasing power? In case you hadn't already noticed, restaurant meals were one of the leaders, with an increase of almost 5 percent. Health and recreation costs were up by over four and a half percent, while clothing cost 4 percent more. Grocery food costs were up only a fraction of one percent, which made your grocery store a better bargain for your deflated 1967 dollars. If you managed to eat more at home, avoid the doctor's office, and stay away from recreational pursuits, you may have weathered 1967 without serious harm.

Nobody can guarantee protection against the decline of the dollar. It is almost certainly going to continue and is, in fact, a cornerstone of current U.S. Government financial policy. Constantly cheapening money makes it easier for the Federal Government to pay off its loans, for one thing.

In this kind of fiscal atmosphere, you can be thankful that you've got a union interested in seeing to it that pay increases continue at least as fast as the value of the dollar declines. Usually, we do better than that.

There is much interest in Congress in improving the U.S. record of fire safety. In the last session of Congress, a Fire Safety Act was passed by the Senate, and early this February the House passed an almost identical measure that will now be reconciled with the older Senate bill, and most likely signed by the President.

Both of these bills would give the Bureau of Standards the authority to investigate fires on a nationwide basis, to determine their causes, frequency, and severity. The Bureau would also investigate the development of improved techniques for fire prevention and control. Another provision is public education on fire hazards and safety measures.

Missing in the bill is a provision that we feel is important. It should also provide for public education on the fire resistance of various construction materials in a way that eliminates doubletalk and confusion. It should also give the public the facts about such things as the generation of toxic gases by some acoustic materials.

Finally, a reminder about COPE, and the fact that this is an election year. You all know what that means. Labor's friends need your vote and your buck. One can wait until November. The other can't.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,

AUDIT REPORT

Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

January 1, 1967 to December 31, 1967

February 21, 1968

Mr. Sal Maso, General President
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union
6530 New Hampshire Avenue
Takoma Park, Maryland

Dear Sir:

In accordance with your request we have examined the books and records of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union for the year ended December 31, 1967 and give you herewith a report of our examination including the following exhibits and schedules:

Exhibits:

- A—Statement of Condition December 31, 1967
- B—Operating Statement for year ended December 31, 1967
- C—Analysis of Net Worth

Schedules:

- 1—Summary Cash Statement
- 2—Statement of Cash Receipts
- 3—Statement of Cash Disbursements
- 3A—Officers and Representatives Salaries and Expenses

Cash in bank was reconciled with statements received from the Suburban Trust Company, Hyattsville, Maryland and various other depositories where the organization has deposits in savings accounts.

Bonds owned as described in Schedule 4 and Stock Certificate Number 62-245 for 560 shares and Number 62-892 for 80 shares of Union Labor Life Insurance Company Stock are held for safekeeping in a safe deposit box in the Suburban Trust Company. These securities were verified in the presence of General President Sal Maso on November 7, 1967.

The net assets of your organization have decreased from $1,570,597.65 on December 31, 1966 to $1,321,696.97 on December 31, 1967, a decrease of $248,900.68. This overall decrease was due primarily to the fact that the triennial convention was held in September 1967 and had a total cost of $222,759.21. In accordance with convention action $100,000.00 was transferred from the Legal Defense Fund to the General Fund, resulting in changes in the various funds as follows:

	NET WORTH DECEMBER 31,		INCREASE OR (DECREASE)
	1967	1966
General Fund	$ 631,599.58	$ 624,377.18	$ 7,222.40
Organizing Fund	61,849.50	54,632.52	7,216.98
Funeral Benefit Fund	391,297.84	350,009.06	41,288.78
Convention Fund	8,959.46	177,049.37	(168,089.91)
Legal Defense Fund	227,990.59	364,529.52	(136,538.93)
Total	$1,321,696.97	$1,570,597.65	$(248,900.68)

Inventory values were based on estimated figures determined from your records.

Since the examination was confined to receipts and disbursements, amounts due from local unions or other sources, and any unpaid bills, for services and supplies, were not considered in the compilation of this report.

In our opinion, subject to the above comments, the accompanying balance sheet and operating statement present fairly the financial position of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union at December 31, 1967 and the results of its operations for the year then ended on a cash basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Yours very truly,

YOU'LL DO BETTER WORK EASIER WITH GOLDBLATT LATHER'S TOOLS

NEW! STAINLESS STEEL MAGNETIC NAIL DRIVER

Because it's longer—a full 7"—and slimmer—only 7/16" diameter—you'll find it a lot easier to reach into those hard-to-nail channels and corners with this new nail driver. Has a strong, everlasting Alnico V magnet set in the nose to grip nails tightly. And thanks to 3/4" hexagonal shank it's easier to get a good hold on this time and effort saving tool.

04 156 H7 ..... Only $5.50

CHROME STEEL MAGNETIC NAIL HOLDER

Here's a rugged, well-balanced, shaped-to-fit-your-hand nail holder that's long been a favorite of journeymen who refuse to settle for less than the best. Has a heat treated steel insert with Alnico V permanent magnet that makes nails stick to it like glue so you can spot 'em right where you want 'em! 5 1/2" long, 3/4" diameter nose.

04 152 H7 ..... Only $5.50

TODD'S WIRE NIPPERS WITH REPLACEABLE JAWS

Lather's favorite tool for cutting steel lath, tiles, all wire products. Simple, rugged construction with hardened, high carbon steel jaws that are replaced quickly, easily to make the tool good as new time after time. Easy on the hand thru the longest day, too. A tool you'll swear by after the first time you use it! 8" long with 1 3/4" jaws.

04 680 H7 ..... Only $6.40
Extra Jaws—04 580 H7 ..... $2.50

DUAL PURPOSE SELF-CHALKING LINE BOX

It's a Chalk Line and a Plumb Line, too! Plumb Bob Tip is refill cap. A twist of the fingers opens it for easy refill, another twist locks it. Complete with extra strong 100' line.

09 301 H7 ..... Only $2.00
CHALK for box above. Won't cake. 8-oz. cans. Dark Blue—09 304 H7 55c Red—09 306 H7 55c

ESTWING SUPREME LATH HATCHET

An UNBREAKABLE lath hatchet with easy-to-replace razor sharp blade. Forged in one piece of finest steel. Exclusive molded-on Nylon-Vinyl cushion grip will never loosen, age or wear out. Scored face prevents glancing blows, flying nails. Weighs 1 1/4 lbs.

04 300 H7 ..... Only $6.95
Pack of 4 Extra Blades—04 303 H7 ..... $1.00

FORGED TOOL STEEL END CUT NIPPERS

A high quality lather's nippers worth more than the price. Built to take it of perfectly forged and tempered tool steel that's perfect for cutting wire. Easy to handle, too—you can use 'em for all day without tiring your hand.

04 507 H7 ..... Only $4.20

LATHER'S PAL LEATHER NAIL BAG

Soft, heavy chrome tanned split cowhide, stitched with linen cord drawn thru wax for extra strength. Reinforced on both sides with smooth rivets that can't scratch your hands. 14 1/2 x 10" with 9" deep pocket.

04 451 H7 ..... Only $3.25
G.I. BELT—Sturdily woven, with rugged non-rusting clasp. Will last years

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Leaders of the Building Trades have been especially busy in Washington, D. C., in recent weeks, as they continue to fight for construction safety legislation, for a situs picketing bill, and for other measures of importance to the working man.

I participated in the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department's annual Legislative Conference, last month, heading up a delegation from our International Union and joining other presidents of affiliates in the general responsibilities of the conference.

A highlight of the conference was an address on the first day by President Lyndon Johnson. It was an inspiring talk, and these are some of the things he said:

"It gives me a great deal of pleasure and pride to come here and stand with the builders of America. We share the same pride in our country's past. We hold the same great faith in our nation's future. That future depends on the sons of labor, workmen like you who roll up their sleeves and do the job.

"We are at work in this Nation, building a bigger and a better and a more prosperous America. And if anyone doubts this, you, the warriors of the progress, know the answer, because you have been there with me every step of the way. . . .

"I came here to tell you that you are the nation's strong right arm as we tackle the work ahead. We are going to break new ground in a massive housing program for the poor.

"We have submitted to the Congress blueprints for six million new homes over the next 10 years. This will wipe away, we hope, once and forever the shameful backlog of crumbling tenements and the shacks where families now live.

"Next year we have a goal of starting 300,000 new housing units and that is a pretty big order for this first year. And you are the men who must lead the way, not only to pass this legislation but to build these units.

"We are setting out now to try to find work for hundreds of thousands of men and women who have never before in their life earned a steady paycheck. You know better than anyone else the dignity of a decent job, and I know what you are doing to help open new opportunities within your own ranks. And I thank you. And I tell you that I will appreciate your doing everything you can to help us meet this vital problem, that not just confronts me as your agent and as your President and as a manager of this great nation, but that confronts all the people of this nation, because smallpox down the street works its way up to your block too.

"And poverty and homelessness and hunger and disease and crime can't be quarantined. It will get to your block too, so the hour is here and now is the time, and you are the people to help us get this job done.

"We have a program to build that better America in a climate of law and order and we are going to build it even as we meet our commitments in a world where freedom is under attack.

". . . The average American doesn't ask for much. He is entitled to equal opportunity and equal justice. His ancestors have come here from all the lands of the world seeking liberty and freedom and they are not only here to protect it but they are here to preserve it.

"And the average fellow, about all that he insists on having—and he must have a lot of drive and desire to get that—is a roof over his head. He would like to have title to it.

"Clothes to cover his naked body and the bodies of his family. Food to give him strength and sustain him as he produces a better country. A decent school for his children to attend so they can prepare themselves to be good citizens. A church to worship in where he can go and worship according to the dictates of his own conscience. And maybe a little recreation now and then. Maybe taking Molly and the babies in the car for a ride on Sunday afternoon or to a movie once in a while or to watch a television program if the politicians are not monopolizing it.

"That is about all he asks. Not much. A roof over his head, clothes on his body, food in his stomach. And that is what you builders are helping us get."

Vice President Hubert Humphrey greets General President Sal Maso as he enters the big Washington legislative conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

The importance of political action now to back up the President's program, as outlined above, was made clear in a letter I received from Al Barkan of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education recently. The COPE National Director stated:

"We are facing perhaps the toughest, most critical election of recent years. As President Meany has stated, we and the nation are confronted with a choice between 'liberalism and reaction.'

"That choice can be vitally affected by our capacity to assist liberal candidates financially, and by our ability to do so early in their campaign.

"If we are to do everything possible to re-elect incumbent liberals and to send new liberals to Capitol Hill, we must achieve our most successful COPE Voluntary Drive ever in 1968.

"For this reason, we urge your International Union to launch your COPE Dollar Drive early this year and to wage it with greater urgency than ever. Remember, the dollars we can collect and commit to our liberal friends early this year are always more potent than those that come late in the campaign.

Pension Plan, Pension Fund Requires Constant Attention to Reporting

SINCE we all desire that the Wood, Wire & Metal Lathing Industry-L.I.U. General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan grow in size as well as in financial strength, it is critically important that we all make sure that all of the reports and payments required to be made into the General Pension Fund are promptly filed and made. In order to be sure that this is done and, further, in order to be sure that there are no mistakes either in the reports or in the payments made, it is absolutely necessary that the Local Union officials carefully follow up on each job and to see that the reports are accurately filed and that full payments are made. As you can appreciate the Local Union officials are in the best position to know the number of members on each job as well as the hours worked by the members on each job.

Since credit for hours worked is given to each member who works when payments are actually made into the General Pension Fund, you are urged, for the protection of your members, to be sure that the reports are accurate and that full payments are made. If, because of a mistake or an oversight or for any other reason, members on each job are either not reported or payments not made for all of the hours worked by each member, your members' accounts will be in disorder. I am sure that you desire to protect your members as well as the members from our other Local Unions who may work within your territorial jurisdiction.

In those Local Unions which have Business Agents, then the Business Agents are able to check the reports in order to be sure that each member on each job is reported on the form and, further, that full payments are made for each member on each job for all hours worked. If the Local Union does not have a full time Business Agent, then the Local Union should designate the part time Business Agent to handle this important matter. If the Local Union does not have a full time Business Agent or a part time Business Agent, then a Local Union official should handle this matter.

I know that many of our Local Unions are doing what I am asking you to do in this report. However, it is important to set forth this reminder and also to urge the Local Unions which are not yet doing this job to do so immediately for the best interests of the members and for the best interests of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan.

SAL MASO,
General President.

President Lyndon Johnson waves to enthusiastic delegates attending the Legislative Conference. Department President C. J. Haggerty joins in the applause.

"As you know, each year a minimum quota is established for each AFL-CIO affiliate. Your COPE quota this year, based on per capita payments for 1967 is $1,750.00.

"We sincerely hope your Union will be a leader among the Internationals in this important 1968 COPE Dollar Drive.

"We are grateful for all your efforts in the past and are hopeful this year will produce the most successful Dollar Drive we've ever had."

Vice President Hubert Humphrey, whom I talked with briefly at the Legislative Conference, wrote me a letter the other day in which he urged me to remind every local union and every member of each local union that the 1968 U.S. savings bond program needs help. He had already sent a letter to every local union in the United States calling for support of the 1968 Share in Freedom Campaign, as the savings bonds program is called.

"We need an extra measure of support from organized labor," he stated in his letter to me, and he asked for my personal endorsement of the 1968 drive.

I want to assure the Vice President that the members of this International Union are behind his efforts, and I urge every member to buy bonds . . . either through payroll deductions or through purchases at your local bank.

The nation has many big jobs ahead, in the war effort and in tackling the problems at home. Buy bonds!

Sincerely and fraternally,

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

President Johnson's surprising announcement of March 30 that he will not be a candidate for re-election brought dismay to the ranks of organized labor. The President has been standard-bearer of much legislation of benefit to the working population . . . Medicare, aid to education, and programs to alleviate unemployment—to list only three.

The loss of his dedicated leadership at the end of 1968 could result in labor being without a voice in the White House and in the top ranks of the Federal Administration.

This fact gives added importance to the election of labor's friends and the defeat of labor's enemies in this year's elections. The loss of two dozen friends in Congress and their replacement by anti-union legislators could bring a serious setback to the legislative gains of recent years.

The AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) points out that the National Association of Manufacturer's, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—which are almost consistently anti-union—as well as some national magazines, are now calling for “labor law reform.” Such activities can only spell trouble and mean costly legislative representations for union leaders in Washington and the state legislatures.

The recent Legislative Conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, which I participated in, along with President Maso and others of the International Union, placed considerable emphasis on political action in this general elections year. AFL-CIO President George Meany told us that the Congressmen and Senators who support labor's legislative program deserve labor's support on election day . . . “and they will get it!”, he predicted.

Samuel Gompers' advice to “support your friends” remains “good, sound philosophy,” Meany said.

There were 4,000 delegates from the various Building and Construction Trades union attending the conference. We heard addresses by President Johnson, Vice President Hubert Humphrey and several Congressmen and Senators. Time away from the meeting hall was spent in contacting legislators on Capitol Hill.

The momentum for legislative progress has begun. I urge every member of this International Union to register as a qualified voter, if he has not already done so, and then prepare to vote in the primaries and in the general election.

I must remind, in closing that COPE needs money to carry out its program in 1968. A dollar per member is certainly a small amount to ask, when you consider the benefits to be gained.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General-Secretary-Treasurer.

Lather Judge Sworn in, in Philadelphia

The Honorable Lewis Mongelluzzo, who led the Democratic ticket in Philadelphia last November, was sworn in before a "standing room only" crowd in one of the spacious courtrooms of Philadelphia's City Hall.

The oath of office was administered to the popular and outspoken Lather-turned-Judge by the Honorable Michael J. O'Donnell (at left in picture at right) of the Common Pleas Court.

Three items worthy of special mention at this auspicious occasion were, the crowd, the presentation of a Bible to Brother Mongelluzzo by Jack Doyle, President of the Bricklayers Union No. 1 of Philadelphia, and the heart warming presentation of the judge to the court by his most charming and lovely preemptor, his wife, Rose. One line in particular took hold when Mrs. Mongelluzzo said . . . "The man I am about to present to you is closest to my heart and a friend of all the people, my husband, Lewis C. Mongelluzzo."

Brother Mongelluzzo, who is a strong advocate of C.O.P.E., has

Sidelights on the Building Trades Legislative Conference

During the four-day AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Legislative Conference in Washington, D.C., last month, our International Union held a special luncheon for our delegates to the conference, in order to talk over our special legislative goals. In the picture above are shown delegates and guests of our luncheon. At right, General President Sal Maso and General Secretary-Treasurer Earl Ferguson (shown at left rear with Martin J. Curry, business agent for Plasterers Local 10 in Boston) were guests of the Plasterers International Union at a dinner for delegates to the conference.

Johnson Calls for Legislative 'Tools' To Fight Soaring Health Costs

The government shouldn't have to pay $11 for a prescription drug that can be bought under another name for $1.25, Pres. Johnson told Congress as he asked for legislative tools to lower the "exorbitant" costs of many drugs and to hold down soaring hospital costs.

At the same time, in a broad-ranging "Health in America" message to Congress, the President asked more money for health care for children and a stepped-up program for training doctors, nurses, technicians and other health care specialists.

He asked expanded research, more voluntary assistance in family planning, bigger grants to state and local health agencies, and a doubling of funds for regional medical centers to reduce the toll of the "killer" ailments—heart disease, cancer and stroke.

It was the section on drug costs, however, that pitted the President against the powerful drug manufacturers' lobby.

Government Overpays

The government pays out millions of dollars in reimbursement for the price of prescription drugs under a variety of federally-supported programs, including medicaid, medicare, and child health. And sometimes, Johnson said, it overpays.

He cited recent surveys showing that 12 drugs of the same type sell at retail for prices ranging from $1.25 to $11 for 30 tablets.

"The taxpayer should not be forced to pay $11 if the $1.25 drug is equally effective," the President insisted. "To do this would permit robbery of private citizens with public approval."

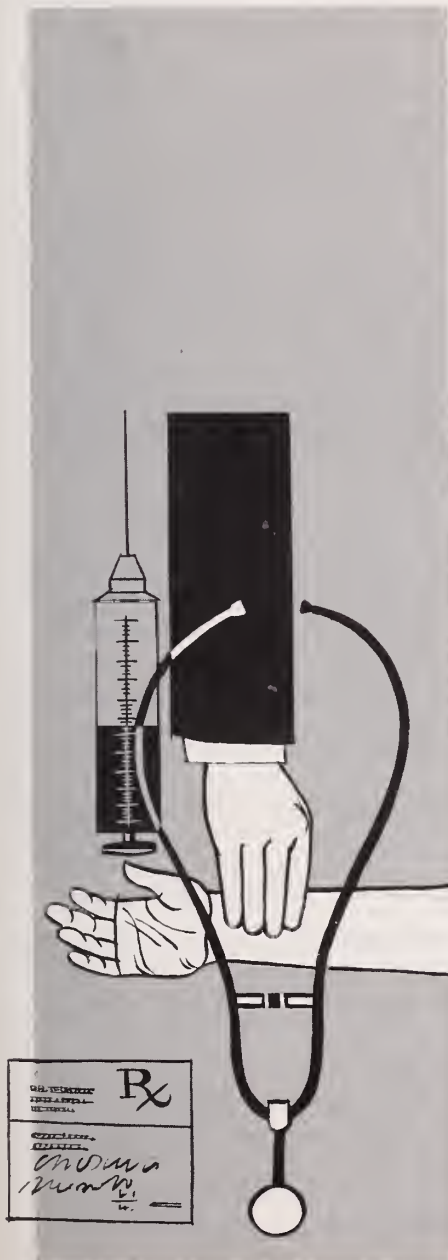

Johnson asked authority for the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare to set a "reasonable cost range to govern reimbursement for drugs" provided under federal programs.

He said a physician could prescribe a more expensive drug if he insisted—but reimbursement would be limited to the ceiling price set by the government.

To free physicians from dependence on drug company salesmen for information, Johnson sought legislation authorizing the government to prepare an official "compendium" of drugs, in cooperation with manufacturers, physicians and pharmacists.

It would include "complete and accurate information about prescription drugs—use and dosage, warnings, manufacturer, generic and brand names, and facts about their safety and effectiveness.”

The President cited “sobering” estimates that by 1975, payments for general hospital services will be 250 percent higher than in 1965—more than 10 times the general increase in living costs.

He urged a number of voluntary and cooperative steps to reduce unnecessary hospitalization.

Johnson said the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare will begin extensive tests of “incentives” to control the cost of hospital care, and he asked Congress to authorize new methods of paying hospital bills under federal programs.

At present, the government pays the actual cost of the hospital services plus a fee to the hospital—comparable to a “cost-plus” contract with industry.

“We must find ways to encourage efficiency and penalize waste,” the President said. The White House indicated that payments might be limited to the “average” cost of hospital care—penalizing inefficient hospitals. But a hospital which provided equal services for below-average costs would be able to share the savings with the government.

Infant Mortality

Overall, in his message, the President put heavy stress on “the inexcusably high rate of infant mortality” and noted that among poor families it was double the national average. “In certain city ghettos and pockets of rural poverty, the rate was seven times that in surrounding suburban areas.”

He called for a $58 million increase in appropriations for maternal and child health care programs.

To meet the health needs of poor children, Johnson asked Congress for $1.4 billion for child care services under medicaid and other federal programs—an increase of $215 million.

He urged continuation of medical

Equal Opportunity Deadline Extended

We have been notified by the Union Reporting Program of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in Washington that the deadline for filing Report EEO-3 has been extended to April 30.

Originally, the deadline placed upon local unions for filing EEO-3 was December 31, 1967. This deadline was extended to March 30 in an earlier directive, and now it has been moved to April 30.

All unions covered by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which have 100 or more members, are required to file EEO Report No. 3, which questions union practices in employment.

For detailed information, we refer local union officers and members to Pages 8 and 9 of the October, 1967, issue of The Lather.

Government Must Be Major Housing Lender, Canadian Labour Congress Tells Cabinet

The government must become the major lender for housing if needs are to be met, the Canadian Labour Congress said recently. In its annual submission to the cabinet, the CLC, which is presently conducting a campaign directing attention to housing needs, devoted particular attention to the subject.

The memorandum forecast final figures for 1967 would fall far short of the 190,000 reported by the Economic Council to be necessary. A massive investment was needed in both private and public housing.

"The spectacle of a slow-down and actual decline in housing activity during periods of rapid economic growth and their attendant tight credit conditions, such as we have experienced in recent years, must be ended. If housing is to be regarded by private financial institutions as an attractive investment field only when conditions are poor in other areas, then its development cannot be left in their hands.

"We believe that all Canadians have a right to decent housing and that governments have an obligation to ensure that it is provided."

The only beneficiaries of the recent raising of interest rates were financial institutions.

"Only those earning in excess of $7,500 a year can now qualify for the maximum NHA insured loan of $18,000 and it is doubtful if adequate housing at a cost much less than this can be found in urban areas," the CLC said. "In effect, the average Canadian wage earner has been priced out of the current housing market. We are not talking here of those with incomes low enough to qualify for public housing, inadequate as the public housing program may be. Rather, we are speaking of those with a supposedly substantial regular income. Further increases in the interest rate or even a slight decline will do little to aid them. The only solution is for the federal government to enter the field as the primary lender at rates substantially below the present market level."

Beyond this, major projects should be undertaken in the fields of public housing, land assembly and urban planning. The 11 per cent sales tax on building materials should be removed.

Eliminate English, French Economic Differences

Elimination of economic differences is essential to establishing equality between French and English-speaking Canadians, the Canadian Labour Congress has said. The labour organization, in a submission to the government, supported recommendations made in the first report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

The CLC asked for action to eliminate "those differences in economic opportunity and in living standards which have created a chasm between English and French-speaking Canada, a chasm which it is essential to bridge if Canada is in fact to remain a single political entity."

CLC Protests Delays In Hours-of-Work Effort

Unwarranted delays are being experienced in some areas in the implementation of federal legislation covering hours of work, the Canadian Labour Congress told the government recently.

Deferments allowed by the government extended in one case to three and a half years after the act came into force. Unwillingness to enforce the act was a major cause of the shipping strike last summer, the CLC charged. Two Commissions had been appointed to investigate deferments and in one instance—Newfoundland shipping—provisions of the code would not be finally implemented until 1974—eight and a half years after the act came into force.

CLC Calls Attention To Atlantic Provinces

Establishment of a special government agency or department to deal with the economic problems of the Atlantic provinces has been proposed by the Canadian Labour Congress. In its annual submission to the gov-

CASE NO. 16—RESOLUTIONS:

Resolutions 28-29

The Executive Council postponed action on these two resolutions dealing with the 50-50 law. In order to receive added information and reactions, therefore the Executive Council will take these resolutions up at its next regular meeting when it hopes to be more fully informed. Until then, Section 199 remains in effect.

Resolution 37

The Executive Council voted to non-concur in this resolution dealing with attendance at State Council meetings, but urges attendance at State Council meetings.

Resolution 42

The Executive Council voted to concur in this resolution dealing with the paying of per capita tax paid two months prior to the International convention.

Resolution 43

Since the Trustees of the Funeral Benefit Fund have been advised by the Actuary that it would be actuarially unsound to reduce the age from 65 years of age to 60 years of age, insofar as funeral benefits are concerned, the Trustees recommended that the age not be reduced and therefore the Executive Council voted to non-concur in this resolution because it would be actuarially unsound to do so.

Resolution 46

The Executive Council voted to non-concur in this resolution dealing with sheet rock (Dry-Wall).

Resolution 48

The Executive Council voted to non-concur in this resolution because it is actuarially unsound and in order to raise the death benefits to $750.00 an increase of monies into the Funeral Benefit Fund is needed.

CASE NO. 17—THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL VOTED TO CONTRIBUTE $50.00 TO THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL IN ANSWER TO THEIR REQUEST.

CASE NO. 18—THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL VOTED TO CONTRIBUTE $50.00 TO THE CHILDREN'S ASTHMA RESEARCH INSTITUTE HOSPITAL IN ANSWER TO THEIR REQUEST.

CASE NO. 19—APPEAL OF VICE PRESIDENT C. H. WHITE ON HIS DISMISSAL BY PRESIDENT SAL MASO AND ALSO HIS REQUEST TO THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL TO REVERSE THE ACTION OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT AND REINSTATE HIM TO HIS JOB OF INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZER.

The Executive Council after hearing all the evidence and after a lengthy discussion on the case, decided to deny the appeal of Vice President C. H. White.

CASE NO. 20—REQUEST OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL TO HEAR FROM INTERNATIONAL REPRESENTATIVE ROBERT GEORGINE ON THE CEILING SYSTEM DECISION.

Brother Robert Georgine, International Representative, appeared before the Executive Council and explained the final decision on Ceiling Systems and also brought the Council up to date on metal studs.

ernment the CLC drew particular attention to the situation confronting the eastern provinces as a result of the threatened Dosco shut-down, railway lay-offs. C.N.R. plans to abandon Newfoundland rail service and government cut-backs including delay in construction of the Northumberland Causeway.

It was pointed out that per capita income in the Atlantic Provinces is 25 to 30 per cent lower than the national average and unemployment rates are consistently higher.

The memorandum said:

"The people of the Atlantic region have every right to their fair share of this country's economic wealth but, in our view, present programs and policies are inadequate to ensure that such a highly desirable state of affairs will ever be realized.

"The economic problems of the Atlantic provinces are such that they will not yield to anything short of a massive program of co-ordinated and comprehensively planned regional economic development.

"To this end we suggest that the federal government take the initiative by establishing a single agency or department of government charged with the sole responsibility of planning, and subsequently implementing, comprehensive programs of regional economic development."

TAX TICKLES

Being that time of the year again, when we have sweated through the forms and are waiting for the sentences to be handed down, the following humorous incidents, all true, seem appropriate. All of these are from the files of the Internal Revenue Service.

An IRS office received this message on the reverse side of a picture post card showing a horse race:
Dear Sir:

Due to unforeseen circumstances I will be a little late with my tax payment but intend to get lucky real soon.

I know you're rooting for me.

A guy named Joe

There is the rather defensive attitude on the part of some taxpayers. Said one taxpayer: "Income tax is a game of hide and seek. The tax collector seeks my hide."

An Internal Revenue agent in a district office answered the telephone:

"Can you tell me how much tax I owe this year?" a woman asked.

"How much income did you have?" queried the agent.

"Well, of all the nerve," said the lady, and hung up.

An IRS office received the following request and explanation from a taxpayer:

"Dear Sir:

I respectfully request a thirty-day extension in which to file my income tax return.

My year old son ate my W-2 form and I will have to get a duplicate."

One taxpayer called his local IRS office and asked if he could claim three taverns as exemptions since they depend on him for a living.

While assisting a taxpayer an IRS employee asked, "how much of your salary was withheld?" "Sir," he said, "you must be kidding. I don't withhold anything, my wife takes it all."

"So you're lost, little man? Why didn't you hang onto your mother's skirt?"

Youngster: "Couldn't reach it."

The pastor of the church was telephoned by the Internal Revenue Service, the caller explaining that the IRS was auditing the return of a parishioner. "He has listed a $500 donation. Did he make this donation?" the IRS man asked. The clergyman hesitated a moment before replying: "He will . . . he will!"

The girls were talking about their dates, the first explained: "Mine was terrible, really terrible. He not only lied to me about the size of his yacht, but he made me row!"

research at $1.5 billion a year, citing the dramatic accomplishments of past research.

The President proposed a consolidation and expansion of five health manpower programs which are due to expire this year. They include both aid to medical and other health care schools and expanded loan and scholarship programs for students.

In other areas, the message called for development of accident rescue programs in states and communities, utilizing or adapting techniques developed in combat. Johnson also established a high-level Council on Physical Fitness & Sports, to be headed by Vice Pres. Humphrey.

Overall, he said, the federal government now pays $14 billion of the nearly $50 billion a year spent for health services in the United States.

Refusing Non-Union Job No Bar to Compensation

A UNION member's refusal to work for non-union wages is not sufficient grounds for denying unemployment compensation. This was a precedent-setting ruling by the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Board of Review in a case involving a member of the Laborers Union.

The worker was earning $3.35 an hour on a union construction job when he was laid off. When the Pennsylvania State Employment Service referred him to a construction job paying $1.75 an hour, the union member turned it down. Later, when he filed his application for unemployment compensation, it was rejected on the grounds that he had refused to accept "suitable employment without good cause." The decision was appealed and the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review ruled in the worker's favor. It held that a 50 per cent cut in weekly wages could hardly be characterized as suitable employment.

Local 31 Secretary-Treasurer Passes

Brother Alfred A. Paille, who had served Local 31, Holyoke, Massachusetts as its Secretary-Treasurer for 45 years, died at the Providence Hospital in Holyoke in August, 1967. Brother Paille was 73, and had been a lifetime resident of Holyoke, Mass., doing lathing work for a number of construction companies in the area. He retired from the trade several years ago. His passing will be mourned by all who knew him, and heartfelt sympathy is extended to his family.

Alfred A. Paille

TIME GONE BY

*In our time we said, The Lord's prayer
And bowed our head
And had our flag touched the ground
There were worried frowns from all around
In that day and age nothing was worse
But in this generation, just the reverse
Old Glory is spat on, burned and shredded Just stop! And think! Where are we headed?
Had our forefathers had such little regard
She wouldn't be flying in our yard
And as long as we protect her, We'll always be
And our land will flourish forever free
True we're having troubles of our own
But by and large they will have flown
And once again we'll have harmony
Among us all, In our Country.*

—Brother Lester Anderson

NUMBER 5

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Many members of our International Union may not yet be aware of the great strides we are making in streamlining our field organization for the big job of organizing and representation ahead of us.

Since our 26th Convention, last year, I have moved steadily ahead on our plan to reorganize the activities of our International Representatives. These men are no longer tied down to the problems of a particular region, but they are able now to go wherever they are needed, troubleshooting anywhere in the United States or Canada. Each man still is able to look after the people he knows best, but he must no longer stand idly by while some other International Representative needs help elsewhere.

In addition, he is assisted by a growing number of Deputy International Representatives. We have now reached the point, with the exception of a few areas, where a sufficient number of these deputies have been appointed to serve the LIU's present needs. These deputies have received assignments and will continue to receive assignments which will lighten the load of the International Representatives.

To take matters a step further, we are also doing what we can to streamline the work of some of our local unions by encouraging and assisting some to merge their administrations and thus afford fulltime business agents.

It doesn't make sense for two or more small unions in a small geographic area to go their separate ways, having separate office operations but no fulltime representative, when they could get together, form a merged organization, and put a fulltime man on the streets handling day-to-day problems.

In recent months Deputy International Representative Anthony Siino has worked under my direction to achieve two such mergers in the State of Florida. In one case, Local 214 of Tampa and Local 456 of St. Petersburg merged to become Local 561. In the other case, Local 457 of Vero Beach and 455 of West Palm Beach merged to keep the number 455. Both of these merged unions now have full time business agents in the field, where they might not have afforded one before. I want to offer my congratulations to all concerned in this activity, and I want to urge other local unions which might be in similar situations to give serious thought to possible action.

I want to remind the membership that this building up of our grass roots strength is doubly important and because of our current efforts to carry out the mandate of Resolution No. 18 adopted by the 26th convention last year.

That resolution, you may remember, authorized the establishment of a division in the LIU to organize and represent workers who produce or distribute or service products related to or used in the lathing industry.

To broaden our organizing program to take in this area of the industry we must have active local leaders working with our International staff to achieve success.

I am happy to report that employees of the L. B. Foster plant in Illinois have become members of Unit 701 of our new Lathing Industry Division. Local people, working with International Representative Robert Georgine, have doubled this unit's initial membership in the short time since it has been organized.

There is a great potential for new members among the wholesalers, suppliers, etc. of our industry, and I urge the craftsmen-members who deal with many of these unorganized people every day to start talking LIU membership and to do what they can to carry out the mandate of Resolution No. 18.

I need not tell you the building and construction industry is going through a period of uncertainty. Now, as never before, we should be promoting the use of our goods and services. When there is talk of rebuilding ghettos and of rebuilding city facilities of all types, we must be reminding city fathers that new structures must be built to last. They must be constructed of lath and plaster.

LIU has been very active in the work of the National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering. I participated in a meeting of the Board of Governors of the National Bureau on March 9, and I'll be meeting with the board again this month at Myrtle Beach, Florida, to pursue further our program for the industry.

At present we are trying to devise ways of increasing the income of the National Bureau, so that the organization can have more funds to promote lathing and plastering on a large scale.

This is a joint labor-management activity. I join President Eddie Leonard of the Plasterers and President Tom Murphy of the Bricklayers in discussions with three management representatives—Tom McClone, Bill Goodsen, George Brueggeman, and Joe Conroy.

The primary concern at the moment is accomplishing among the Bricklayers and Plasterers what we have already achieved in the LIU—that is, a contractual arrangement with management for the distribution of funds on a regular basis to the national and local promotional bureaus. As you probably know, the standard LIU Working Agreement calls for the allocation of 3c per hour by the employer to the promotional fund. One-half cent of this goes to the National Bureau, and the balance goes to local promotional program.

The main purpose of this program is to advertise and promote the wider use of lathing systems and plastering, and, in the long run, this promotes more work and more income for the members of the various union members in the trade.

While this activity is being pursued, we are also involved with the other Building Trades in pushing a Bill through Congress which will amend Section 302 (c) of the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947 (Taft-Hartley) to permit employer contributions to trust funds established for the purposes of joint industry promotion programs or joint committees or boards empowered to interpret provisions of collective bargaining agreements.

This is House Resolution No. 15198, a Bill introduced by Representative Carl Perkins of Kansas. It was favorably reported by the House Committee on Education and Labor on March 26. It then went to the House floor for consideration under suspension of the rules, April 1. Such action required a two-thirds vote, and this move lost out by a vote of 219 to 150. However, the Bill now goes back to the Rules Committee, and action—we hope, favorable—will eventually come to pass.

Before I close my report, I should like to call the members' attention to one other matter: I recently sent a notice to all International Representatives advising them of the policy of the LIU regarding the retention of legal services.

Long, drawn-out court actions can be costly to local unions, unless they are on firm ground. Your International Union has some of the best legal counsel in the country, and our General Officers are experienced in many legal matters which are unfamiliar to local union leaders.

Any time that an International Representative, local union, state, district, or provincial council makes a request for the retention of legal services or intends to initiate litigation, it must first be submitted to me as General President with a complete and detailed report concerning the conditions and the reasons for the request. I will then determine if legal services are necessary and to what extent. I will confer with our legal department, and, after we have studied the matter, we will then advise of what action to take.

Our union has the services of excellent legal counsel Wilderman, Markowitz and Kirschner of Philadelphia at the General Office, and local, state, district and provincial groups can take full advantage of these services and avoid legal entanglements by carrying out this established policy.

Sincerely and fraternally,

SAL MASO,

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

Two steps which might be taken to ease the problems of city ghetto residents are these:

- Congress should pass the truth-in-lending and similar consumer bills which will prevent sharp operators from taking advantage of the poor.
- Action must be taken to take people off the welfare rolls and place them in self-supporting jobs.

There is no question in my mind—and, I am sure, in the minds of others—that Negroes and whites alike in city ghettos have been exploited by pawnbrokers, high-interest, so-called “discount” suit and furniture salesmen, and tenement landlords. That has been the sad state of affairs among the poor since civilization began. Poverty and lack-of-education often go hand in hand, and the poor often do not know what they are signing when they’re putting their signatures to notes, contracts, and mortgages.

The sharpies are going to exploit the illiterate just as far as the law allows, and laws are needed to require that they spell out what they are charging on term payments. There are bills before Congress to expose the dishonest practices of some businessmen, and these bills should be passed.

There is also another area of deception which should be controlled through legislation—this is the home improvement industry. Far too many low and middle-income people are signing up for home improvements with scab, fly-by-night, firms, and they’re being fleeced in high interest contracts.

There is before Congress Senate Joint Resolution 130 which would “authorize and direct the Federal Trade Commission to conduct a comprehensive investigation of unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the home improvement industry, to expand its enforcement activities in this area, and for other purposes.”

This legislation is needed now. People are promised top-grade ceiling and wall covering, but get substitutes instead.

Now, as to the second step which might be taken for the people of city ghettos, the U.S. Department of Labor has already laid plans to move 114,000 people off welfare rolls into training programs and jobs in the next 12 months. This will be accomplished under a Work Incentive Program authorized by the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act.

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz estimates that the Labor Department will have 32,000 men, women, and out-of-school youths over 16 into job training or jobs by the end of the 1968 fiscal year, June 30. In the 12 months after that, he expects an additional 82,000 in training.

Many millions are affected by the current ghetto disturbances, but these two steps, if adequately taken, would be in the right direction.

Before closing, I want to remind all of the members of the crucial primary elections in many states. Every member of LIU should be registered and should vote in this vital general election year.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General-Secretary-Treasurer.

Toronto Local Expresses Appreciation

In a recent letter, printed on this page, appreciation is expressed for the issuance of a charter to the newly-formed Local 562 in Toronto, Ontario. Officers of Local 562 and International Representatives are pictured below.

International Representative J. L. Connolly, Business Agent Frank Fior, President Danny Tullio, Business Agent Gus Simone, and Vice-President A. H. Burton.

March 19, 1968.

Sal Maso,
General President,
Lathers Building,
6530 New Hampshire Ave.,
Takoma Park, Md. 20012.

Dear Sir & Brother:

We wish to take this opportunity on behalf of new Local 562, to extend our most sincere thanks, firstly, to you and secondly, to all who helped to finalize and settle the problem which we were confronted with. Special thanks to Vice President A. H. Burton and we also wish to congratulate him for a masterful and brave effort on conducting all our affairs wisely. It cannot go without saying that without your understanding and co-operation we could not have arrived at the conclusion which we now have.

The proof of your wisdom will be witnessed in the forthcoming editions of the Lather where it may be observed by all members.

We also wish to extend our most sincere thanks and appreciation to International Representative James Connolly.

In closing, we wish to extend to you our fullest appreciation once again for your most understanding co-operation.

Fraternally yours,
LATHERS' UNION LOCAL 562,
Frank Fior,
Financial Secretary.

Free Water In Plaster Resists Fire

Small amounts of free water found in plaster have a significant effect on its resistance to fire, according to recent Bureau of Standards tests. It has been known for years that the chemically-trapped moisture of plaster, freed under the intense heat of fire, has a cooling, fire-resistant value. This accounts in large measure for plaster's unique ability to stop fire. However, the part played by water contained in plaster which is not chemically combined with the gypsum has been less well known.

In the tests, lightweight aggregate gypsum plaster was used. When applied, it is between one-third to one-half water. After drying, free moisture content drops to as low as one percent or less.

The amount of moisture in a cured wall will vary with the temperature and relative humidity of the surrounding air.

Samples of the gypsum plaster, in varying thicknesses and in various stages of drying, were fire-tested in small furnaces.

Results indicated surprisingly, that there was little change in fire endurance during early drying stages, when the greatest percentage loss takes place. Toward the end of the drying period, however, very small changes in moisture content made large differences in fire resistance.

Fire endurance was about the same from 35 per cent of free moisture content to about 6 per cent. After that point, the endurance began to decline rapidly, with a sudden drop at moisture levels of 1 per cent or less.

These tests were not run to determine fire resistance, as much as to set up new standards for rating fire resistance of plaster. The Bureau of Standards points out that any fire resistance ratings for plaster must take into consideration how dry the material is, before a realistic fire rating can be assigned. The recommendation of the Bureau is for testing only after plaster has dried out thoroughly, which takes about 15 to 20 days for each inch of plaster, with both sides exposed to air in normal room conditions.

Prospective home owners and apartment dwellers are urged to check walls and ceilings carefully. "Look for walls that are smooth and solid, with clean, straight corners and joints."

Manufacturer Pushes Lath-Plaster Walls

A publicity campaign is now being conducted by Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., New York City, to encourage home purchasers and apartment dwellers to look for and specify plaster walls.

A recent news release to the general press said, "If you are buying or building your home, you are in the fortunate position of being able to select the type of walls you want. In most well-built homes, you'll find plaster and lath construction. Sturdy, seamless and incombustible, plaster retards noise, is easy to decorate and repair and provides long-term value per dollar. Its thickness permits versatility in wall decor, too, since there's no need to resort to special hooks and hangers, which often have to be used on walls constructed of substitute materials."

LATHERS NEEDED

We have word from Local 562, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, that journeymen lathers are needed in their city. Any members interested in working in the Toronto area are urged to get in touch with the Local 562 business agents: Gus Simone, 247-2883; Frank Fior, CH 9-1773—or contact the Local 562 office at 789-1903.

Labor Urged to Back Its Friends

Statement By AFL-CIO President

The congressmen, senators—and President—who supported labor's legislative program for the nation deserve labor's support on Election Day, AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany declared.

And they will get it, he predicted. "If we do not believe in supporting our friends at election time," he told delegates to the building trades legislative conference, "then we should stay away from the legislative halls of the state and nation."

Meany read the record of four years of legislative progress in education, health care, minimum wages, civil rights, social security, pollution control, consumer protection and a host of other major accomplishments.

"Some refer to it as the Johnson program," he said. "Some say it is the AFL-CIO program. I don't care what they call it. I know we have made progress."

"But I do know that we could not have made that progress without the leadership of the man in the White House."

Samuel Gompers' advice to "support your friends" remains "good, sound philosophy," Meany said.

To the applause of the 4,000 delegates, he declared:

"I don't think we are going to turn our back on a friend just because he has a difficult task to perform at a time when he needs his friends more than ever. So come next fall, I am convinced that labor will discharge its obligations."

Meany blasted the sniping at Pres. Johnson by those seeking to make political capital of "the war that nobody wants."

The "real hawks," Meany noted, want to drop "a few hydrogen bombs" to end the war.

"Well, of course it would end the war. It might also end the world," Meany said.

Equally unacceptable, he added, are the views of "the fellow who was laboriously trying to explain to the American people his program for honorable surrender on the installment plan."

And in an apparent reference to Richard Nixon, Meany commented: "Then there is the fellow who aspires to be President. He is going to end the war. He has a secret plan to end the war but he won't tell us. Now, that's pretty mean."

It's easy, Meany said, to criticize from the sidelines, to make campaign promises, "when you don't have the responsibility."

But the fact remains, he stressed, that the United States has offered to negotiate, to halt all military activities when negotiation is accepted, but "the response from Hanoi has been no, no, no."

Meany opened his talk to the building trades conference with a vigorous affirmation of the AFL-CIO's vitality and effectiveness.

As a federation of 129 "autonomous and independent" unions, Meany stressed, the AFL-CIO flourishes when its affiliates flourish, fails when its national and international unions fail.

It must work to raise the standards of all Americans, not just its own members, because "no one segment of society can long profit at the expense of others."

While the AFL-CIO is not a community organization, "it does have concern for the community and must have, because that is where its members live."

And while labor is not a political organization, Meany stressed that "it must be politically active" because its goals and ideals are affected by legislation "and this means politicians."

Despite critics who say labor is "too powerful" to complain that "we are not doing too well," Meany said, "we are still going to be moving forward in doing our job for our people and for our country."

The City Worker's Budget: $9,200 A Year How Far Will It Go?

IT takes over $9,191 a year for a four-person city worker's family to maintain a "moderate standard of living." This budget estimate of the U.S. Department of Labor for late 1966 would be somewhat greater today as a result of steadily rising living costs.

This family budget figure represents neither a "minimum" nor "poverty" level nor a level of "luxury" but rather a "modest but adequate standard of living." While $9,191 a year is considerably higher than the average family's income, some of the detailed items in the budget will seem meager and inadequate to many people.

The $9,191 family budget cost is national average for a four-person city worker's family, based on detailed cost estimates for 39 large metropolitan areas and several small cities. The cost varies, depending on such factors as whether the family rents or owns its home, the age of the children, the climate in the area and local taxes. The budget cost varies from city to city and between large metropolitan areas and smaller cities; it is somewhat higher for homeowner families than renters and in large urban areas than in small cities.

This city worker's family budget, published by the government towards the end of 1967, is a continuation of the Labor Department's series of such budgets. The Department calculated such a budget for various cities in the late 1940s and early 1950s, again in 1959 and now in 1966. The budget cost for a four-person family increased from $4,200 in 1951 to $6,100 in 1959 and to $8,700 in 1966 (for renter families in the 18 major cities included in each of the three studies) and nearly $9,200 for both renter and homeowner families in 39 metropolitan areas and several small cities.

Most of these increases in budget costs reflect rises in the standard of living—such as upgrading food standards, an increase in restaurant meals, a rise in auto ownership and an increase in home ownership.

The increases in budget costs also reflect increased prices and increases in federal, state and local income taxes and social security taxes.

In addition to the moderate standard-of-living budget, the Labor Department will issue later in 1968 two additional budgets for a four-person family: A lower standard-of-living budget representing minimum adequacy and a higher standard of living budget reflecting a more comfortable level and manner of living. A retired couple's budget, at a moderate standard of living, also is being developed. The Labor Department expects to estimate the costs of these family budgets annually.

Only about a third of all American families—regardless of their size, composition or age of the head of the family—had money incomes of $9,000 or more in 1966, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

The age of the family head influences the family's income. Half of all families, with the head of the family between the ages of 35 and 54, had an income of $8,700 a year or more in 1966.

Among important factor is whether the head of the family has a year-round full-time job. Half of all families headed by a full-time employed person between 35 and 54 year of age had an income of $9,475 or more.

Some of these families are headed by business executives, self-employed doctors, lawyers, dentists and businessmen. A large percentage of families achieve such incomes as a result of working wives. Some families are able to achieve the moderate standard of living through the moonlighting of the family head.

As a result, the Labor Department's family budget for 1966 represents the general living standards of many city worker families and the aspirations of others.

However, the budget also points up the fact that many workers are not now paid enough to maintain moderate family living standards. The wages of a great many workers today clearly fall short of the income required to support a moderate standard of living as defined by the U.S. Department of Labor.

What the Budget Provides

Food

The budget permits the family to spend $2,143 a year (or $41 a week) for food, both at home and away from home.

The weekly grocery budget of $35 provides about 3 quarts of milk per day. The family has 17½ pounds of meat, poultry and fish a week or about one-half pound per person each day.

More than 2 dozen eggs (27) are used by the family in a week's time, in breakfast and cooking and baking. The family consumes 9 pounds of citrus fruits and tomatoes and 8½ pounds of potatoes a week. Twenty-five pounds of other vegetables and fruits are also eaten by the family each week. The family uses about one-half pound of coffee a week.

The family goes out to dinner together less than once a month. The two children in addition buy lunch at school every other day, for a total of 137 meals, while the husband usually takes his lunch but buys one and a half meals a week at work (82 meals).

Housing

The moderate family budget provides an average of $2,214 for housing. Of this amount $481 is set aside for homefurnishing and household operations. In allocating the rest of the housing budget, it is assumed that three-fourths of the families of this type own a home, with the remaining one-fourth apartment or house renters. The costs of home ownership ($1,893) are higher than rental costs ($1,255).

The renter family has a standard shelter, whether apartment or house, consisting of a five-room unfurnished unit in sound condition, with hot and cold running water, central or other installed heating, and located with easy access to community facilities. For the renter family, the budget allows about $105 a month for rent, including heat and utilities.

The home-owner family cost is calculated for a five or six-room house, with one or one-and-a-half baths that meets the same standards as described above for rental units. The monthly costs of about $158 include mortgage, principal and interest payments. The family is assumed to have bought the house seven years ago with a 15-year first mortgage representing 75 percent of the purchase price. The national average price paid by the family for their house in 1960-61 was $14,480. Taxes, insurance and allowances for repairs and replacement costs are contained in the housing cost. The budget also includes normal utility bills such as heating fuel, water, electricity, gas and refuse disposal.

The replacement of house furnishings is assigned to the housing budget. Since the husband and wife have been married for 15 years, all major furnishings are assumed to be owned by the family and the budget allocates funds only for replacement.

The family purchases one refrigerator and one range every 13 years. Electrical equipment and appliances, such as a vacuum cleaner, washing machine, toaster and iron, are replaced on the average of once every 10 years. Allowances also are made for towels, sheets, pillow cases, shades and curtains, rugs, living, dining room and bedroom furniture, sewing machine, air conditioner, light bulbs and lamps, lawn mower and dishes.

The housing budget also includes household operations, telephone and postage. The purchase of detergents, spray starch, floor wax, scouring pads and powder, paper napkins, toilet tissue and launderette service also are provided.

Transportation

The family budget provides an average of $815 (or $68 a month) for transportation. However, families with cars are allotted much more than those without—$860 a year compared to $151. Family auto ownership is related to size, location and characteristics of the community. Four out of five families of this type own automobiles in Boston, Chicago, New York and Philadelphia, and 95 to 100 percent ownership of cars exists in other cities.

With the $860 a year allowance, the family buys a two-year old used car every four years and pays for its upkeep. About 9,000 miles are traveled each year in the family automobile, using approximately 12 gallons of gasoline a week and two quarts of oil a month. The automobile owner family is also allotted limited rides on public transportation, including school fares.

The $151 a year budget for non-owners of automobiles has an allowance for 442 or 8½ rides a week for local public transportation and 148 school bus fares. These figures, though, include families who walk to work and school or are provided with some automobile transportation other than their own car, such as a company car or car pool. The $151 allowance includes a figure of over $60 a year to be spent on out of city transportation, allowing a short trip once a year by the entire family.

Clothing

The four members of the family are provided with a total of $756 for clothing. The husband, wife, son and daughter individually spend about the same amount of money for clothes in a year's period. The clothing budget allows each family member to periodically buy coats, rainwear, suits, slacks, shirts, socks, underwear, shoes, rubbers, hats, gloves, etc. The budget also includes cleaning and pressing expenses. The following illustrates the items allowed.

The husband buys a year-round weight suit every four years and a tropical weight suit every 12 years. He buys two work slacks and one dress pants each year. A jacket or sport coat is bought every two years. The husband buys one pair of street shoes every year and one pair of workshoes every two years.

The wife buys about two street dresses and two blouses a year. One sweater and one pair of slacks each year are also allotted. She buys 13 pairs of stockings a year.

The 13-year old son is allowed to buy three slacks and five sport shirts each year. Only one sweater and one sport coat or jacket is bought each year. Three pairs of street shoes and one pair of sneakers are allotted each year.

The budget permits the 8-year old daughter to buy three dresses and one blouse a year. She is bought a heavyweight coat every other year in colder climates and a lightweight coat every three years. One skirt, one pair of slacks and two pairs of street shoes are bought every year.

Personal Care

The budget provides $214 a year for the family's personal care. The husband gets one haircut every other week while the son has his hair cut once a month. The wife is permitted a shampoo and set every three months and a haircut every four months. She is allowed a permanent wave once a year. Soap, toothpaste, shaving cream, face powder, shampoo, home permanent kit refills, cleansing tissue and sanitary supplies also are included.

Medical Care

The medical care allowance amounts to $468 annually and assumes a family group insurance contract has been obtained through the husband's place of employment. The cost of the plan is determined by the following proportions of families: 30 percent paying the full cost of their insurance; 26 percent paying half of the cost; and 44 percent making no contributions (the entire cost being paid by the employer). The medical contract used provides full hospital coverage for 70 days care in a semi-private room, all supplies and ancillary services normally provided and surgical benefits.

Each member of the family can visit the doctor three times a year at his office and have his teeth checked about once a year. The budget provides allowance for 16 prescriptions to be filled a year. Fillings, extractions, cleaning of the teeth, examinations for glasses, eyeglasses and vitamins are all included in the medical care allocation.

Other Family Consumption

Family leisure items, called "other family consumption," amount to $719 a year. The family receives home delivery of one newspaper while spending $15.10 on magazines and $18.75 on books other than school. Each of the children goes to the movies once a month, while the parents go once every three months. The family purchases a radio every three years and a television set every nine years. Five phonograph records are purchased each year. The budget allows for the purchase of about eight packs of cigarettes and one and a half cigars a week. A six-pack of beer can be bought twice a month. Schoolbooks, supplies and tuition are allotted $60 a year.

Other Costs

Other costs, consisting of gifts, contributions and life insurance, amount to $413 a year. The family sets aside 3.5 percent of the total family consumption, about $256, toward gifts and contributions. Gifts and contributions include Christmas, birthday and other presents to persons outside the immediate family, as well as contributions to religious, welfare, medical, educational, and other organizations. Life insurance for the husband costing $160 is also included in the estimate of the budget.

Occupational Expenses

Occupational expenses average about $80 from the family budget. The allocation includes union, business and professional association dues, licenses, tools and special equipment other than clothing required for the job and non-reimbursed costs for travel.

Social Security and Taxes

Total taxes and social security payments amounted to approximately $1,369. Rates are determined as required by the level of the total budget. Social Security at 4.2 percent of $6,600 amounts to $277. State disability payments are averaged out to $12 a year. Federal income tax comes to $976 for this family and state and local income and capitation taxes averaged $104. This does not include sales taxes, which are counted as part of the goods purchased.

Law-Breaking Employers Behind Attacks on NLRB

The employers who are the most abusive in criticizing the National Labor Relations Board are the same ones who engage in "repeated and crass" violations of the law it administers, the AFL-CIO told Congress.

Criticisms from such employers "are not, in our judgment, entitled to serious consideration," Thomas E. Harris, AFL-CIO associate general counsel, testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.), is holding hearings into charges by conservative lawmakers and some employers that the board has exceeded its congressional authority.

There is no legislation before the subcommittee. And ordinarily the Senate Labor Committee has jurisdiction over matters relating to the NLRB.

However, the subcommittee's lead witness, Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), co-author of the Landrum-Griffin Act, took the occasion to call for replacing the NLRB with a "labor court."

His labor court proposal is being pushed by employer organizations which have indicated, that they plan a major legislative attack on unions if the 1968 elections bring in a more conservative Congress.

Harris pointed to southeastern textile firms as "prime examples" of employers who are "most vituperative" in criticizing the board while at the same time violating the law by denying workers their rights.

Some of these companies, he said, have repeatedly been found guilty by the board and courts of violations that "most frequently take the form of discharging employees for union membership and activity."

These cases "do not involve any fine-spun issue of whether the board is misinterpreting the statute or failing to follow the intention of Congress," Harris declared, adding:

"They simply involve deliberate lawlessness by some very large corporations."

Harris said that most labor organizations oppose certain provisions of the law "as unfair to unions."

But, he expressed a belief that "the majority of unions feel that they still need the protections of the act and that the board does a pretty good job of administering the statutory protections."

Harris recalled the Eisenhower Administration when there was "great bitterness" in labor's ranks over a board that it said was stacked with management representatives.

Noting that during this period the board was reversed by the courts "with greater frequency than ever before or since," Harris termed it an "unfortunate episode" in NLRB history.

"By and large, however," Harris concluded, "we think that the board and the general counsel have over the years discharged their extremely difficult roles creditably and with fairness."

"We see no reason to think that any different sort of board, or commission, or court, would have done any better."

California Rejects Low Kingsport Bid

A vigorous labor campaign against the award of a $120,000 school textbook printing contract to the struck Kingsport, Tenn., Press achieved success when the state rejected Kingsport's bid and assigned the work to the unionized state printing plant.

The plant is staffed by union craftsmen. Strike-bound Kingsport, operated by strikebreakers, entered a bid slightly lower than that of a union printer and bookbinder in San Francisco.

General Services Dir. Andrew R. Lolli heeded union objections that awarding the contract to Kingsport would cost the state and its workers many thousands of dollars more than the anticipated "saving" on the low bid.

More than 1,000 members of five AFL-CIO unions struck Kingsport Press five years ago for contract improvements and have been unable since then to get management to rehire the strikers under union contracts. The federation's Union Label & Service Trades Dept. has been conducting a "don't buy" campaign against the big book-printing plant, which operates with strikebreakers.

Union protests against a contract with Kingsport pointed out that such action would cost the state heavily in lost state income taxes, sales taxes and jobs. The protests to Gov. Ronald Reagan (R) were initiated by the State AFL-CIO, Bookbinders Local 31-125 and Lithographers Local 17-L with support by the San Francisco, Los Angeles County and Alameda County AFL-CIO plus the state Graphic Arts Council.

g, the in lath.

And the first word in corner bead.

He who laths Wheeling laths best.

We guess everybody knows by now that we make our lath from our own steel.

And that we keep a tight grip on quality all the way.

But everybody doesn't seem to know that we also make a full line of plastering accessories.

Take our Double-EX corner bead.

It's unquestionably the finest, easiest to install and plaster corner bead on the market.

In fact, several competitors have tried to copy its exclusive rigid design. And failed.

Yet, some of you have never used it.

Because some of you have never seen it, or held it in your hands.

So. If you'll send your name and address to Dept. 906, Wheeling Corrugating Company, Wheeling, W. Va., 26003, we'll send you your first piece.

And take away your last excuse.

What Kind of Investment is Freedom Shares?

☐ Shrewd? ☐ Safe? ☐ Patriotic? ☐ Exclusive?

You're right if you checked all four boxes.

Freedom Shares are a shrewd investment because they pay 4.74% when held to maturity. They mature in just four-and-a-half years, and are redeemable after one year.

There is no safer investment because Freedom Shares are backed by The United States of America.

Exclusive? Absolutely.
Not everyone can buy new Freedom Shares. You have to belong to the Bond-a-Month or Payroll Savings Plan. Freedom Shares are a bonus opportunity for these regular Bond buyers.

And, as you help yourself by buying Freedom Shares, you're also helping your country. Sign up for Freedom. Get all the facts from the payroll people where you work or any officer where you bank.

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14, 1968

The picture above is called "Tis the Star Spangled Banner," a painting by George Gray which hangs at Fort McHenry in Baltimore, Maryland. It portrays Francis Scott Key helpless and a temporary prisoner aboard a vessel outside Baltimore Harbor, watching the bombardment of the fort by the British fleet. Key and two other Americans had come to make arrangements with the British for the exchange of prisoners of war. This is the moment when, at dawn, Key caught the first glimpse of the American flag still flying over the fort. He had thought that the fort was taken during the night.

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Many labor unions today . . . including our own . . . are undergoing change. They have to, in order to keep up with the times. The days of horse-and-buggy trade unionism are gone.

We cover wide areas in our organizing programs. We deal in statistics and legal terminology in our negotiations. Many unions keep their records today on high-speed computers. I remember the times when you could place the text of a working agreement on a single sheet of paper, but it's almost impossible to do that anymore.

What brings all this to mind is the fact that some of our smaller locals are having difficulty in protecting their jurisdiction and settling their administrative problems because of their small size and their lack of resources. They don't have fulltime business agents, and, until they do, they're not able to handle their affairs properly.

Some LIU locals which are only a few miles apart and can conveniently do so are now merging their memberships and their resources, and the results of this action are commendable. They can now afford fulltime business agents and they are accomplishing other things they couldn't do before.

Recently I was able to assist in the mergers of local unions at St. Petersburg and Tampa, Florida, and, on another occasion, at West Palm Beach and Vero Beach, Florida. These locals are now making progress in their areas and making their new unity felt in the building and construction trades.

I want some of our small local unions to give serious thought to the possibility of throwing in their lot with neighboring locals, if the conditions are right. We have locals which are in close proximity of each other. Now this doesn't make sense. A crew of lathers might travel 50 to a hundred miles on a construction job. The paths of small, neighboring locals might crisscross dozens of times.

Under such conditions it doesn't make sense to have duplicate membership rolls, duplicate financial records, duplicate meetings on similar problems, and no fulltime man on the streets in either case, looking after the problems of the craft.

A labor union, like everything else, is only as strong as its weakest link.

The point is that unity of contiguous locals through merger can strengthen the union's position at the bargaining table, will cause Lathers to have a strong voice in central labor bodies and in outside political education activities and voter registrations.

I know of four neighboring LIU locals now giving serious thought to merger. If their plans firm up, and I judge the reasons to be sound, I will give my consent as General President to this important step.

There is another matter which needs the attention of many of our local unions. I refer to the apprenticeship training program of our International Union. In recent weeks, we have had shortages of journeymen reported in parts of Michigan, Virginia, and Canada, and there are probably other areas affected.

I know that these situations are going to arise from time to time, but we have to be planning ahead, so that when shortages arise we can supply the manpower.

I have a report from Leo Schultz, executive director of the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program, that some local unions are delinquent in their contributions to the apprenticeship training program. I want to remind these locals that they must abide by the conditions of the National Apprenticeship Clause in our basic working agreement.

This is all part and parcel of our activities in training young people for the craft, and we must do more in this field.

Before closing my report I must mention that we are still working hard in Washington, along with the other Building and Construction Trades, for certain legislation which needs enactment this year.

All of organized labor is bringing its weight to bear on the Construction Safety Bills before Congress. The Select Subcommittee on Labor of the House Education and Labor Committee conducted two days of hearings on HR 2567, the House Construction Safety Bill, on August 29 and 30 of last year. At that time, labor testified in support of the bill. Hearings were again held on February 6 and 7.

The companion bill in the Senate (S. 2148), introduced by Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin is currently pending before the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

These two bills need your support through letters to your Congressmen and Senators.

There are others that are also important to each of us. One is the Occupational Safety and Health bills, introduced in both Houses of Congress this year. H. R. 14816 was introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman O'Hara of Michigan, and a companion bill, S. 2864, was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Yarborough of Texas. These bills would implement the recommendations of President Johnson, who asked Congress—in his first message after the State of the Union address—to act on a broad occupational safety program designed to protect workers in all fields, including construction workers.

Hearings on the House bill were held on February 1 through March 14. The Select Subcommittee began consideration of this bill in Executive Session on May 2. Hearings on companion bill S. 2864 were held on February 15, with additional hearings not yet announced.

Organized labor has joined with others in a public interest coalition to push for passage of the Occupational Safety & Health Bill to offset a well-organized employer campaign intent on killing the measure. Until the formation of this union-assisted group, congressional aides had reported that only a "handful of letters supporting the safety and health bill" had reached Capitol Hill.

Labor is doing its part, too, to head off attempts by state agencies to stop this legislation which they feel would interfere with their own interests. A notable case in point is the stand of the Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor & Human Relations, which has been declared "as far as you can get from the truth," by AFL-CIO Legislative Director Andrew J. Biemiller. The agency has said that the federal legislation would do away with all state safety laws and programs and eliminate "education" as a means of reducing work accidents.

The bills would, in fact, authorize continued state supervision of occupational safety and health programs—when these programs and enforcement are at least equal to federal standards. And far from curbing safety education, Biemiller noted, the federal bill would provide grants up to 90 percent of the state's total cost for a series of functions which are basically education. The AFL-CIO has reminded all union men that "it is most important that we secure a federal Occupational Safety & Health Act to protect hundreds of thousands of our members in the many states which have neither an adequate law or effective enforcement."

Also of interest to lathers is a bill to amend Title II of the National Housing Act. (H.R. 10188) introduced by Chairman Patman of the House Banking and Currency Committee. This legislation would provide a new program of mortgage insurance for the construction of needed nonprofit hospital facilities. This bill's purpose is to assist in the construction of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill and require care which can be effectively furnished only by hospitals. Under the bill, the government is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, subject to certain standards and requirements.

There are several other bills before Congress designed to accelerate home building, particularly homes for low and moderate income groups. Several of these, however, are partially or wholly unacceptable to organized labor.

There are some housing bills which do need action. Most of these are in the field of urban development, and they would release Federal funds for a more expanded housing program. We would like to see prompt action on many of these bills so, that the nation can be fully employed and the crises of our cities can be relieved.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

SAL MASO,
International President.

The flag of the United States was established by action of the Second Continental Congress at Philadelphia on June 14, 1777. Their resolution read, "Resolved, that the flag of the United States be 13 stripes alternate red and white, that the union be 13 stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation." We observe this historic moment on Flag Day each June 14.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

The Supreme Court decision of two years ago that legislative representation must be on the basis of "one man, one vote" caused consternation in many states. The decision meant that Congressional districts in many states had to be redrawn. State legislatures had to reapportion their states so that the weight of each voter's ballot would approximate that of every other voter's ballot in the state and in the nation.

Some states and some state legislatures have taken the necessary actions to comply with the Supreme Court decision. Others, however, in this crucial election year are still dawdling along.

This all comes to mind more strongly because Maryland—the state in which our International Headquarters is located—has just rejected a revised state constitution, which would have reapportioned its Congressional districts. As things now stand in the State of Maryland, through next November, unless an emergency session of the legislature is called, Maryland voters must still send a rurally-oriented delegation to Congress in 1969.

Other states, too—Texas, for example—are going through the slow, tedious process of updating their state constitutions. Chances of ratification of these constitutions are slim, it seems, because of voter attitudes. People don't want radical changes in government. They shy away from additional taxes. They listen to the statements of reactionaries and are afraid to "rock the boat."

Organized labor finds itself, this year, taking a few unpopular stands. The AFL-CIO has conceded that some additional taxation is needed to help bear the burden of the Vietnam War and problems at home. Knowing that city problems are best supported by city people, it has fought against the rural domination of many state legislatures and supported reapportionment—one man, one vote.

Every vote will be needed this year. A tide of reaction can cut labor's gains in Congress. Every union member should be registered, and he should vote in his local primaries and in the general election in November.

Labor's strength lies in its unity. It was labor's vote which was decisive in electing John Gilligan in the primaries in Ohio, last month.

It will be labor's strength which will be decisive in many other state and district contests, too.

You have undoubtedly read in the public press of the United Auto Workers' decision to default on its financial obligations to the AFL-CIO—an act tantamount to withdrawal from the Federation.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council issued a statement regarding the matter in which it expressed its regret and said, in part: "Our regret stems, not from the sums involved, but from the fact that this action can only serve to deprive the members of the UAW of the right to participate and to be represented within the Federation or any of its subordinate bodies. The separation of the working members of the UAW from their brothers in the American trade union movement is a real loss to all concerned."

In this crucial general election year we hope all trade unionists, outside the Federation or in, will vote in the best interests of the workers of the nation.

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General-Secretary-Treasurer.

OH, MY DENTED FENDER!

(The most familiar sound on a city street or super-highway these days is "crash" as two big hunks of metal called Automobiles make contact. And one of the most familiar topics of conversation is the soaring cost and sinking availability of adequate auto insurance. For these two basic reasons, car insurance is emerging as a major consumer issue. The public is concerned. The administration is concerned, and Congress is concerned. On these pages, based on material from Congressional Quarterly and other sources, some of the problems of auto insurance are examined.)

An elderly man is driving down a suburban street. Suddenly, he is hit in the eye by a BB shot from a gun fired by an unidentified child. The man swerves off the road and hits a little girl. The child who fired the gun is not identified.

Who was to blame? A boy with a BB gun who the police never found.

But under the current method of distributing insurance claims, unless the boy is found and his parents sued, no one gets any insurance money from the accident.

Add to this the likelihood that if you are a recent divorcee, a Negro, a barber, or even a clergyman you might not be holding an insurance policy in the first place. Some insurance companies have been shying away from these people as too great a risk.

Or, if you live in Chicago and go to court to obtain compensation for damages, it may be six years before a decision is reached. Courts throughout the nation have a huge backlog of accident cases.

WORKERS HARD-HIT

Among those hardest hit by soaring car insurance costs and arbitrary cancellations are working people. With factories now so widely dispersed and beyond the reach of obsolete public transit systems, for many workers their car is the lifeline to their jobs. But insurance companies can threaten that lifeline through their ability to withhold insurance, or at least to extract crushing fees for it.

Or, if you are involved in an accident—even a relatively minor one—you may find that your policy is canceled.

Or, perhaps more frequently than anything else, when you open your latest premium notice you may find that you will have to pay more for the same insurance. Insurance rates have risen dramatically in the last decade.

These conditions are causing increasing concern among the nation's 102 million licensed drivers, in the halls of Congress and even in segments of the auto insurance industry.

President Johnson endorsed congressional efforts to look into the practices of the industry in his February 6 message on consumer protection. In his message, he requested legislation authorizing the Transportation Department to conduct "the first comprehensive study" of auto insurance and company selling practices.

The Senate Commerce Committee held hearings March 12, 13 and 14 on a resolution authorizing the study. The Commerce Committee is not the only one concerned with insurance problems. The Senate Judiciary Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee held hearings this spring on insurers' apparently capricious cancellation policies and on charges that companies discriminate against some potential clients.

In 1967, the House Judiciary Committee made a hurried study of auto insurance practices. A staff report was issued. The staff study concluded that "by any objective standard, performance of the automobile insurance business . . . is unsatisfactory. The system is slow, incomplete and expensive." The study said that "virtually all interests . . . recognized that changes are needed in the present system." It recommended further investigation of the issue.

Last month, Congress finally approved a bill providing for a comprehensive study of automobile insurance, and President Johnson, on May 22, signed the document.

The approximate 12,000 insurers who write auto insurance generally view the advent of reform or federal regulation with alarm. The House Judiciary Committee report noted that most of the insurers contacted were satisfied with the status quo.

Insurers claim that writing automobile policies and paying claims is a battle against rising costs. To get $1 to an accident victim today, they claim, it costs $2.20

WHAT'S FISHY

Three congressional committees and the U.S. Department of Transportation will be looking into practices of the auto industry this year. Here are the complaints—in addition to high prices—that have led to the probes:

- Cancellation, non-renewal and rejection practices of many companies.
- Rate boosts approved without public hearings.
- Profit formulas based on sales and which fail to include earnings of investment income.
- Company accounting methods which make gains look like losses, and small losses look like bigger ones.
- Use of private credit organizations to investigate policy-holders (one person was cancelled because a neighbor told an investigator he didn't pay his bills).
- Tight claim settlement practices.

in premiums. The companies note that the cost of hospital care has gone up 92 percent since 1957 and that the average property damage claim has risen 46 percent.

The economics of insurance, companies claim, have forced many companies to cover only preferred risks—drivers who are unlikely to make large claims on their policies. The rest of the drivers must pay higher premiums or take their business to high-risk firms which often have shaky financial foundations. Since 1961, 73 of these firms have gone bankrupt leaving millions of dollars in unsettled claims.

Suggestions for reform of the industry are coming from both public and private sources. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.), who investigated insurers' insolvencies in 1965, has proposed a federal guaranty fund, like the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., to protect policy holders.

Another reform plan, drawn up by Profs. Robert E. Keeton and Jeffery O'Connell, would make payments up to $10,000 to an accident victim without regard to who was at fault. Other plans offer benefits in a manner similar to workmen's compensation.

A FEW OF THE ALTERNATIVES

Following are some of the major proposed reforms to the present car insurance system:

● Basic Protection—Proposed by Professors Robert Keeton and Jeffery O'Connell. Would compensate all persons injured without regard to fault. Requires compulsory basic insurance for every driver. Would pay up to $10,000 per person and $100,000 per accident for medical costs and wage losses arising from accident. A driver would be exempt from liability up to $10,000 in out-of-pocket losses for victim and $5,000 damages for pain and suffering. Injured party could still go to court to seek damages beyond $10,000 and $5,000 exemption. Optional insurance would be available to cover law suit. The plan's authors feel it would cut court caseload by limiting trials only to most serious cases. A study estimates the plan would cost 15-20 percent less than current insurance.

● Columbia Plan—Modeled on workmen's compensation laws. Would cover every licensed driver with compensation insurance, payments to be made to an accident victim according to a schedule. Provides no court remedy, no provision for one-car accidents, property damage or hit-and-run accidents.

● Saskatchewan Plan—A "no-fault" plan in effect since 1946 in Saskatchewan, Canada. Provides insurance against injury, car damage and liability, which is compulsory and pays up to $35,000 on basis similar to workmen's compensation. Provincial government sells the policies for premiums ranging from $8 to $53.

● Moynihan Plan—Former Assistant Labor Secretary Daniel Moynihan calls for wholly federal program of auto insurance providing drivers with payments for loss or injury on no-fault basis. Would be financed with highway-user taxes.

21-Story San Diego Building

Lathed by Local 260 Members

Some 1000 employees of the San Diego Gas & Electric Company have just finished moving to their new 21-story downtown office building. The new Southern California structure has 320,000 square feet of floor space.

Lathers of Local No. 260 performed some interesting work for E. F. Brady Company of La Mesa, who held the combined lathing, plastering contract. M. H. Golden Construction Company was the general contractor and Richard George Wheeler & Associates was the architect.

A feature of the work was the construction of 144 coffers for the first floor ceiling. These were pre-lathed, framed, browned on the floor and then hung and sprayed with acoustic plaster. Each measured 7 ft. and 4 in. by 7 ft. and 6 in. and weighed 218 pounds.

Joe Heidmiller was in charge of lathing.

The project utilized 44,000 square yards of metal lath, more than 20 miles of trim and bead, and 205,000 lineal feet of metal studs.

The Senate Consumer Subcommittee in Washington, with Senator Vance Hartke (D.-Ind) in the chair, is leveling its guns on home improvement frauds, including "chimney rockers" and "sewer wreckers."

Not only the flowers follow the rains of spring, Hartke pointed out. Then also come flooded basements and itinerant swindlers called sewer wreckers.

Here is how they work, Senator Hartke explained:

"The fraudulent operator often begins with an offer to clean the catch basins and do other small repair work at a bargain price. Then, once the work is started, new and vastly more serious problems are discovered. Bits of broken tile are shown the homeowner with the warning that the sewer line must be reset, or bits of leaves and wet roots are exhibited to prove that the whole line is obstructed. Justice Department files contain cases in which repair frauds were detected smashing up tiles that were perfectly good when they began work.

"The shysters we call chimney rockers speed up their operations in the spring and early summer. Offering to 'inspect' the chimney after the winter's intermittent freezing and thawing, the fly-by-night operators consistently report it to be in a dangerous condition, ready to topple off the roof of the house. While one pitchman occupies the attention of the homeowner, the other 'inspector' continues to rock and wrench and hammer away at the chimney. If it was not in bad condition before the so-called inspection, it certainly is afterwards."

A co-sponsor of Senate Joint Resolution 130, Hartke heard testimony on the measure to authorize the Federal Trade Commission to conduct a comprehensive investigation of deceptive practices among fringe elements of the home improvement industry.

With Senator Warren Magnuson (D.-Wash.), Chairman of the Consumer Subcommittee, Senator Hartke seeks to make it more difficult for swindlers to fleece homeowners out of untold millions of dollars annually.

The Federal Trade Commission reported that with some 200,000 home improvement contractors doing a $15,000,000,000 annual business volume, it is difficult to sort out and prosecute "fringe operators who are out for the quick dollar."

Among the more prevalent complaints coming to his office, are aluminum siding deals, Senator Hartke said.

Miss Betty Furness, the President's Assistant for Consumer Affairs, testified for a three-day "grace period" in which a householder who regrets a purchase made from a high-pressure door-to-door salesman may cancel the contract.

The AFL-CIO requested that this grace period be extended to sales made at factory gates in addition to dwelling places.

It was pointed out in testimony that reputable firms allow a sales contract to be rescinded if the term customer is dissatisfied. Among the more colorful sales frauds brought out in testimony before Senator Hartke was the "Chinese mortar mice drop." This one involves the pitchman pointing out cracks or fissures in brickwork, and suggesting that "Chinese mortar mice" have infested the dwelling or its chimney. He then proceeds to "catch" a mouse, usually one he has carried to the scene in his pocket.

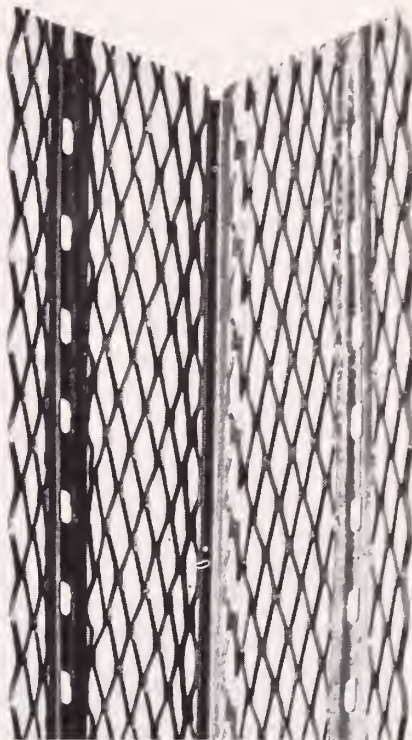

William P. Youngclaus, Jr., managing director of the National Remodelers Association, New York City, testified to the well organized frauds practiced nationwide by the "terrible Williamsons," whose prosperous appearance and charming personalities reportedly lull their victims. This team, using a variety of "honest sounding" names is believed to number about 2,000 and has been preying on householders since 1914—with an annual "take" for worthless repair work and sale of shoddy goods now estimated at $1,000,000.

Pioneering Family Relocation Program in Chicago

A PIONEERING rehabilitation-relocation project is under way on the West Side of Chicago. It is led by the Chicago Housing Authority, the Chicago Dwellings Association, and United States Gypsum Company. The inclusion of a private company in the partnership is a new approach. U.S. Gypsum is the largest manufacturer of building and industrial materials in the country.

Beginning in mid-March, USG will provide some 120 apartments in the buildings at 3701-27½ West Arthington Street, 901-11 South Independence Boulevard, and 1217-25 South Independence Boulevard. While new floors, walls, ceilings, and kitchens are installed in these partially occupied buildings, the families will be moved into nearby, specially designed, interim homes. Residence in these temporary living quarters, which resemble ranch homes, will last about four months.

After structural rehabilitation, the families will be returned at USG's expense to new apartments in the buildings where they previously lived. Rents will be based upon Chicago Housing Authority schedules.

Contrast between the new and old is evident in this photo of a Chicago Housing Authority interim home and an apartment house under restoration by United States Gypsum Company. Families awaiting apartments in USG's rehabilitated buildings will live temporarily in these fire-resistant homes. There will be 120 of these structures built for a three-month occupancy.

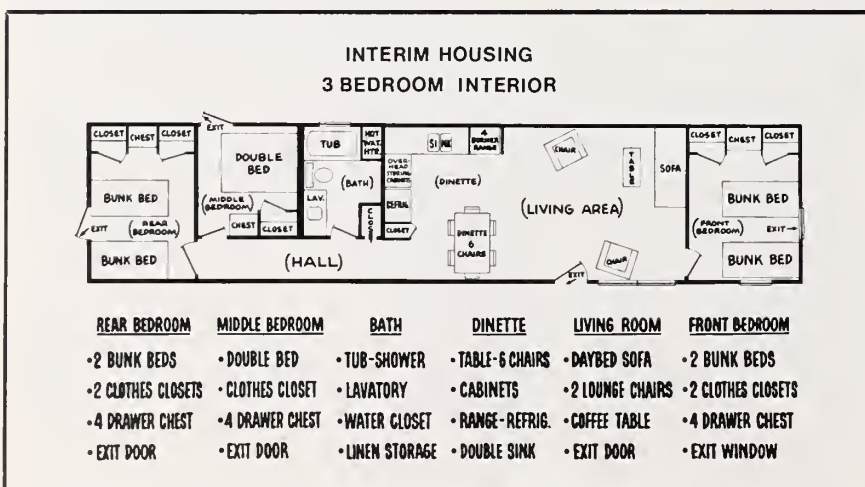

With an apartment vacancy ratio of less than 1% in Lawndale, this unique relocation program does away with breaking of neighborhood ties, due to lack of apartment accommodations in familiar surroundings. Its purpose is to preserve school, church and other associations.

Late in 1967, under an agreement among the three, U.S. Gypsum announced a $1,800,000 program to reconstruct neglected and deteriorating buildings in Lawndale, in the vicinity of South Independence Boulevard and the Eisenhower Expressway.

United States Gypsum has already rebuilt 160 dilapidated apartments in New York's Harlem, and will shortly expand its program to the Hough section of Cleveland.

USG's President, Graham J. Morgan, who was named Urban Pioneer of 1967 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, stated, "We hope that our experience will be a catalyst to other companies to help rebuild our nation's cities."

In announcing this Chicago activity, Morgan, who is Vice-Chairman of President Johnson's Committee on Urban Housing, said, "It is evident that urban unrest can be partially attributed to bad living conditions. We at USG hope that our efforts will substantially improve the lives of people we encounter in our work in New York, Chicago, and Cleveland."

The Chicago Housing Authority, the Chicago Dwellings Association, and United States Gypsum Company are involved in this unique example of cooperation between the public and private sectors in this rehabilitation work.

Labor Supports Pension Fund Protection Bill

Organized labor has endorsed the intent of an Administration bill designed to provide stronger regulation of workers' pension-welfare funds, but at the same time urged improvements in the legislation.

The bill would incorporate standards of "fiduciary responsibility" in the 1958 Welfare & Pension Plans Disclosure Act and strengthen some of its reporting requirements.

AFL-CIO Legislative Director Andrew J. Biemiller and other union officers recently testified before a House Labor subcommittee studying the bill.

The AFL-CIO urged expansion of the legislation to set minimum funding and vesting standards for single-employer pension plans and an "insurance system" to keep workers from losing benefits if an employer goes out of business or defaults on pension payments.

The federation also called for safeguards to prevent unions from being harrassed under the law. This could be done, it said, by limiting Labor Department investigations to cases where there is "reasonable cause" to believe violations are occurring.

Though billions of dollars have been disbursed in pension benefits, they have also been plagued by serious problems," the union men testified. Examples were cited where some companies "blithely disregarded" their commitments to beneficiaries, cases in which pensions have been endangered by companies changing ownership, and undue risks taken by firms in investing pension funds.

The AFL-CIO also suggested an insurance system to protect accrued pension rights—whether fully matured or not—if an employer should go out of business.

Council Demands: Strong Lending Bill, National Health Insurance

The AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting here has issued a strong call for a national health insurance plan to end "the uncontrolled runaway escalation of medical costs."

"The average cost of a hospital stay is now $58 a day," said the Council's Social Security Committee Report. "Hospital daily room charges in some areas have already approached $100 a day. At the present rate of increase, a $100 hospital daily room charge will soon be typical."

The Council also cited rising doctors' fees, noting that physicians' net incomes have actually been rising at ten percent or more a year. "Too many doctors' charges have been rapidly escalating, even though many physicians now receive payment from aged and poor persons under Medicaid for services they previously rendered free of charge."

Short of National Health Insurance, the AFL-CIO called for the rapid spread of comprehensive group practice prepayment plans.

The Council noted that high hospital costs are often blamed on wage increases won by unions for hospital workers. But, said the Council, "these workers have been too long, and are even now, among the lowest paid in the country. Their wages are still too low."

On another issue affecting workers' pocketbooks, the Council called on the House-Senate Conference Committee to endorse the House version of "truth-in-lending."

The House bill, said the Council statement, brings all forms of consumer credit under the disclosure requirement. It also limits wage garnishment and plugs up loopholes in the Senate bill that would exempt broad areas of consumer credit from coverage.

Library Utilizes Lath's Quiet Beauty

The beauty of lath and plaster incorporated into an attractive design for acoustic treatment has been effectively used in the library of the new Lorain County Community College, Lorain, Ohio. Performing the work was Lathers' Union, Local No. 2, in Cleveland, Ohio. Builder for the project was Charles Row Construction Company, and the architects were Perkins and Will, Finkel and Finkel. Lathing and plastering contract was held by Charles Delia.

Hot Springs Convention Center Has Miles of Plaster Stop Beads

Convention Auditorium in Hot Springs, Arkansas makes use of miles of plaster stop beads to accentuate beautiful pebble dash exterior finish of quartz chips.

One of the most unique buildings in Hot Springs, Arkansas—from the standpoint of a veteran lather—is the recently-constructed Convention Auditorium. The 1.5 million dollar structure is of ultra-modern design with a five-story stepped roof and a beautiful pebble dash interior finish of quartz chips.

Gold Retirement Card holder Harry Lindgren, of East Chicago, Indiana, called our attention to this interesting job performed by Hot Springs Local No. 253. There is more than a mile of plaster stop beads on the outside, not counting a large number of columns and breaks.

One end of the north wall ceiling has plaster stop bead columns 10 ft. high. Mosaic tile is inset into the face of the columns. Each has eight corner beads. Ceilings and inside walls have plaster beads in them just like the exterior.

This wall of the Hot Springs Auditorium is 200 ft. long and 10 ft. high, and has 70 places where plaster stop beads are used; some every 4 ft., others every 2 ft. The long beam also has a corner bead on it.

According to Lindgren, "There is easily from four to five miles of beads in this one building."

The structure has a spacious air-conditioned interior and broad corridors. It provides a large meeting area that seats up to 4000 persons. There is exhibit space for 164 booths and a complete catering kitchen.

Congressional Bill Would Raise GI Insurance Limit

Bills have been introduced in the Congress which would liberalize insurance benefits of our combat forces, and to make additional educational and career training opportunities available to veterans returning from the Vietnam conflict.

One bill, introduced by Senator Vance Hartke (D-Indiana), would offer servicemen an opportunity to increase their life insurance to $30,000. Present limit is $10,000. Also, at present, the returning GI cannot keep his government life insurance beyond four months after separation.

Legislation has also been introduced by Senator Hartke which would afford federal tax benefits to companies which will hire and train veterans for career employment.

A work-study cooperative education bill has also been introduced to expand the opportunity for the homecoming veteran to go to college and work for private industry at the same time. This bill is co-sponsored by Hartke, Senator Thomas Kuchel (R-California) and Rep. Tom Gibbon (D-Florida).

Why a Safety-on-the-Job Bill? 95% of Firms Violate Standards

When Assistant Secretary of Labor Esther Peterson spoke to the 17th general convention of the United Textile Workers at Miami Beach, Fla., she laid it on the line why the Administration and organized labor are fighting for on-the-job safety legislation.

She disclosed that the Labor Department, under the Public Contracts Act, in inspecting industrial establishments doing business with the government during fiscal year 1967, found violations of health and safety standards in 95 percent of the plants.

"Federal engineers inspected 1,339 industrial establishments, and 1,283 were found to have been in violation of the minimum safety standards."

The Labor Department official said the violations involved machine guarding, electrical hazards, fire hazards, inadequate emergency exits, handling of chemicals, etc.

Of the 1,283 industrial establishments found in violation, said Mrs. Peterson, "the overwhelming majority rectified the situation voluntarily." Enforcement action was necessary in the case of only 24, but all but three of them finally complied.

"The three which did not," Mrs. Peterson said, "were then declared ineligible for Federal government contracts under the terms of the Public Contracts Act."

Mrs. Peterson said that under the Public Contracts Act, firms holding government contracts can be compelled to adhere to minimum safety and health standards as set forth in the law.

"But we cannot compel a plant to observe these basic conditions if the company does not have a contract with the Federal government," she told the labor convention. "However, we would be able to do so under the proposed Occupational Safety and Health bill now pending before the Congress."

Mrs. Peterson said that the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1968 would establish enforceable minimum health and safety standards in all plants operating in interstate commerce, and would provide for information gathering, research, training and education in the cause and prevention of work accidents and diseases.

She cited the figures of 14,000 to 15,000 dead, over 2 million disabled and over 7 million injured in occupational accidents each year as being "a national shame."

Union Labor Life Breaks All Records

At the 41st annual shareholders' meeting of The Union Labor Life Insurance Company in Boston last April, ULLICO President Edmund P. Tobin announced to the 400 trade union and business leaders in attendance that labor's own insurance company attained maximums in all aspects of its business operation during 1967.

Emphasizing that ULLICO today is the largest single underwriter of negotiated health and welfare insurance contracts in the United States, Tobin declared, "During the past year the company paid out over $113 million to policy holders and beneficiaries while income from premiums, investments and other sources rose to more than $127 million. On the very day of this meeting we have over $2 billion of insurance in force!"

Now directors elected to ULLICO included President Thomas F. Murphy of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union and President George L. O'Brien of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

At a luncheon which followed the morning session Vice Admiral A. F. Schade Commander Submarine Force U.S. Atlantic Fleet, as the honored speaker, explained in his talk and through motion picture film the tremendous contribution which the U.S.

The Union Labor Life Insurance Company was founded in 1927 after committee study and action of the American Federation of Labor. With its stock owned by 57 AFL-CIO union affiliates (including the Wood, Wire, and Metal Lathers International Union) it has 24 national and international union officers serving with business and professional leaders on its Board of Directors. ULLICO's annual stockholders' meeting was held in Boston this year for the first time in its history.

STOUT-HEARTED MAN

The woman lion tamer had her beasts under perfect control. At her summons the fiercest lion came meekly to her and took a piece of sugar out of her mouth. The circus crowd marveled—all except one man.

"Would you dare to do it?" the ringmaster retorted scornfully.

"Certainly," replied the man. "Just get that blasted lion outa that cage!"

LIKE HE SAID

When John Johnson applied for his driver's license in the crowded bureau, an officer shoved a paper across the desk. "Write your last name first, and your first name last," he said hurriedly.

"How's that again, sir," asked Johnny somewhat confused.

"Like I said before," replied the officer . . . "Backwards!"

NICE STONE OF VOICE

A charming Southern belle named Tandie was being courted by a rather stern young banker. When queried by a friend about the prospects of a matrimonial alliance, Tandie said flatly: "If that stuffed shirt proposes, I'll give him a deaf ear."

Less than a week later Tandie was wearing the young banker's diamond. Her friend commented, "I thought you said you'd be deaf to any proposal from him."

"Yes, I did," Tandie admitted looking at the gorgeous diamond in the engagement ring. "But I didn't say I'd be stone deaf!"

"I'd like to see if it can budget my husband's wages to meet the present cost of living!"

Winn-Dixie Must Pay Fired Union Members

The National Labor Relations Board has ordered Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., the South's leading grocery chain, to pay $36,000 to six employees it fired five years ago for joining the Meat Cutters.

The board approved a trial examiner's findings that the 700-store chain owes backpay ranging from $3,100 to $10,150 to six women employees who were fired when Winn-Dixie closed a cheese-processing line at its Jacksonville, Fla., warehouse.

In 1964 the NLRB ruled that Winn-Dixie illegally fired the employees and refused to bargain with the union about discontinuing one department. Company appeals and court hearings have characterized the case since the 1963 firings and further delays are open to the employer.

Last year the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, New Orleans, fined Winn-Dixie $10,000 for criminal contempt of a court order to stop violating the National Labor Relations Act. Three judges ruled that Winn-Dixie and its warehouse supervisor "knowingly, wilfully and intentionally" committed criminal contempt in refusing to obey court orders issued in 1963 and 1965.

Company Pres. A. D. Davis was announced as co-chairman of the Citizens Committee to Preserve the Taft-Hartley Act when the group was formed in 1965 to lobby against repeal of Section 14(b) of the act, which permits states to outlaw union shop agreements. (4/25/68)

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

The jobless rate in this nation has remained between 3.5 and 3.7 percent for the last six months, the lowest sustained unemployment rate since late 1953. The last reported figures released by the Labor Department reveal that the May unemployment rate has held steady at 3.5 percent.

While there was little change in the job picture between April and May, the year-long changes are meaningful in establishing long-term trends.

It can be seen, for example, that unemployment reductions since May, 1967, have been concentrated among blue collar workers in goods-producing industries, particularly durable goods. The jobless rate for blue collar workers averaged 3.8 percent in April and May, about equal to the lows of the Korean war period.

The Labor Department statistics also show us that there was marked improvement over the past 12 months in the unemployment rates of adult men, from 2.4 down to 2.1 percent; and for adult women, from 4.1 to 3.7 percent.

The American working man is working longer, too. The average factory worker worked 40.6 hours a week in May, up sharply from the April average.

Also, there was a two-cent rise in average hourly earnings (to $2.82) in May. This slight wage boost, along with the small increase in hours, resulted in average weekly earnings of rank-and-file workers of $106.03 in May. This was up $1.59 from April, and $5.48 or 5.5 percent from May, 1967.

What these figures mean in our "supply and-demand" oriented economy, is simply that the demand for labor has increased. No doubt, the demand has exceeded the supply of skilled workmen in many industries.

If we are to borrow the concepts of the Wall Street barons, we must immediately assume that the value of labor increases as the supply of workers dwindles. This will be important in our bargaining sessions during the coming months. This is a fact which management would have us forget.

So long as there is a premium placed on our working hours, then it behoves organized labor to hold its head high and demand a rightful premium in the pay envelope, in return for premium productivity necessary in today's flourishing economy. A day's work for a day's pay must be maintained.

Largely because of higher wages and salaries, personal income in the United States rose by $4 billion during the month of May.

For the first five months of this year, personal income was running at an annual rate of $664 billion, an increase of $49.5 billion, or 8 percent, above the comparable period last year.

The Department of Commerce report for May noted that the step-up from April to May was due to wages and salaries, which advanced $3 billion last month after a gain of $1½ billion in April. April payrolls had been dampened by strikes in the telephone industry and civil disturbances.

Half the May wage salary boost stemmed from manufacturing firms, whose payrolls, after declining half-a-million dollars in April rose $1½ billion to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate approaching $143 billion. As we have noted, higher wage rates and a longer workweek were responsible for the gain; employment was unchanged.

Among the other industries, services and government wages and salaries continued to expand to about the same rate as in recent months. Payrolls in the communications industry were higher in May as telephone workers returned to their jobs.

Dividend payments in May rose by one-half billion dollars—the same as March and April advance—to an annual rate of $24½ billion.

Many of these wage increases are the direct and indirect results of long and hard bargaining by organized labor. The increase in personal income of Americans did not “just happen.”

Even so, these gains do not properly reflect actual gains in spendable income. The increased cost of living, which continues to rise, robs the working people of America of much of the benefits sought in union collective bargaining efforts across the country.

For this reason, our task is more difficult. We must intensify these bargaining efforts. We must work harder to make labor gains real, not just “paper victories” which are fast consumed in our inflationary spiral.

Organized labor has taken a firm—but sometimes unpopular—stand approving of the 10 percent income tax boost, which is finally becoming law. Top economists in the labor movement feel certain that the tax increase is the best way to stop inflationary trends and to place the value of the dollar—and our entire economy—on a more solid foundation. No one likes a tax increase, but this one may well result in assuring American workers that the money in our pay envelopes will have buying power.

The break came first in the key House Ways and Means Committee, headed by Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas. Crucial action came finally as the Committee voted 17 to 6 to endorse a $10 billion tax rise, coupled with a budget cut of $4 billion. Republicans on the Committee wanted to make it a $6 billion cut, but were outvoted by the Democrats on the Committee, plus four Republicans who broke from their party.

The compromise received the endorsement of President Johnson which had stoutly held out against the $6 billion decrease on the grounds that it would cut into Great Society programs that are vitally needed in these days of social unrest. The Administration had fought with equal stubbornness for a tax boost to meet the threat of inflation.

While the final “directive” approved by the Ways and Means Committee called for a tax boost and a budget cut, it did not lay down specifics of how these should be achieved.

It was generally agreed, however, that the tax boost would come in the form of the 10 percent surtax which has been demanded by the President for more than a year.

The nature of the cuts to be made in the budget is of the utmost concern to the organized labor movement, which has long contended that “War on Poverty” must not be crippled in these days of social and economic stress for the nation’s poor.

Even as the Ways and Means Committee was taking action, AFL-CIO President George Meany was before the House Select Committee on Labor appealing for a $4 billion public services program to provide jobs for the hard-core unemployed.

The House of Representatives finally acted June 20 and the Senate the following day, passing the 10 percent tax surcharge, but coupling it with a requirement for $6 billion in budget cuts.

President Johnson called the Congressional action “A victory for the entire nation. The tax bill is essential insurance against economic chaos.”

The key man in the Congressional drive, Congressman Mills, called the enactment “crucial to solving the Nation’s money problems.” He said it would “help cut a potential $25 billion deficit, hold down inflation, ease the gold drain, and stabilize the dollar abroad.”

However difficult it has been to support this, or any, tax increase, it became imperative for the labor movement to cast its support for this measure of “fiscal responsibility” in order to further protect our wage gains won at the bargaining tables this year.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

SAL MASO,
International President.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

With little fanfare but lots of sincere effort, the Building and Construction Trades are making progress in their program to bring Negroes and other minorities into the various apprenticeship training programs.

The agreement between the U.S. Secretary of Labor and the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department to conduct this so-called "outreach program" was no idle exchange of views, as Under Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds recently pointed out. Unions had already done some work in this field before the agreement was signed at Bal Harbour, Florida, last winter.

Young Negro, Latin-American, and Indian men were already undergoing training in several crafts.

It has been very difficult in many instances, however, to secure young men in these minority groups who are capable of going directly into apprenticeship training. Some do not know basic arithmetic. Few seem to have the incentive to pursue the long, hard road of training required.

There is no need for me to go into the reasons for this. The condition, nevertheless, does exist. Labor unions certainly cannot be blamed for the poor quality of education in ghetto schools or the number of school dropouts on urban street corners. (As a matter of fact, it was the American labor movement which led the fight for a free public education for Americans of all races and creeds back in the 19th century.)

At any rate, unions have had to make the effort to train these deprived minorities for self-supporting work, and, to do so, it has had to conduct "pre-apprenticeship" programs in cooperation with the Federal government under the Manpower Development and Training Program and through other special programs. Some unions are even working with the Job Corps to develop these young people for vocations.

Under Secretary of Labor Reynolds predicted recently that "apprenticeship in realistic numbers for Negroes and other minorities will be an accepted fact within three years." Building and construction trades councils are now conducting "outreach programs" in 34 cities across North America. At least a dozen more cities will become involved in the program by the end of this year.

"Counting Negroes or other minorities in apprenticeship programs will become a needless exercise," says Reynolds.

Hundreds of apprenticeship candidates are being processed in each city to find youths with the basic qualifications and potential to succeed.

The skilled trades are waging an affirmative program of recruitment, preparation, and placement in cooperation with such groups as the Workers Defense League and the Urban League.

I know I share with union members of the Building and Construction Trades everywhere the frustrating personal reaction which comes each time we are accused of discrimination, when we know all too well that apprenticeship training standards must be maintained at all costs for the good of each community and that every applicant for apprenticeship training—be he Negro, Latin-American, Indian, or Caucasian—must be tested and proved qualified.

In spite of the handicaps, however, minority youngsters are being trained, and, as Under Secretary Reynolds states, there is "living proof" that sincere, affirmative action is being taken.

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Alberta Institute Revises Apprentice Curriculum

Complete revision of the course schedule is planned by the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology (NAIT), Edmonton, to meet the increased needs of Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers apprentices in Canada.

That is the announcement from Garry E. Roberge, lathing instructor in the Construction Department of NAIT. Beginning in September, NAIT will have two first-year, one second and one third-year classes with 15 students in each class.

Enrollment increases are foreseen, according to Brother Roberge, and plans are being made for the future. "We feel the increase in enrollment will continue and thus necessitate a progressive increase in facilities and staff," he explained. Present facilities can accommodate only 15 students per class.

The Canadian training program is basically the same as in the United States, except that in the U.S. apprentices usually go to a school one day every two weeks.

Trade school attendance is a mandatory provision of the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, for all apprenticeship programs within the building trades industry. Compensation for apprentices attending trade schools in our industry in this country is not obligatory.

In the Alberta program, apprentices take six successive weeks of training.

Subsistence allowances are made for Canadian apprentices enrolled in the training program. Students who have been on the work force more than three years are paid by the Federal Government. Students on the work force less than three years and who have no dependents are paid by the Provincial Government.

Allowances for those who have been working at least three years or who have one or more economic dependents are based on the following schedule:

Dependents	Rate per week
	Living at home	Living away from home
0	$35.00	$50.00
1	54.00	69.00
2	64.00	69.00
3 or more	73.00	88.00

Allowances on this basis are paid to apprentices directly from the local Canada Manpower Centre. A working dependent (e. g. a wife) is not considered to be a dependent for allowance purposes. The subsistence rate for an apprentice may be altered during the term of apprenticeship when he presents proof that the circumstances which determine his rate-status have changed.

Apprentices may also apply for loans. A special application must be used, and can be obtained from the Students Assistance Board, Department of Education, Edmonton; or from any Apprenticeship Branch office or supervisor.

Courses offered under the lathing apprenticeship program include the following:

First year—Shopwork (15 hours per week); Trade & Building Construction Theory (5 hrs./week); Shop Drawing & Blueprint Reading (5 hrs./week); and Mathematics (5 hrs./week).

Second year — Shopwork (15 hrs.), Trade & Building Construction

Members of the second-year apprenticeship class at the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology, Edmonton, gather around one of their recent projects.

Theory (5 hrs.), Shop Drawing & Blueprint Reading (5 hrs.), Mathematics & General Knowledge (5 hrs.), and Welding (two week program, 30 hours per week).

Third year—Shopwork (15 hrs.), Trade Theory (3 hrs.), Shop Drawing & Blueprint Reading (7 hrs.), and Mathematics & General Knowledge (5 hrs.).

Each session lasts six weeks. The second year is split between four weeks on trade courses and two weeks on welding. The student receives a total of 540 hours of course work over the three-year period.

Brother Roberge, the Lathing Instructor, has been a member of Local 205 for the past 14 years and recently became an NAIT instructor.

The course as outlined above is certainly comprehensive. If an apprentice diligently applies himself, he should become a very efficient and competent mechanic at the trade of lathing.

We wish to congratulate Brother Roberge and those who are responsible for drafting and implementing the apprenticeship training program for the Canadian apprentices.

This is one of the projects by second-year apprentices at the NAIT under the direction of Garry E. Roberge.

Thoughts of a Trade Unionist

A thought-provoking little booklet has been published which quotes brief excerpts from recent speeches by Roy Siemiller, a journeyman machinist and International President of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO. These are a few of Siemiller's gems of thought on various subjects:

The American Worker: The American worker is not "your humble servant." From the time he is born, he is taught to be proud of his status as a free man. Naturally, he resents and resists arbitrary and unjust decisions. When workers' rights are spelled out in a negotiated contract and enforced by an effective trade union, the result is a happier worker and higher production. With free trade unions and collective bargaining, American workers have become not only the best paid but also the most productive workers in the world.

Safety: When I was young there was an old saying that if an employer worked a mule to death he had to buy another; if he worked a man to death he could hire another. In those days employers took better care of their mules than their men. It took trade unions to make work safer and to insure that workers or their widows and children receive just compensation for injuries or death on the job.

A Fair Wage: A fair wage depends on how much you need to support your family decently, on the work you perform, the profits of the corporation, and how much others get paid for similar work elsewhere.

Selfishness: Man is born inherently selfish. An employer is not going to give up any more than he has to. It is only pressure through trade union negotiations that will bring about a real distribution of wealth.

● "SPACE HALL of Exhibits" is handsome addition to Houston's Civic Center—another "first" for lathing and plastering.

Curtain Wall Construction Used in Houston Exhibit Hall

- Explanation of photos at left is as follows:
1. John Scroggins, secretary and business manager, Houston Lather's local 224, views the bar joist used in the curtain wall system
  2. Exterior joists being installed in building frame
  3. Exterior scratch coat viewed from inside
  4. More than 20 tons of Asbesto-spray was applied by Tobin & Rooney craftsmen for insulation of outside face of wall to inside of portland cement plaster-marblecrete "skin" (Photos by James Antill, Texas Bureau of Lathing and Plastering for "Plastering Industries" Magazine.)

The "Space Hall of Exhibits" has been added to the Houston, Texas, Civic Center, and also adds another unique accomplishment to members of Houston Local 224.

Purpose of the unusual curtain wall construction was to combine the economies of the all-lath-and-plaster exterior wall and also serve as the duct-space for the building's air conditioning system.

The work was designed by architect

Candill Rowlett Scott and engineers Bernard Johnson, Inc. The job was performed by the Houston lathing and plastering firm of Tobin and Rooney, Inc. Spaw Glass Inc. was the general contractor for the building.

The curtain walls rise to heights of as much as 35 ft. Attached to the outside chord of 12-in. bar joists are 3/4-in. channel iron, with pencil rods to support tying of the control joists. Over this 3/8-in. rib, lath was applied horizontally and a 2 1/8-in. application of portland cement plaster was made for the exterior skin, with marblecrete finish. To complete the wall's inside, 3/8-in. pencil rods were attached to the inside chord of the joist by wire tying, 16-in. o. c. vertically, and over this 3.4 metal lath and gypsum plaster was applied. Applied to the inside of the outer skin was 1 1/2-in. of Asbestospray for thermal insulation.

Before this final wall design was agreed upon, elaborate mock-ups were made and experiments were conducted by the Texas Bureau for Lathing and Plastering for the purpose of evaluating load factors, insulation requirements and cost analysis.

Charles Baecker and Buster Ritcher were lathing and plastering superintendents for Tobin and Rooney, Inc. Lathing foreman was Leon Raines.

Local 33 Installs Partitions In University of Pittsburgh Building

Lathers of Local Union 33 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, are preparing an unusual installation for the National Science Facility Building (Phase No. 1), on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh.

A strong, rugged partition system was a requirement throughout this building to support the heavy shelving, cabinets and apparatus associated with laboratory rooms. The architectural firm of Kuhn, Newcomer & Valentour worked with the Unistrut Pittsburgh Service Company to provide their Unistrut in a solid plaster partition that would meet this requirement and also provide vertical chases for wiring, tubes, plumbing, and concealed channels to which additional shelves and cabinets could be attached when and where needed in the future.

Dick Corp. of Large, Pennsylvania, is the general contractor, and Siciliano Brothers, Inc. is the lathing and plastering contractor for the building.

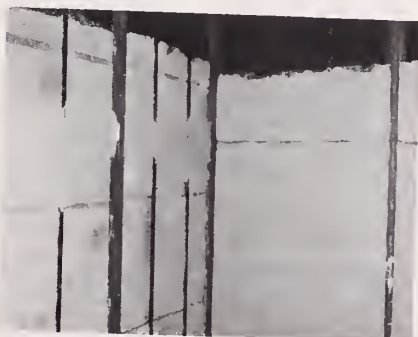

Lather Edward Lewis begins by bolting a Unistrut to the concreted floor, then bolts the piece at the ceiling after placing door-buck in slots provided.

The doorbuck is then slid up while attachment is made at floor. Lathers Regis O'Hanlon (on stepladder) and Ed Lewis make adjustments for perfect installation.

Vertical 3/4-inch channels are installed with horizontal cross bracing between the Unistruts and the 3.4 metal lath attached.

Next comes a scratch coat of plaster, as shown here nearing completion. This is followed by the final plaster.

The finished partition looks like this. Channel is ready for attachment brackets for shelving or closure strip for unused channel.

Join Union To Protect Jobs, Court Tells Iowa Workers

Workers who want true job security had better join a union rather than rely on so-called "right-to-work" laws.

That was the substance of a ruling by the Iowa Supreme Court as it rejected the argument of a group of non-union packinghouse workers that Iowa's "work" law protected them against layoffs due to "bumping" by union employees with seniority.

The only thing the state law does, the court observed, is to prohibit union shop agreements that would require workers to join a union to keep a job.

"It does not guarantee employees of a non-union plant the same job security which might be obtained through legitimate collective bargaining."

The Iowa Supreme Court unanimously upheld a decision in Woodbury County District Court at Sioux City dismissing a temporary injunction obtained by non-union workers at the Sioux Quality Packers plant of Armour & Co.

The decision was a major legal test of an "automation" agreement won by the Packinghouse Workers and the Meat Cutters from the meat packing industry. Under the agreement, senior workers who lose their jobs in plant closings or work reductions have the right to transfer to a "replacement" plant.

Last year, Armour closed two plants in Omaha and West Point, Nebr., where the UPWA had such an agreement. Armour then bought the Sioux City plant of Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., which was subsequently designated by the union-management automation committee as a "replacement" plant.

When men with top seniority at West Point were notified to report for work at the Sioux City plant Dec. 4, non-union employees at the latter installation obtained an injunction blocking the action on the ground that it would violate the state law barring union shop agreements.

Judge D. M. Pendleton of the Woodbury County court dismissed the injunction, ruling that the state law did not apply. In their appeal, the plaintiffs argued that under the Iowa "work" law, they were "specifically exempted from the burden of having to prove they are being fired or laid off because they were non-union members, when they are being laid off pursuant to a contract between a company and a union."

The Supreme Court disagreed. It noted that even if there had been no contractual obligation, Armour could have applied seniority to the transfer and layoffs in consideration of its long-term employees.

The non-union workers argued that under the Iowa "work" law, "when people do determine that they don't want a union to represent them, they have the same protection as though a union did represent them."

This, the court said, "overstates the effect" of the law, whose purpose is to prohibit union shop agreements. It declared:

"We do not believe a provision in a collective bargaining agreement which gives employees of a closed plant the privilege of transferring to a replacement plant on the basis of seniority of service alone is within the concept of union security agreements prohibited" by the law.

Miss Stanger Retires

After nearly 20 years of faithful service to LIU, Miss Kathleen Stanger has retired from our International Headquarters. Miss Stanger was a member of the Secretary's office staff.

She joined the staff of LIU when its offices were in Cleveland, Ohio, during the presidency of William J. McSorley. She moved to Takoma Park, Maryland, when LIU offices were transferred there.

Miss Stanger's conscientious efforts, abilities, and her thorough knowledge of the International Constitution will be greatly missed.

AFL-CIO Proposes Steps to Halt Rising Medical Costs

Some joker has suggested that the best way to beat the high cost of doctor and hospital bills is to stay well.

The suggestion is actually very sound, and organized labor is taking heed of this advice as part of a massive program designed to bring an end to today's uncontrolled runaway escalation of medical costs.

The program consists of several major segments attacking every aspect of our present outmoded, unsatisfactory and excessively costly system of organization and distribution of medical services. The plan was announced recently in a report of the Social Security Committee to the AFL-CIO Executive Council on Medical Costs.

One of the major proposals advanced by the committee recommends a new payment plan, based on "per capita" costs, for medical care. The payments would be assessed at periodic intervals covering total health care. The payments would cover not only physician services but hospitalization, extended care and home health services as well.

Under such a system of payment physicians would have an incentive to practice preventive medicine and thus keep patients well and out of the hospital.

Another proposal by the AFL-CIO group would promote the fastest possible growth of comprehensive group practice prepayment plans. These plans have proven their ability to provide comprehensive health services of high quality at substantial savings over fee-for-service, single doctor practice.

The group also asks encouragement of more efficient utilization of the supply of doctors, nurses and other health personnel including adequate opportunities for training and promotion at all levels.

They recommend that reimbursement of hospitals be on the basis of average cost for all hospitals in similar circumstances, so as to reward the efficient and penalize the inefficient. Alternately, they might be reimbursed on the basis of a negotiated rate per patient.

There are other important proposals made in the AFL-CIO report, none the least of which is one recommending that the Food and Drug Administration have the authority to evaluate the relative effectiveness of drugs. On the basis of objective scientific and clinical information, this information would be made available to physicians and hospitals in an official governmental or government-approved generic name "formulary" which would indicate the most appropriate drug for different diseases. The group says that hospitals should be required to use the same formulary—or book of formulas—under appropriate Federal standards. They should be required to purchase quality drugs listed in the formulary on a generic name basis and by competitive bid. Drugs should be purchased or sold under government programs only within a reasonable price range, as President Johnson has recommended in his recent health message.

The recommendations and the need for study of medical costs grew out of a concern by organized labor for union member families' difficulty in ensuring adequate medical care in the face of soaring doctor and hospital fees and increasing drug costs.

The AFL-CIO report pointed out that the average cost of a hospital stay is now $58 per day, with predictions that a $100 hospital daily charge will "soon be typical." It also cited last year's 7.8 percent rise in doctor fees, and the flaws of existing health programs.

While strongly urging the immediate acceptance of its proposals, the committee, indicates that "there is only one ultimate answer to this problem—national health insurance, which has long been the AFL-CIO goal."

Labor wants for its members' families and for all Americans the best medical care our highly-advanced medical science can provide. Indeed, we intend to settle for nothing less.

Human Life Key Issue In Safety Bill, Dirksen Told

Human life, not states' rights, is the key issue in the job safety and health bill before Congress, a coalition of organizations supporting the legislation told Senate Republican Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen.

Dirksen announced he is strongly opposed to the bill, which he claimed would give "unprecedented" powers to the Secretary of Labor.

"I'm not about to take it without a fight," he told newsmen after a meeting of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

The Joint Committee on Occupational Health & Safety, with which the AFL-CIO is affiliated, retorted that Dirksen's charge of a federal power grab "is just not true."

William R. Hutton, secretary of the joint committee, expressed "keen disappointment" at Dirksen's assessment of the legislation.

"The issue before Congress is human life," said Hutton. "Each day wasted in windy debate means 55 Americans will die as a result of occupational accidents and disease. Every working day without adequate safety and health standards means that 8,500 men and women will be disabled and 27,200 will be injured."

Dirksen's attack on the bill came on the heels of a wild-swinging scare campaign launched by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber's magazine carried an article claiming that the government would use hard-core unemployed as safety inspectors and give them power to padlock shops and factories because of alleged safety violations.

Hutton, in his statement for the coalition of some 20 organizations, said the real facts are that "the American worker is involved in a tragic, unseen, unpublicized, undeclared war against industrial accidents and disease."

In a single year, he said, this war "will maim or injure one out of every 10 working men and women . . . cost us $7 billion and, more poignantly, over 14,000 human lives."

He retorted to Dirksen that federal legislation is needed because the states have failed to provide adequate laws and enforcement. In Dirksen's own state of Illinois, Hutton noted, there are more fish and game wardens than safety inspectors.

Msgr. George C. Higgins, social action director of the U.S. Catholic Conference, is director of the Joint Committee on Occupational Health & Safety. Dr. Lorin E. Kerr, president of the Group Health Association of America, is co-director.

In addition to the AFL-CIO and international unions, the organizations represented on the joint committee include the American Nurses

Death of Senator Robert Kennedy Described as 'National Tragedy'

Attention of the entire world was focused again on the United States and its ineptitude for protecting its public figures, as Senator Robert F. Kennedy died in Los Angeles, California on June 6, the victim of an assassin's bullet.

The death of Robert Kennedy was cause for a National Day of Mourning, declared by President Johnson for Sunday, June 9.

AFL-CIO President George Meany has issued a statement which echoed the thoughts and sentiment of the entire labor movement. He said:

"The death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy ends, in its prime, a distinguished career, bright with the promise of further achievement and service to his countrymen. It brings another intolerable heartbreak to a great American family that has already suffered far too much of humanity's burden of grief.

"Senator Kennedy's death is a national tragedy. But beyond that, it is a profound reproach—not to the United States alone—but to a world that remains torn and shaken from one end to the other by political, social and cultural hostility, violence and lawlessness.

Robert F. Kennedy

"Out of this tragedy, some way must be found to contain or temper the blind, unreasoning waves of human hatred and discord that lead disturbed minds to violence and to the search for targets and scapegoats for their frustrations and animosities.

"Only then can there can be real hope that some element of good might come from this last act of madness."

Canadian Labor Fears More Jobless If Liberal Government Is Elected

The labor-supported New Democratic Party is deeply concerned that if the Liberal Party is returned to power on election day, June 25, and sticks to its present economic policies, the Canadian people are facing more unemployment.

The Canadian jobless rate at present is running at 6.3 percent, considerably higher than the current 3.5 percent in the United States, and there are few signs that it will decrease in the near future.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, which is composed of liberals, labor and farmers, and is seeking to boost the number of seats it has in the Canadian House of Commons, has accused the Liberal Government of putting brakes on the economy at a time when unemployment is running at its highest rate since the early 1960's.

Douglas accused Liberal Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of raising interest rates and cutting back on worthwhile projects all for the purpose of "balancing the budget," an economic theory which, he said, "is a throwback to the depression years of the 1930's."

In March of this year, there were 488,000 unemployed, only 62,000 fewer than at the high point of 1962-63. In the first quarter of this year, 63 persons out of every thousand, or 6.3 percent, were out of work.

"In cold economic terms," Douglas stated, "every one percent of unemployment represents two billion dollars of lost productivity in a year and a lost tax revenue of $630 million."

The excuse the Liberals give for their policy is control of inflation. But the Economic Council of Canada has said that any unemployment over three percent is a menace to Canada's chance of achieving strong and balanced economic growth.

Conservative policies are no different from Liberal Trudeau's, the NDP leader contended.

On the other hand, the New Democrats believe that the government can stimulate economic growth by economic planning.

"Governments can create wealth by proper economic planning and economic planning is the New Democratic Party's answer to the problem of unemployment."

Douglas then outlined a four-point program to:

1. Establish a Canadian Develop-

- ment Corporation to supply capital, expand existing industries and create new ones.

2. Eliminate pockets of poverty and unemployment by programs to reduce regional disparities.

3. Embark on a massive housing program of 250,000 units a year.

4. Implement recommendations for tax reform to put more money into the hands of the low and middle-income groups, and to encourage investment in secondary industries.

The New Democratic Party, which now is the third strongest party in the Canadian House, is hopeful of improving its position in the coming election.

Following is the lineup of the current House:

Liberals—128; Conservatives—94; New Democratic Party—22; Quebec Social Credit—8; West Special Credit—4; Independents—2. There were 6 vacant seats for which by-elections had not been set.

Canadian Money Market Getting Tighter, Statistics Show

Canada like other countries is being buffeted by economic storms. Dollar crisis and balance of payments have become almost household words. But if the U.S. dollar holds up, so will the Canadian.

Even though the country survives the crisis with no major upheavals, the interim effects are still very unsettling, particularly high interest rates on home mortgages.

Government guaranteed mortgages carry an 8 $\frac{5}{8}$  per cent interest rate, while conventional first mortgages cost nine per cent and more.

It now takes anywhere from $8,000 to $10,000 a year minimum for a family man to afford to buy a home. Yet the average wage in industry is around the $5,000 mark.

One realtor estimated that a house bought 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  years ago for \$24,000 with an \$18,000 mortgage at 6 $\frac{3}{4}$  per cent would carry for \$123 a month. Today this same house would cost \$28,000, require a \$21,000 mortgage at 8 $\frac{3}{4}$  per cent and carry at \$170 a month.

A family needs an income of $170 a week to afford this home. That's one reason why more and more women are going out to work.

Eight Senators Will Not Return To 91st Congress

Of the 100 members of the Senate seated when the second session of the 90th Congress began in January, eight will definitely not be back when the 91st Congress convenes.

The most grievous loss will be that of Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D., N.Y.), slain by an assassin's bullet. He served on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee—as well as Government Operations and the District of Columbia—and his votes were always “right” in labor's views.

Another loss will be that of Senator Thomas H. Kuchel (R., Calif.), the Republican Whip who had labor support in his campaign for re-nomination. From the labor standpoint, the loss of Kuchel was only part of the bad news. The other is that his conqueror was Dr. Max Rafferty who is so right wing he makes Governor Ronald Reagan look like a moderate.

Labor's hope in California is that the Democratic nominee, former controller Alan Cranston, will emerge victorious in November.

The retirement of 91-year-old Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) puts a lot of wheels in motion.

It means that Dixiecrat Senator Richard Russell of Georgia becomes chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, providing that the Democrats continue to control the Senate.

It means also that Russell will leave his post as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and this will go to Senator John Stennis (D., Miss.).

Hayden, who came to the Senate in 1927, was also Senate President Pro Tem, since he had top Democratic Seniority. This office will also go to Russell, who was first elected to the Senate in 1933.

Roy L. Elson, who served for many years as Hayden's administrative assistant, will be the Democratic nominee for the post. He will face former Senator Barry Goldwater in November.

The defeat of Senator Frank

Lausche in the Ohio Democratic Primary by labor-supported John Gilligan gives some hope that this seat will go to a liberal. However, Gilligan has a tough fight against Republican Attorney General William Saxbe in the general elections.

Senator Lister Hill's retirement gives Senator Wayne Morse (D., Ore.) Hill's spot as chairman of the all-important Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee—if Morse can defeat his Republican opponent Robert Packard in November.

The retirement of Senator Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa means that the Republicans will have to find a new chairman for the GOP Policy Committee. Senator George Aiken of Vermont is slated to replace him as the ranking Republican of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Another conservative, Senator George Smathers (D., Fla.) won't be back next year, either. Moderate LeRoy Collins, a former Florida governor, is the Democratic nominee, but faces tough opposition from Rep. Edward Gurney, his Republican opponent in November.

Another who won't be back will be Senator Thruston Morton (R., Ky.). He's retiring, too. Seeking his spot will be Democrat Katherine Peden, the only woman member of the President's Riot Commission, and Jefferson County (Louisville) Judge Marlow Cook, the GOP nominee.

It all adds up to four Democrats and four Republicans who will not be returning. But you can tell the office holder by the party label.

A footnote: Even the presiding officer of the Senate, Vice President Humphrey, will not be back in the same post.

Supreme Court Upholds Teachers' Free Speech

Washington—A high school science teacher, fired nearly four years ago for criticizing inadequacies in the school system, will get his job back because his union took his case all the way to the Supreme Court—and won.

Teachers everywhere also won, since the unanimous decision declared that it is “essential” that teachers be free “to speak out freely” on questions of educational policy “without fear of retaliatory dismissal.”

The teacher is Marvin L. Pickering of Lockport, Ill., who in 1964 wrote a letter to the community's weekly newspaper expressing his views “as a citizen, taxpayer and voter.”

Pickering charged academic needs and class facilities were being neglected while large sums were being spent for school sports programs.

The school board said Pickering's charges weren't justified—and fired him.

Pickering was a member of Local 1291 of the American Federation of Teachers—and his union stood up for him.

His local helped raise money to finance the case, but the biggest share came from the AFT defense fund which helps finance legal battles involving basic principles affecting the rights of teachers.

AFT Counsel John Lightenberg carried the case to the U.S. Supreme Court after both a county circuit court and the Illinois Supreme Court had ruled that the school board was within its rights in firing Pickering.

The Supreme Court said it did not matter whether the teacher's charges against the school system were fully accurate or not, so long as false statements were not made knowingly or recklessly.

Good faith criticism, the high court declared, is protected by the free speech guarantees of the First Amendment.

AFT Pres. Charles Cogen said the “landmark” decision “substantiates the position of the AFT that teachers have the same rights as all citizens and in all respects.”

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

The strength of unionism can be simply stated: "United we stand!" That battle cry has been used so often that it has become somewhat trite and in some cases unpopular.

Nevertheless, the statement is still true. More explicitly, we must unite if we are to stand as an organization. We must unite to pool our resources, our manpower, our efforts toward apprenticeship training, and to protect the work that is rightfully ours.

To present a united front, we can have a show of strength only where there is strength. There must be strength in numbers, in bargaining power, in planned efforts of business agents and international representatives, deputy international representatives who are on the job.

For the purpose of gaining strength, it sometimes becomes necessary for smaller locals to merge. It is in the best interest of many locals with less than 10 members and who do not have a full-time or part-time business agent in the field to protect the work which comes under the jurisdiction of our International Union.

As your elected president, I must do everything within my power and that of the International to protect and strengthen your union, your work, and to preserve it for those who will follow us.

The steps which I must choose to accomplish this are not those which are popular. I know that it is not a popular program for local unions which have been in existence for some time to merge.

Let there be no mistake. We are in a struggle for survival. If we fail to meet the demands for qualified workmen from among our membership, the construction industry will seek other alternatives through the selection of substitute material, and the work can then go to trades other than lathers.

We must provide contractors with qualified men on demand. Any failure to do so weakens our power to bargain, undermines our opportunity to secure future work for our men, and does a disservice to the membership of the International Union.

We must move to increase our numerical strength to meet the need for skilled lathers.

As General President I have been receiving calls and telegrams from every section of the U. S. and Canada for more men. There are requests for 5, 10 or 25 in various locations; 50 are needed in Toronto; when issues are resolved in Michigan, there will be a great need for men in this area.

We must meet this need by intensifying our efforts to certify the many competent and qualified mechanics that are now outside union ranks.

We must also start immediately to build our training programs to accommodate many, many more apprentices.

These conditions depend largely on the membership and the strength of the local unions. This brings us back to mergers and the importance of streamlining the activities and functions of local unions. A group of 10 men or less simply cannot provide for a business agent, an apprenticeship program, and other services which a member can find and should expect.

We have achieved success in advantageously combining 12 local unions since January of this year. These locals who have merged are:

LOCAL	LOCATION	TO BE KNOWN AS
455	West Palm Beach, Florida	Local 455
457	Vero Beach, Florida
214	Tampa, Florida	Local 561
456	St. Petersburg, Florida
207	Vancouver, B.C., Canada	Local 207

438 Medford, Oregon
83 Fresno, California	Local 83
499 Visalia, California
185 Wichita, Kansas	Local 185
321 Hutchinson, Kansas

As a further step in strengthening our International Union, we have reorganized the activities of our International Representatives. The purpose of this realignment was to permit these men to troubleshoot problems whenever or wherever they exist in the United States and Canada. This plan has worked very effectively.

We have also announced, at an earlier date, the appointment of deputy International Representatives. There are now 35 of these men, some of whom have already received special assignments. They have proved their worth, both in lightening the load of our International Union and in extending the coverage of our activities to the state councils, district and provincial councils, and our local unions.

The majority of our membership has taken these changes in stride, and has joined in our fight for progress. All are to be commended for their cooperation and merit the thanks of the International officers and staff. Together we can create a stronger, better union.

We cannot expect to work without problems. We cannot say that we will not face disagreements in the future, but the instrumentality of the association of our two groups—the union on one side and the contractor on the other—is living evidence that we must share our problems together and work out the solutions together.

Let there be no mistake about the quality of our endeavor for the International Union. What I have said here does not mean that ours is not the finest union in the construction industry, only that our image needs rebuilding.

It is not because we don't have qualified skilled craftsmen—for we do.

It is not because we don't have a good apprentice program, with good apprentices ready to become mechanics—for we do.

The reason our image suffers is that we do not have enough skilled craftsmen and do not have enough apprentices!

Time is running out for us if we want to preserve what we have and build our organization on a stronger foundation. The way to do this is to have a strongly implemented apprentice-training program—seeking out qualified youngsters, regardless of race, color or creed and train them so that they can step into the shoes of the mechanics.

Our apprenticeship training is just one important aspect of the challenge that we face. We face this challenge by bringing together all our strength, seeking ways and means of keeping current, and employing methods that would least endanger our organizational structure.

Ours is the task of mapping a program of action with sincere faith in our future and the ultimate well-being of all our members.

This is everybody's fight and we should unite without hesitation to achieve victory. We can and we will achieve the goal toward which we are striving. This can be done by all of us working together for the benefit of all members.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

SAL MASO,
International President.

What better way to spend a summer day than in fishing leisurely from a pier, while curious fish lurk in the waters below, ready to bounce a floating cork at the drop of a baited hook? This youngster has the right idea. But he usually needs his dad or his grandfather as a companion, too. Keep it in mind when there's a break in the work schedule.

---

The effects of weather on our day-to-day activities have lessened considerably in recent years. We are able to travel coast-to-coast in the most inclement weather, thanks to radar and instrument-controlled jet airliners. The temperature and humidity can remain the same year round in our homes, churches, schools, in theatres and meeting places, due to simple thermostats and effective central heating and air-conditioning equipment. Even sports arenas are now being completely enclosed to prevent "rained-out" ball games. The military can now wage war during monsoons and in desert climes with full fury.

Yet, seasonal changes in the weather still have a severe effect on work practices and overall employment in the construction and building trades industries.

Low temperatures, frozen ground, snow, rain and mud have for centuries impeded outdoor construction. And, by association, lathers feel the effects of lessened employment or unemployment during the winter season, although most of the work is indoors.

Continuing technological advances in recent years have made it possible to overcome many, if not most, seasonal obstacles. Since World War II, for example, many new materials and techniques have been introduced which permit most work to continue with little interruption 12 months of the year. Concrete may now be poured at very low temperatures, paints have been "climatized," materials have been made water resistant and insensitive to low temperatures.

Custom and tradition, however, which add to the seasonal nature of the construction industry are hard to overcome. As early as 1924, Herbert Hoover (then Secretary of Commerce) said, "... the seasonal character of the construction industry is to a considerable extent a matter of custom and habit, not of climatic necessity."

A couple of years ago the Bureau of Labor Statistics undertook a comprehensive study of seasonality as it affects employment, productivity and other factors related to the building and construction industry. The facts are just now being evaluated, although preliminary results have already been released.

It has been revealed, first of all, that the "feast or famine" employment situation costs all Americans considerably in that it is reflected in the eventual price of a home or building. The unemployment situation in winter months places a great burden on welfare and unemployment compensation boards, to say nothing of the economic suffering of the families directly involved. In the summer months, the shortage of skilled workmen is just as critical, causing completion delays, plus a rush that can be unsafe and unnecessarily expensive.

A second preliminary finding of the report was that other nations are doing something about seasonality. Canada, Japan, many European countries—especially the Scandinavian nations—have at least partially solved many of the problems.

One of the most frequent solutions to these problems in other parts of the world involves better planning and better scheduling of all types of construction. Better, long-range planning of projects—both large and small—could have a profound effect on work in this country, just as well. Adequate manpower scheduling would end jobless lulls between jobs, and eliminate delays routinely caused in order to mobilize a new crew once work is resumed.

These employment practices that run hot and cold with the weather, literally, have a profound effect on lathers and other construction craftsmen as they seek to attract competent apprentices. In all too many cases, contractors have expected us to have workmen "hanging on the hook," waiting to be called for a job. During the less active winter months, these same workmen are expected to "evaporate."

Another undesirable effect of off-again, on-again employment due to the weather, is the false illusion which surrounds the pay scale. Too often union gains get into the newspaper headlines, giving the impression that the lathers and other construction workers receive very high hourly pay. Such stories always fail to mention that these workmen must make enough during "good" months to make up for jobless days and weeks in winter months when there is no income at all.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics is uncovering facts which we have known all along, but this newly-documented information has generated enough concern to arouse the interest of Congress. Pressure has been rising in the House of Representatives and in the Senate to find workable solutions in U. S. seasonality problems. To this end, legislation has been introduced by Congressman James O'Hara of Michigan which would finance a continuing study of seasonality. Still more far-reaching legislation has been introduced by Senator Winston Prouty of Vermont.

The first tangible action on this legislation took the form of week-long hearings in July, conducted by Congressman O'Hara. The seriousness of seasonality was voiced in the hearings by Undersecretary of Labor James Reynolds. Lathers and all other construction groups have much at stake in the outcome of these hearings and any resulting legislation. The labor movement will take an active role in fostering any positive action to diminish the real and imagined grip of the weather on our work. We are sure the Building Trades Dept. will be active in this.

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Court Upholds Law Applying Wage-Hour Rules to Hospitals

The Supreme Court recently ruled in a 6 to 2 decision to uphold a federal law including hospital and nursing home workers under federal minimum wage and hour protection. The law, authored by Congressman Phillip Burton of California, was passed by Congress in 1966 but later contested in court by 28 states. The states contended that the federal government could not legislate wage and hour regulations applicable to state and local governments.

Congressman Burton, a member of the House's General Subcommittee on Labor which drafted the 1966 amendments, commented:

"There was never any doubt in our minds about the validity of the law, but it is nevertheless gratifying to have our effort stamped with the Supreme Court's approval."

Hospital and nursing home employees included under the protection of the law by the 1966 amendments currently are assured a minimum wage of $1.15 an hour, which will be escalated in 15-cent annual increments up to $1.60 an hour (the basic federal minimum wage) in 1971.

Congressman Burton said an estimated 1,471,000 hospital and nursing home employees were covered by the amendments.

Local 9 Adds Important Features To National Presbyterian Church

The main sanctuary of the National Presbyterian Church, where up to a dozen lathers of Local No. 9 have been kept busy since February. All walls, arches, and even all overhead beams shown here are lathed and plastered.

The beautiful National Presbyterian Church is now nearing completion in northwest Washington, D.C. The lathing and plastering contractor for the large structure is Rubino & Farris, Inc.

The church is destined to become an important landmark in the nation's capital city, and it will also be a lasting example of the craftsmanship of Lathers of Local Union No. 9.

An average of 12 lathers have been on the job since February of this year and still have considerable work yet to do in the giant, all lath-and-plaster interior. It is estimated that more than six miles of bead have gone into the structure, which employs seemingly endless rows of multicornered overhead lath beams and intricate curves and arches.

There are 400 rows of bead in the beamed ceiling of the main sanctuary alone. Each beam is 52 feet long, making a total of 104 feet of corner bead used in each beam. The beams are 14 inches wide and eight inches deep, each with corner beads and skirt troughs. These "false" beams are supported approximately six feet above the real steel-beamed roof by 8 gage hanger wires. The beams and arches were fabricated on the site, using the milcor metal lath panel stitching system. The lathed beams are completed with scratch, finish and spray coats of grey plaster which will retain their natural color.

To make the job more breathtaking, at least from the lathers' point of view, ceiling work was done from 67-foot-high scaffolds.

Even hallways, classrooms, and other areas required extensive and oftentimes elaborate lathing and plastering. Yet to be completed by lathers and plasterers is a large chapel adjacent to the main church structure.

Going over the plans are Pat Malone (left), lathing and plastering superintendente for Rubino & Farris, Inc., and Charles King, lathing foreman from Local No. 9.

Installing base bead in one of the church's many rooms is lather Warren Weare.

Arches and beams come to a dramatic point over the church altar, involving intricate and exacting lath work. The plastered beams are constructed of channel iron brackets and lath hung six feet from the real steel-beamed ceiling by hanger wires.

Retirees Have Their Problems But Most Enjoy Retirement

When it's time to retire, what will it be like?

Some answers to this question were disclosed in a study made by the Los Angeles County AFL-CIO and the Administration on Aging under terms of the Older Americans Act of 1965.

Personal interviews were held with 1,250 retirees from local unions affiliated with ten internationals. The average age was 69.8 years and most had retired about 1962 after 29.8 years as union members.

Social Security was a source of income for 95.3 percent and 70.1 percent received money from negotiated union pensions.

Some of the retirees had savings, but little, and their average monthly income was $300.75. Their yearly income was $3,609.00.

"When taking a closer look at income and expense data," the report said, "approximately 65 percent had average yearly incomes of less than $4,000 a year."

When it came to expenses, the great bulk of those interviewed showed that they only "got by." Their average monthly expenses were $291.55 and yearly, $3,498.60.

Sixty percent of the retirees questioned said they were enjoying their retirement. Just over 31 percent said they were enjoying their retirement "somewhat." Only eight percent declared they were not enjoying their retirement.

About one-third said that health was their major problem in retirement and another third said it was finances. Loneliness hurt 2.6 percent and 5.3 percent said they had "nothing to do." Almost 30 percent said they had no problems.

Why did they retire? A total of 33.2 percent said it was by choice, 31.9 percent said it was mandatory and 30.7 percent gave poor health as the reason.

The great majority of the retirees were not working and there were a number of reasons. Physical conditions were cited by 42.2 percent as the reason for not working, 30.2 percent didn't want to work and 14.3 percent said no jobs were available.

Over 62 percent of the retirees owned their own homes and 37 percent rented.

Health was carefully surveyed in the study. In their replies 48 percent claimed good health, 33 percent average health and 17.5 percent poor health.

Only 15%, however, said their activities were greatly affected by "poor health." A bigger percentage of women than men complained of bad health.

One of the few editorial comments made in this report is that those questioned showed a "serious misunderstanding" of the provisions of Medicare. No doubt this was due in large part to the fact that the program had not been in effect for any length of time when the survey was conducted.

American Labor Group Aids Argentine Workers' Project

Members of four Argentine trade unions are the recipients of the largest housing loan ever made to Latin American workers under the Alliance for Progress and the sponsorship of the American Institute for Free Labor Development.

Loan agreements were recently signed and construction started on a $13 million project to house more than 1,660 families in 52 apartment buildings on eight sites. The housing developments will range from three-story buildings to 15-story high rise apartment structures situated in Buenos Aires and the communities of Bahia Blanca and Pergamino.

The prospective homeowners are members of unions representing more than 330,000 Argentine workers—the Postal & Communications Workers, the Light & Power Workers, the

And only 22 percent of the interviewees had personal experience with the workings of this new system.

Many who did use Medicare said that one illness either would have exhausted their entire savings in order to be able to be reimbursed by the insurance carrier, or close to that.

However, in Los Angeles, long delays in waiting for Medicare repayment were probably not as great as in many other places. The replies show that 41 percent of this sample collected within 30 days; 11.2 percent had to wait over 90 days to have their claims processed.

Asked how their doctors' fees compared after Medicare with those paid before the law went into effect, 32.2 percent said charges were higher, 27.6 percent said "the same," but over 40 percent simply didn't know.

The survey points out, however, that had the question been asked differently, probably more than 53% would have paid higher doctor bills.

John Edelman, president of the National Council of Senior Citizens, praised the Los Angeles labor body for "having pioneered in this area and for having done such a revealing and technically competent job."

Municipal Workers and the Railway Workers. Each family purchasing one of the two or three-bedroom units will make a 10 percent down payment and make monthly payments at 6.5 percent interest on the balance over 25 years.

Besides sponsoring the project, AIFLD is helping the four Argentine unions set up housing cooperatives for the future home owners.

The largest project previously sponsored by the AIFLD was the $10-million John F. Kennedy housing development in Mexico City which was financed by funds from AFL-CIO unions. Since 1963, more than 13,000 housing units costing over $50 million have been completed or are under construction with AIFLD sponsorship in 10 Latin American countries.

'Right To Work' Fails in Louisiana

For ten years now, a group called the National Right-to-Work Committee has been traveling the country trying to revive this concept, designed to ban Union Shops. According to the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, the Committee now has "a current annual budget of about $875,000." Its 30,000 members pay yearly dues—which they call contributions—averaging $35 each.

While the National Right-to-Work Committee may be big business from a financial standpoint, its business successes have been virtually nil.

In its last big attempt, the Committee has worked round the clock for six months in Louisiana paving the way for two bills introduced in the state legislature.

The Committee's time and money were wasted, however, because the wise Louisiana lawmakers—who had had a taste of "right-to-work" years earlier—soundly rejected the new bills.

Merged Florida Unions Presented Local 561 Charter In Ceremony

Presentation of a new charter has been made to Local Union No. 561 in recent ceremonies. The new Tampa-St. Petersburg, Florida, group represents the merger of Locals 214 and 456. The merger became effective March 1. Shown here with General President Maso and Deputy Representative Anthony Siino are officers of Local No. 561 (left to right): Harold Smith, executive board member; Siino, Richard DeCiucies, business agent; Ray Berchtold, delegate to Building Trades; A. M. Martin, sergeant-at-arms; John Brengle executive board member; Gerry Reed, recording secretary; Thomas Cooper, president; Marvin Jackson, vice president; and Walter Cassell, secretary and treasurer.

Law Gives Older Workmen Equal Job Opportunity

A new federal law has gone into effect aimed at giving equal job opportunity to persons between the ages of 40 and 65 who too often have been turned away, or turned out, because they were "too old." Whereas the new legislation is designed to cover all workmen, Lathers International saw fit some time ago to protect its senior members. It has inserted in the Constitution (Sec. 123) a recommendation that states, in essence, "at least one journeyman lather over 50 years of age be assigned, where available, for every five men on a job."

The U. S. government first issued guidelines for older workers in local agencies of the U. S. Employment Service in 1951. Limited progress followed with the passage of the Older Americans Act of 1965.

Last year President Johnson called for stronger legislation against age discrimination in employment in his "Message for Older Americans,"

In testimony at Senate hearings, Labor Sec. W. Willard Wirtz pointed out that there are 37 million men and women in this country between the ages of 45 and 64, and by 1975 there will be 44 million between 45 and 54.

Wirtz also noted that in 1964 about half of all private job openings were barred to applicants over 55; a quarter to those over 45 and almost all to those over 65.

This and other testimony led to the passage of the Age Discrimination Act of 1967 which became effective this June 12.

The law covers individuals 40 to 65 years old from age discrimination by employers of 25 or more persons in an industry affecting interstate commerce, by employment agencies serving such employers and by labor unions.

An employer cannot fail or refuse to hire or to discharge or to otherwise discriminate against any individual as to compensation, terms or privileges of employment because of age.

In addition, an employer cannot limit, segregate or classify his employees so as to deprive any individual of employment opportunities or adversely affect his status, as an employee, because of age. And, finally, it is against the law for an employer to reduce the wage rate of an employee to comply with the Act.

The Secretary of Labor is charged with enforcing the law. He can make investigations, issue rules and regulations for administration of the law and enforce its provisions by legal proceeding when voluntary compliance is not obtained.

Canadian Construction Wages Rise

In the first quarter of 1968, average construction industry weekly wages rose from $132.89 in February to $133.47 in March. The increase was due to a one-third hour longer average work week, says the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in its most recently released labor statistics.

Compared to March 1967 figures, average weekly hours were 1.5 hours higher and average hourly earnings were 17 cents higher.

Construction workers fared better in March of this year than other segments of the Canadian work force, according to the Bureau of Statistics report, in that manufacturing showed little change, and mining weekly wages dipped slightly.

Real Estate Speculation Aggravates Housing Problem

Ways are being sought by the new Trudeau government of Canada to curb land speculation and to induce greater activity by private enterprise in the housing field.

The current mortgage interest rate is nine percent, and housing costs are such that home ownership is in reach of only those who earn over $8500 per year.

The Canadian Welfare Council will begin a major investigation this fall into the housing problems which plague Canada, after more than a year

Seaway Strike Ended

Several Strikes Mark Canadian Summer

Large-scale strike action in a number of major Canadian industries has been in progress and other strikes appear imminent.

The 24-day strike over contract terms has been ended by the St. Lawrence Seaway workers and the Seaway Authority. The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport & General Workers representing 1250 bridge and lock operators, office workers and maintenance crews have ratified an offer of a 19 percent wage increase over a three-year period, and added Boxing Day, Dec. 26, to its list of 11 paid holidays. The Seaway workers struck June 21 for wage parity and protection against replacement of men by machines.

Postal workers in Canada also went on strike in mid-July, tie-ing up mail throughout the Provinces.

The mail strike involves 24,000 mail deliverers and clerks. Negotiations between officials of the Federal Government's Treasury Board and the Council of Postal Unions focus on the wide difference between a 75-cent-hourly increase asked by the postal workers, and the 15 cents an hour offered by the government.

Another dispute forced the walkout July 11 of lakehead grain handlers. Canadian railroads immediately imposed an embargo on grain shipments from the prairies to the lakeland at Fort William and Port Arthur.

Strikes are also on in the rubber industry and the farm implement industry (International Harvester).

Contemplating strike action are employees of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the pulp and paper unions, and Air Canada pilots and air traffic control employees.

And the striking workers—especially in Ontario—were somewhat limited in what they could do with their idle time, since beer was unavailable as 2760 members of the International Union of Brewery, Malt and Soft Drink Workers struck Molson's Brewery and then were locked out by all other breweries.

ON-THE-JOB SLAUGHTER CONTINUES AS CONGRESS DEBATES JOB SAFETY BILL

Industry opposition of Administration's Occupational Safety and Health Bill stiffens; National Safety Council bows to pressure and eases its support.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Esther Peterson, visiting the site of the recent construction tragedy in Arlington, Va., declared that such accidents are proof that a national safety standards bill should be passed.

Three workmen were killed and over 30 injured when part of the third floor of freshly-poured concrete collapsed, crashing through the lower two floors and taking the three workmen to their death.

The exact cause of the accident is not known. An investigation is under way to determine the cause.

Virginia has no standards governing concrete construction. Under the proposed Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1968, Mrs. Peterson said, "such standards would be required on every construction site.

"It is entirely possible that if such a law were already on the books, these three tragic deaths might not have occurred."

She expressed shock by what she saw at the construction site, saying she is "convinced more than ever before that a national safety standards bill must be passed."

The proposed Occupational Safety and Health Law of 1968, pending in both houses of Congress, hopefully would help eliminate such on-the-job accidents that annually kill 14,000 to 15,000 workmen, disable over 2 million, and hurt another 7 million.

As currently outlined, the bill would establish enforceable minimum health and safety standards in all plants operating in interstate commerce, and would provide for information gathering, research, training and education in the cause and prevention of work accidents and diseases.

Organized labor has given its whole-hearted support of the national Job Safety Bill, and several leaders of individual unions and officers of the AFL-CIO have testified before the Joint Congressional Committee, urging its immediate passage.

The Job Safety Bill has split segments of the normally outspoken leader of safety in America, the powerful National Safety Council.

The Labor Conference of the National Safety Council accused the council's board of directors of yielding to industry pressure and "watering down" the NSC stand on the Occupational Safety & Health bill.

The labor group charged that the Safety Council had retreated from "what was a sensible, informed and constructive council position on the proposed safety legislation." That position had been worked out last February by a joint committee of the council's Labor and Industry Conference.

The "tattered remains" of that agreement, the Labor Conference said, amounted to "an ambiguous and watered-down position . . . not calculated to convince the public of the council's single-minded devotion to safety."

Doubt as to the council's position already had been raised in the public and Congress, the labor conference noted, by the NSC's "sudden postponement of its commitment to testify just a few days before a scheduled appearance" at House committee hearings on the safety bill.

What happened to cause the shift was "belated pressures" that reduced the council's position to a "sad state," the Labor Conference declared.

It was told that these pressures were brought to bear on NSC officials after the U.S. Chamber of Commerce obtained a copy of the February agreement. The Chamber has taken an almost hysterical stand in opposition to federal standards for job safety as provided in the pending bill.

The Labor Conference is made up of nearly 100 union and government experts on industrial safety, occupational health and related fields. Its action criticizing the Safety Council for backtracking came through endorsement of a statement by Conference Chairman Paul Connelley, safety director of the Carpenters. The statement had been presented by Connelley to the NSC board of directors, Apr. 16, in a futile attempt to persuade the board to adhere to the February agreement. A report of the Apr. 16 meeting and the events leading up to it was presented to the conference by NSC Vice Pres. for Labor Arthur P. Gildea, secretary-treasurer of the Brewery Workers.

The joint memorandum of agreement reached in February led with two key points:

- "The federal government has the right and the obligation to be concerned with occupational safety and health.

- "There is need for reasonably uniform standards dealing with occupational safety and health, and there should be federal legislation designed to achieve this end in the most efficient and effective manner."

But this unequivocal position failed to appear in the NSC statement authorized by the Apr. 16 meetings of the executive committee and board.

Truth-In-Lending Law Permits Buyer To Shop For Credit

For the first time, consumers will be able to shop for dollar values in credit just as they do for other items, thanks to the new federal Truth-in-Lending Law, a top consumer lobbyist for organized labor reported in a network radio interview.

Evelyn Dubrow, legislative representative for the Ladies' Garment Workers, predicted that although the new law won't be fully effective until next year, "many banks, and loan companies, and department stores" will begin to put their practices in line with the law now, instead of waiting until they are forced to do so.

She pointed out that the law's effective date was deferred to give the Federal Reserve Board and the Secretary of Labor time to formulate various standards, regulations and guidelines for the statute.

Appearing on the AFL-CIO produced public service program Labor News Conference, Miss Dubrow listed major requirements of the law as:

- Exact statement of interest charges—in annual rates—on loans, installment contracts and revolving credit accounts.
- Exact statement in credit advertising of fees for life insurance or other items connected with the transaction.
- Clear statement of the full purchase price and interest rate, to end "vague language in the credit business, such as 'one dollar down and one dollar a week.'"
- Regulation of wage attachments or garnishments that follow payment-defaults on installment purchases or revolving credit accounts. States that have "better garnishment laws" are exempted from this provision.

Apprentice Release

Section 193e of the LIU Constitution provides that an apprentice may change to another local from the one in which he has been indentured provided he can show reasonable cause for such a change. On the opposite page is a copy of an apprentice release and acceptance form which must be used by a local union secretary if an apprentice moves to another local. Copies of these forms are available at Headquarters.

Columbus Day Becomes National Holiday

Starting in 1971, the second Monday in October will be celebrated as Columbus Day, a new national holiday. Also, four major holidays will be observed on Monday beginning in that year, which will make for a nice combination of three-day weekends scattered throughout the calendar.

The changes result from the passage of the Monday holiday bill passed by Congress and signed by President Johnson in June.

It provides for the observance of Washington's Birthday on the third Monday in February, sets Memorial Day for the last Monday in May, and establishes the fourth Monday in October as Veterans' Day.

Labor Day remains the first Monday in September and no change is made in the traditional observance of Independence Day, Christmas, Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

The legislation passed by Congress applies only to the District of Columbia and to federal offices and establishments elsewhere. However the states normally follow the federal lead in setting dates for holiday observances. The effective date of the federal law was set for 1971 to allow states time to act.

In negotiating holiday clauses in upcoming contracts, it will be well to remember that these "holidays" are not automatic, and must be negotiated.

Farmer to Pay $50,000 in Minimum Wage Violation

A federal judge ordered a wealthy Mississippi plantation owner to pay 200 Negro laborers a total of $50,000 in back wages and stop overcharging them for the shacks in which they once lived rent-free.

The Labor Department suit to recover back wages was the first brought on behalf of farm workers since they came under the Fair Labor Standards Act a year and a half ago.

It was filed against Joseph Roy Flowers, owner of 16,000 acres of Mississippi delta land. About 12,000 acres are planted in cotton and soybeans. For the acres he does not plant, Flowers receives more than $210,000 a year in federal payments.

The Labor Department suit—which was not contested — charged that Flowers sought to nullify the raises he had to give his field workers when the $1-an-hour minimum wage went into effect in 1967 by imposing exorbitant rent charges and other fees.

The farm worker minimum, which applies only to farms using large numbers of workers, moved up to $1.15 an hour last February and will reach a final step of $1.30 in February 1969.

Flowers imposed charges of up to $70 a month for wooden shacks after the minimum wage took effect, and required payments of more than $150 a year for wood for heatings and $3 for sacks used in picking cotton.

With the help of Federal Housing Authority appraisers, the Labor Department and Flowers agreed on a $5-a-month rental including fuel wood, as a reasonable charge for the shacks.

U. S. District Judge William C. Keady also permanently enjoined Flowers from violating the law's minimum wage, overtime pay, record-keeping or child-labor provisions.

About 15 of Flowers' non-agricultural workers were found to be covered by the general wage-hour law and must be paid at least $1.60 an hour with overtime rates after 40 hours.

Under the consent judgment, Flowers has paid the $50,000 to the Labor Department which will supervise distribution of the money to eligible workers.

The difference 25 Congressmen can make

25 Additional Liberal Congressmen Will Mean . . .

- Slumless cities
- Decent homes for all Americans
- Pure air, clean water
- Consumer protection
- Better programs of aid to education
- Expanded Head Start and Teacher Corps
- Upgraded literacy and learning
- Education for all to the highest level their ability permits
- Strengthened rights of workers
- Job protection
- High employment
- Union growth
- All-out war on poverty
- Job-creating measures
- Good wages for all working people
- Better health care, a brake on soaring medical costs
- War against crime and against the causes of much crime—deprivation and loss of hope
- Further progress in human rights

25 Additional Conservative Congressmen Will Mean

- Perpetuation and spread of slums
- Continued shortage of good housing
- Rampant pollution
- Consumers unprotected
- Cutback in aid to education
- Shutdown of experimental programs to help children of the poor
- Financial roadblocks to higher education for modest and low income youngsters
- Anti-union legislation (labor under anti-trust, multi-union bargaining outlawed, curbs on labor in politics)
- Economic slowdown
- Rising unemployment
- Surrender to poverty
- Abandonment of job-creating programs
- Erosion of wage scales
- Poorer health care, rapidly increasing medical costs
- War against crime waged vindictively without getting at crime's causes
- An end to the march of progress in human rights

ABC Non-Union Contractors

If you think "ABC" is kid stuff, you've been playing with a different set of building blocks. While union men everywhere have been relaxing in an abundance of work and content to fight among ourselves, the three letters, ABC have taken on a very sinister meaning.

ABC means Associated Builders & Contractors. Some 18 years ago this Baltimore-based group began with just seven contractors. Now ABC has more than 4,000 contractor members. The organization has charters in Maryland, Iowa, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and Michigan.

ABC is now spreading throughout the country.

The organization has pension funds, health and welfare funds and it has established apprenticeship programs throughout most of the areas mentioned. It has a profit-sharing program, too.

Associated Builders & Contractors has also produced a 30-minute, sound and color film—estimated at $100,000 in cost—which is being distributed to school and civic groups.

The ABC, its welfare plans and its films all have but one purpose: to undercut the unions.

The seriousness of ABC was underscored recently by Guido Iozzi, Jr., president of the Baltimore Building and Construction Trades Council.

"The ABC succeeded because our unions were fat with work and asleep with false confidence."

Iozzi goes further in laying it on the line. "After World War II we had a new breed of American who believes in a full belly and a fast buck. This new breed replaced the old craftsmen in the Building Trades movement. They rejected men who wanted to join the union. They forced these men to work on permits but in doing so, they actually trained these men into highly skilled craftsmen who later got jobs with the ABC. In other words, the union built up the work force for the ABC."

A word to the wise is sufficient. Iozzi and other men like him have warned us of the perils of this union-busting group. We must be diligent in our efforts to repel their attack on our hard-fought and hard-earned rights as union craftsmen. We can do it if we pull together, setting aside our clannish, selfish ways, and stop fighting among ourselves.

Each of our local unions should see to it that they are affiliated with local Building and Construction Trades Councils, and that our business agents are affiliated with the Board of Business Agents of the Building and Construction Trades Councils in their area. In this way our representatives will be better informed and be able to build a better union for all our members. We also need more apprentices, and we need to organize the unorganized.

As your president, I have given consideration to many of our local unions in the United States and Canada by granting special dispensation to aid in organizing unions and bring men back into the fold. This cooperation will continue to be granted and any additional services within our means will be extended.

Apprenticeship Training Is Our Life Blood

Apprenticeship training is the life blood of our industry. If we are to continue our identity in the building construction industry, we must train apprentices. It is the duty and obligation of every local union to service and police our work jurisdiction. To service, we must have manpower, which means the training of apprentices for the present and future. We have stated before and are stating again—when a job is delayed because there are no lathers available, you can bet your bottom dollar that the architect on that particular job will delete lath and plaster from the specifications on his next job.

A number of years ago, a committee from the CPLIA joined with a committee from the LIU to discuss apprentice training within the lathing industry. This committee from its inception recognized the need for a comprehensive and uniform apprentice training program, and proceeded to formulate such a program.

Much time, effort and money was expended in the development of such a program, but it is now complete and we have a program to be proud of. Both those local unions and contractors who had faith in and pioneered in this program morally and financially deserve much credit. Our apprentice program is geared to fit the needs of any local union, large or small. For those local unions who have classroom sessions, we have a classroom manual. For smaller locals, we have the correspondence course. Each is complete in the knowledge of the trade of lathing.

Our standards and program have been accepted by the United States Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training. Registering your apprentice program and standards with the Regional Office of the U. S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training is a protection for both the local union and the employer.

Just recently we were informed that a local union had failed to register an apprentice with their regional office of the U. S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training. This apprentice had been employed by a contractor on a Federally financed job. Failure to register this apprentice made the contractor liable to pay journeyman's rate to the apprentice for the length of time he had worked on that job.

Participation in our national program would avoid such embarrassing situations. So it behooves all local unions not now participating in our apprenticeship training program to affiliate immediately.

I understand the regional offices of the U. S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training are making a survey to ascertain the number of apprentice programs not registered. We will be happy to supply any further information regarding our program which you may desire.

Maze of rod, wire and bead being assembled to form a base for a lath and plaster ceiling in the Dow High School.

In Midland, Michigan

Lath and Plaster Widely Used in High School

The intricacies of the lathing craft are well illustrated in the new Herbert Henry Dow High School now being completed in Midland, Michigan. The project showed the abilities of lathers from Local 180, of Lansing, Michigan, and Local 131, of Saginaw, Michigan.

The school was constructed under the direction of Collinson Construction Company of Midland, general contractor. The architect was James Howell, A.I.A., with the architectural firm of Alden B. Dow Associates, Inc., of Midland. Lathing and plastering contractor for the job was Larry Brooks & Associates, of Okemos, Michigan.

Architect Howell is a strong advocate of lath and plaster, which resulted in its extensive use in the Dow High School.

Foil backed rock lath was used in skylight wells for reflective purposes. Skylights and recessed lighting were concealed by egg crate panels, also employing a considerable amount of lathing. Numerous other ceilings, including the school's Little Theatre, were of metal lath and plaster.

There were several thousand yards of exterior suspended canopies of galvanized channels and lath.

Expansion beads and plaster stops were used on the entire job.

Lathing foreman was E. V. Amey, Local 180, and layout man and steward was Eugene Robinson, Local 131. Other lathers on the job were G. Rapin, C. Robinson, H. Broughton, J. Traxler, F. Horner, R. Prior, J. Flanders and R. Amey.

Lath work complete in the ceiling section. Dimensions of the ceiling are 42 by 35 feet, with twenty skylights, 7 feet center-to-center.

Foil backed rock lath used in skylight wells results in this dramatic lighting effect in the completed ceiling.

THE DARK SIDE OF THE MARKETPLACE

by SAM MARSHALL
AFL-CIO Department of Public Relations

A savage indictment of the mercenaries among merchants is punched out in human terms by Senator Warren G. Magnuson in his new and angry book, "The Dark Side of the Marketplace."

The Washington Democrat rips antiquated debt-collecting laws as "instruments of extortion." They are, he says, "as destructive and vicious as the debtor's dungeons" of centuries past.

The book is broken into two equally devastating parts. The first deals with widespread legal larceny committed by those who prey generally on people least able to cope with their con game.

The second is a chilling exposure of the extent to which millions of unsuspecting Americans are endangered—often maimed and killed—by those who profit through a lack of laws protecting the health and safety of the individual.

Examples are liberally sprinkled through the book. Like the 56-year-old lady who lost her house at a public auction where it brought a rigged price of $26.50.

Mrs. Elsie Phillips of Los Angeles took her radio to a shop to be repaired, believing it could be done for $1. Senator Magnuson tells the rest of the story this way:

"But when she learned the bill was to be $8.90, she dispatched her 20-year-old son to retrieve the radio.

"Instead, he bought a new radio at payments of $1.25 per week and Mrs. Phillips signed the sales contract. When payments were not prompt, the dealer obtained a court judgment, ordering return of the radio and $81.50 in court costs and collection fees.

"It was easy to return the radio, but Mrs. Phillips could not produce $81.50. To satisfy this debt, the dealer then forced sale of her house and lot at public auction. As the only bidder, the radio dealer himself bought the property for $26.50. Mrs. Phillips was allowed to stay on, at $10 a week rent.

"A year was required before the deed to the house could be officially turned over to the radio shop owner and, during those 12 months, Mrs. Phillips could have saved her home by paying the $26.50 plus a $25 marshal's fee.

"But no one told her and, by the time she found out, the deed had been transferred and there was nothing she could do. She simply 'sat on the porch of her dingy . . . home,' reported Time magazine, 'and wept'."

Deceptive Selling

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, estimates that there are some 800 varieties of deceptive selling practices that legally rob Americans "of several billion dollars yearly—more than is lost through robbery, burglary, larceny, auto theft, embezzlement and forgery combined.”

Weak state laws—and in some cases states with no consumer protection at all—combine with a lack of federal statutes to permit the swindles. A few states, like Washington, have stronger statutes, and the results are startling.

While noting that there is no color line where swindlers are involved, Senator Magnuson writes that “the evils of allowing legalized thievery to flourish are nowhere more strikingly evident than among the poor, especially the minority groups in the ghettos.”

Wage Garnishments

He strikes particularly hard at wage garnishments. “In Seattle,” he reports, “a young man bought a motorcycle and, when he found he could not meet the payments, repeatedly asked the company to repossess it; they refused and instead sued him for the purchase price, tying up all of his wages for two pay periods.

“Desperate, in May 1967 he went to the seller, but reportedly received no mercy. He went home and took his life.”

The Senator adds this kicker:

“Ironically, the debtor’s death made collection of the debt easier. The company no longer had to go through the formality of garnishment proceedings. They merely collected on credit life insurance the young man had bought upon purchasing the motorcycle.”

Many suffer. A Cleveland man and his wife were left with $10 a week to live on after his wages of $89.50 a week were garnished.

Many lose their jobs. Employers frequently fire workers whose wages are garnished. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said data indicates that 100,000 to 300,000 workers a year lose their jobs because their wages are attached.

“We found,” Wirtz said, “that more people explained their unemployment on the basis of garnishment than on their police records—which brought us up short.”

Irrevocable Contracts

Magnuson raps the irrevocable contract, generally the work of the door-to-door salesman. “An amazing number of people are induced to sign contracts in sheer fatigue,” the authors note. “The Consumer Fraud Bureau in California reports that ‘many home owners purchase encyclopedias, cameras, vacuum cleaners and aluminum siding at 2 a.m., and 3 a.m. and 4 a.m., after many hours of high-pressure sales techniques.’”

Buyers awake in the morning and know immediately they have been taken. But it’s too late. The contract is irrevocable.

Sharp warnings against signing “confessions of judgment,” often called cognovit notes, and “balloon contracts” are presented. Signature of a cognovit note leaves the debtor totally defenseless—he confesses that he owes, under the terms written, whatever is in the contract. The “balloon contract” provides for a series of small payments, with an enormous—and frequently unmeetable—payment at the end.

Laws, Magnuson says, are needed to eliminate the repossession racket, too. He tells of a soldier who bought a used car for $600.

Car insurance plus credit life insurance and finance charges raised the price to $1,200. After paying $200, the soldier decided he could not continue paying. The company repossessed the car, selling it to a “dummy” bidder for $200. This was subtracted from the $1,000 the soldier still owed.

Now the soldier owed $800 for a $600 car he no longer had—much of it for insurance and credit charges he never used.

The company, meanwhile, sold the car again for $600—plus the additional load of $600 for finance and insurance charges.

“Such cars can be sold over and over, producing enormous incomes in credit charges, and are called ‘Lassies’ because they always come home,” the authors note.

Senator Magnuson reports that today’s credit debt is $95 billion, excluding mortgages.

“The interest and finance charges on this consumer credit debt is $13 billion, almost as much as the interest payments on the entire $300 billion federal debt,” he writes.

Guinea Pigs

The section on health and safety aptly opens with a chapter titled “200,000,000 Guinea Pigs.” Revealed are such items as:

- About 100,000 persons will be cut, disfigured or killed this year while walking through glass doors. Safety glass could prevent this carnage.

- Accidents are the number one cause of death for persons aged one through 36.

- 100,000 persons will be mangled or killed while operating power mowers. Rotary mowers will amputate feet and hands, even though blades can be designed to stop when the operator releases the handle, and even though blades will cut grass just as well at 11,000 rpm as at the 21,000 rpm commonly used.

- Fire will engulf 150,000 persons who will suffer excruciating pain, often scars and not infrequently death because the fabric they wear, as well as their bedding and upholstery, is flammable.

- A thousand persons will be electrocuted and many times a thousand will be burned and injured by faulty electrical equipment.

- Babies will be strangled in ill-designed cribs.

Magnuson and Miss Carper have avoided the temptation to write in technical terms. They have told it like it is.

Labor Day is YOUR Holiday

"No one day in the calendar is a greater fixture, one which is more truly regarded as a real holiday, or one which is so surely destined to endure for all time, than the first Monday in September of each recurring year, Labor Day. Labor Day differs in every essential from the other holidays of the year of any country . . . It is devoted to no man, living or dead: to no sect, sex, race or nation. It is founded upon the highest principles of humanity, is as broad in its scope as the universe." This was the Labor Day statement of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, before the turn of this century.

Labor day is one day that rightfully belongs to American workers who toil diligently day by day to contribute their share to the greatness of America.

Labor Day rightfully belongs to American workers who toil diligently day after day to contribute their share to the greatness of this nation.

Long before Labor Day became a legal public holiday it was celebrated by workers as a day of festive activity and rest from their daily tasks. It was the creation of laborers, not of politicians. It was the brainchild of a union carpenter 12 years before Labor Day was proclaimed a national holiday by act of Congress.

Peter J. McGuire, a native of New York City, who joined the ranks of America's toilers while still a child, was the father of the observance in honor of the country's working people.

Asks Labor Day Holiday

In May of 1882, he stood before the newly organized Central Labor

Union of New York City and proposed that one day of the year be set aside as a general holiday for the working masses.

McGuire suggested that the holiday be known as Labor Day and that it be set for the first Monday in September, which would put it midway between two national holidays—the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving.

Other delegates to the meeting enthusiastically embraced the idea. A committee was named and soon preparations were under way for the initial celebration of Labor Day.

Approximately two years after this first Labor Day, the 26 delegates to the fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor held in Chicago adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the first Monday in September of each year be set apart as a laborers' national holiday, and that we recommend its observance by all wage workers, irrespective of sex, calling or nationality."

During the next few years organized labor devoted its attention to securing state legislation making Labor Day a legal holiday. As early as 1887, Oregon enacted the first state law, but this measure designated the first Saturday in June as Labor Day. This was changed to the first Monday in September in 1893. Ultimately, 23 states proclaimed Labor Day a legal holiday.

Made Legal in 1894

The Labor committee of the U.S. House of Representatives in May of 1894 presented a favorable report on a bill making Labor Day a legal public holiday.

By June 26 of that year Congressional action on the bill had been completed and two days later the measure was signed by President Grover Cleveland. The pen used by the President was turned over to Representative Amos J. Cummings of New York City, who sponsored the bill in the House. Cummings then sent the pen to President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

Labor Day Today

In recent years Labor Day has too often been caught up in the hustle and bustle of the fast-moving age in which we live. Although the day may not be specifically set aside by all workmen and their families for a Labor Day parade and Union picnic, it has still retained much of the importance and meaning evident since its founding.

President of the AFL-CIO George Meany has issued a Labor Day statement noting its importance:

"Labor Day is always a special occasion for the trade union movement, but every four years it has even greater significance than usual.

"This is one of those years—a year in which the American people will choose a President, and therefore decide to a considerable degree the future course of the nation."

This year, this Labor Day, we have a real cause to champion, and real gains to proclaim.

Let's make Labor Day, 1968, a day in which to begin a campaign to protect and to extend those rights and privileges—hard fought in years past by working men—for the social and economic betterment of all Americans.

Postal Employees End Three-week Strike

Hours away from a parliament-call to initiate compulsory arbitration, postal employees and government negotiators reached an agreement which ended the Dominion's three-week postal strike.

The strike ended at midnight on August 8 with the postal workers gaining a good wage package and fringe benefits from a reluctant government.

After many years of slight wage increases and poor working conditions, the Council of Postal Unions—representing 24,000 employees—went after a 75 cents an hour wage increase over 14 months plus improvements in working conditions and benefits.

The postal workers settled for 39 cents an hour over 26 months, plus overtime after 40 hours (it was previously 44 to 48 hours), plus more holiday pay, plus faster increases to maximum pay, plus further study of working conditions.

The contract breached the six percent increase guideline set by the government. The postal workers actually got a 15.1 percent boost in wages. In dollars and cents, the new contract will boost the average hourly rate from $2.57 to $2.96.

In 1967, federal employees organized into various organizations were given the right to free collective bargaining through changes in the federal civil service rules. At that time they were given the choice of settling their disputes with government which could not be otherwise resolved, either by compulsory arbitration or by strike action. This opened the door to action leading the Canada's longest postal strike.

Mackasey Is Named Minister of Labor

The Trudeau government's appointment of a new Minister of Labor is being looked upon with favor by virtually all Canadian trade unionists.

The new Minister of Labor, Bryce Mackasey, has a strong union background. He was an active trade union member for 12 years in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 561 in Montreal.

Mackasey eventually went to University, then into municipal politics. He was later elected as a member of parliament for Montreal-Verdun in 1962. He has been reelected twice.

The new Minister of Labor vows that he will represent all the people. "I am in nobody's corner; I just want to be fair and square," he states. "I can see the problem on both sides."

The Prime Minister has reorganized certain ministerial and departmental responsibilities for the purpose of dealing "more effectively with new problems and to permit each minister and his department to concentrate on the areas of primary concern to them, unhampered by matters better handled by some other agency."

Canadian Building Forecast: More Homes, Fewer Buyers

The Central Mortgage and Housing Council predicts that 185,000 new homes will be built in the provinces this year, 20,000 more than were built in 1967.

The Council would like to have at least 585,000 new homes by 1970, and the government hopes that this objective will be reached, although the 1968 figure falls 5,000 short of expectations.

Some independent sources look for as many as 15,000 homes less than hoped for this year, which would still be an increase over the number constructed last year.

Whether the objective is reached or not, the problem is still the price of homes. The Canadian Labor Congress has stated that any family earning less than $8,000 a year is priced out of the current housing market. The average annual earnings in manufacturing is less than $6,000 . . . keeping home ownership out of the hands of a great many working people.

Apprenticeship 'Outreach' Plan Places 645 in Building Jobs

Some 645 minority-group youths have been placed in building trades apprentice training under a joint program of the Workers Defense League and the A. Philip Randolph Educational Fund.

The tabulation of placements since the program began in 1964 was announced in a progress report by the two organizations linked with another announcement—the placing of 116 poor youths into construction apprenticeships throughout the city and 11 other men as journeymen.

The latest placements bring to 461 the total of youths placed by pre-apprentice programs operated by the joint program's offices in Harlem and Brooklyn's blighted Bedford-Stuyvesant area.

The other placements have been made by offices in New Rochelle and Rochester, N. Y., Newark, N. J., Cleveland, Buffalo and Nashville.

The joint project of the two organizations recruits, tutors and counsels minority youths under Apprenticeship Outreach plans, funded through Labor Department grants.

The Apprenticeship Outreach program now operates in 35 cities. Other contractors under it include the Urban League, Opportunities Industrialization Center (an anti-poverty project) and local AFL-CIO building trades councils.

Once applicants are recruited they are then given a six-week tutoring program which is followed by a written examination and an oral interview to determine their qualifications for placement. They are also helped in securing a high school diploma.

The latest 127 placements—mainly Negro and Puerto Rican youths—were recruited with the help of the New York State Employment Service, the Urban League and a number of anti-poverty organizations.

They were placed in jobs as apprentices for locals of the following unions: Operating Engineers, Plumbers and Pipefitters, Plasterers, Elevator Constructors, Sheet Metal Workers, Painters, Bricklayers and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Two were placed as journeymen in IBEW Local 3 and nine as journeymen in Plumbers Local 2.

Ernest Green, director of the joint program here, appraised it as "moving along well" after encountering and resolving some problems that were to be expected in any new venture.

"The construction industry is a viable industry," he continued, "and the opportunity is there. So long as our program is well organized and everything is 'go' we plan to keep things moving."

About Negroes and Apprenticeships

We feel that the article appearing below, taken from The Bulletin of the Cleveland Building Trades Employers' Association, would go a long way toward exploding some of the myths being fostered by the daily papers.

Judging from articles appearing in the newspapers and magazines lately, readers interested in racial justice are given the impression that the entire construction industry is tainted with anti-Negro sentiment and strongly biased recruitment hiring policies.

This sensational myth of prejudice in construction employment, perpetuated by articles alleging discrimination in the building trades in general, is unfair, untrue and misleading. Contractor members of the Building Trades Employers Association employ the bulk of construction union tradesmen in the Greater Cleveland area. All contractor members and the union organizations with whom they do business are fully aware of the federal non-discrimination laws. Moreover, both the contractors and the unions have taken, and are continuing to take, positive action to correct any inequities which may have existed both in the interest of fairness and to comply with federal regulations governing equal employment opportunities.

The facts pertaining to minority recruiting and hiring just don't jibe with the misleading articles which give a totally false impression to the reading public—articles which make a whipping boy out of the entire construction industry.

Undersecretary of Labor James J. Reynolds professes great admiration for the growing number of apprenticeship programs being conducted or supported by the construction industry around the country.

"Counting Negroes or other minorities in apprenticeship programs will become a needless exercise, nothing more than a routine statistic, within three years," Reynolds said in a recent major speech in Houston, Texas.

Secretary Reynolds expressed disagreement with a frequently heard criticism that apprenticeship terms are too long.

"Those who say it is too long simply do not understand all the work and study and on-the-job training that is required before an apprentice can become a qualified journeyman," he said.

"The apprentice must master every possible type of work in his trade. This takes time. It takes practice. It takes study.

"If an apprentice mastered only one phase of his trade, reporting as he does from one job to another, he would find himself out of work most of the time. There is simply not enough work in any specialty within a craft to keep the specialist employed often enough in a year to earn a living annual wage.

"It is only through mastery of all the skills that apply to his trade that his chances for year-round economic survival becomes credible. And this is the virtue of the long apprenticeship term. The employer has a fully-skilled, highly versatile craftsman—someone indispensable to the success of his operation, whether large or small."

Representing the largest number in two decades, there were approximately 275,000 apprentices in training at the beginning of 1968. Of these, 15,000 were from minority groups and this total continues to soar.

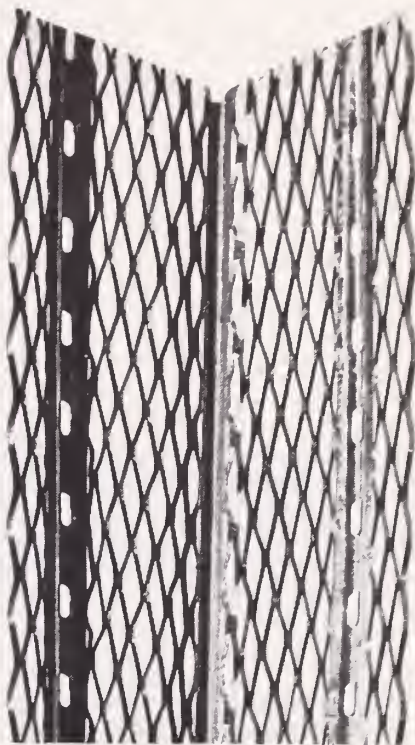

In announcing the figures, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz noted that all the apprentices were being trained by private industry in programs jointly sponsored by labor and management without financial assistance from the federal government.

Haggerty Auditorium Dedicated By California Union Craftsmen

Representatives of California's 400,000 construction craftsmen met recently in Los Angeles for their 44th annual state convention.

A major event of the convention was the dedication of the C. J. Haggerty Auditorium at the Los Angeles Building Trades Council headquarters. It honors the founder of the local council, later head of the State AFL-CIO, and now president of the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Department, and First Vice President of our Lathers International Union.

Haggerty launched the Los Angeles unit in 1933 with 10 locals. It now boasts 105 locals, representing employees of 14,000 contractors.

A council resolution by Secretary John Cinquemani and President Clyde Ringwood hailed Haggerty's leadership in winning progressive labor legislation.

Haggerty told the state conclave a new policy statement by building trades unions points to "positive, affirmative programs" to bring minority youth into the industry. He said such gains were not given recognition by civil rights critics of labor.

Enactment of the model cities program by Congress to rebuild 70 urban slum areas gave impetus to the trade union program.

Haggerty said labor adopted its own policy July 16, after management refused to join, and set up special recruitment machinery for the unskilled.

He said 12,000 minority youths in 37 cities have been "sought out, interviewed, tutored and given every possible opportunity to enter one of our apprenticeship programs" in the new approach.

James Lee of Van Nuys, Calif. Painters Local 1595, longtime legislative representative of the state council, succeeded Deavers.

Food For Thought

When the tape and the nails in your dry wall home won't stay, don't worry. Lath and plaster is on the way.

When you have had dry wall for a year or more, you will find it's a poor substitute for Lath and Plaster.

So to save money on home and apartment for upkeep and decorating, call for Lath and Plaster, there is no waiting.

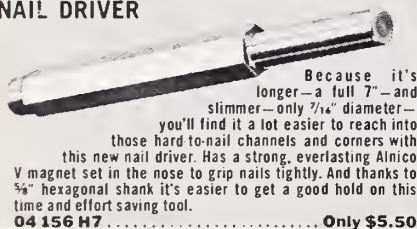

Now with Lath and Plaster your walls won't speak through the lips of your neighbor, but will let you have peace and quiet without the thought of added labor.

So when you are building or buying a place of your own, use Lath and Plaster and you can't go wrong.

Filing Jurisdictional Reports

This report is published for your information and guidance since there seems to be some confusion in respect to filing jurisdictional reports.

When there is a request for a decision filed with the National Joint Board involving your Local Union, it is vitally important that we have as much evidence and information on the work in dispute as possible in order to properly present our case before the Board. It is also important that the information is complete and accurate. In many instances a decision has been delayed because the description of work was not correct.

Another factor which often delays the consideration of a case is when there has been no attempt to settle the dispute on the local level. As soon as you find an assignment of work has been made to another trade, which properly belongs to the lathers, you should attempt to have the assignment corrected by contacting the Contractor and/or the Subcontractor making the assignment and also inform the other trade involved. If these steps are not taken, the National Joint Board will not consider a case for decision.

When a dispute is submitted to the National Joint Board for decision, they notify the other trade, or trades, involved in the dispute and request them to submit their position regarding the dispute by a specified date, which is five (5) business days from the date of notification, as required in the Procedural Rules of the National Joint Board. The case is then placed on the agenda to be considered at the next regular meeting of the National Joint Board, which is held every Tuesday.

I believe it is clear from this information that it can sometimes take two or more weeks to process a jurisdictional dispute if there are no delays. If there are delays, due to incorrect information or proper procedures not being followed, it then takes longer to process the dispute.

Since all matters pertaining to trade jurisdiction must be presented to me as General President for processing, whenever your local union is involved in a jurisdictional dispute, you must immediately forward to me the following information:

(1.) Name and address of job in dispute; (2.) Name and address of General Contractor; (3.) Name and address of Subcontractor; (4.) Detailed description of work in question including photos and samples of materials, specifications and any other information which you feel would assist in substantiation of our claim to the work; and (5.) Who you met with in an attempt to resolve the dispute.

If your Contractors and/or Subcontractors will write letters in your behalf, they should be directed to Mr. William J. Cour, Chairman, National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes, 815 Sixteenth Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20006, with a copy to me for our files.

In order to expedite the processing of jurisdictional disputes I would appreciate you directing any and all correspondence directly to me as General President, and also when calling by telephone, you should direct your calls to me. Time is one of the most important factors in regards to jurisdictional disputes, and we must not relax for one minute our defense for the work which properly belongs to our members.

We must remember when another trade files for a decision with the National Joint Board protesting the assignment of work being made to Lathers, and the decision is rendered in their favor, against us, we stand the chance of being declared in non-compliance when we do not abide with the decision.

It is, of course, understood that when we have been assigned work which properly belongs to our trade jurisdiction and the National Joint Board renders a decision against us awarding this work to another trade, we do not want to give up work we know rightfully belongs to us. This is all the more reason we must present substantial proof and evidence to the National Joint Board thus convincing them to the point that they will award to us the work which rightfully belongs to us. In view of this information, I ask you to please not just sit back and relax because your members are doing the work and the other trade has filed for the decision.

Please do not feel that just because your members have the assignment of work there is no necessity of bothering to get pictures, samples, letters, etc.

Get this information and forward it to me so that we may have the necessary evidence with which to present our cases and get the decisions rendered in our favor, thus proving to our Contractors and/or Subcontractors they were right in assigning the work to Lathers; that when work is assigned to us we are going to see that we stay on the the work. When the Contractors and/or Subcontractors assign our members the work they do so because our members are competent and qualified to perform the work. The International Representative assigned in your area is always ready and willing to assist you with any problem.

Further, I have had several inquiries regarding steel studs and drywall. This is to advise you that the "Status Quo Agreement" between the Carpenters and Lathers is still in full force and effect.

Holding the Line

We have received the following statement from the Cabinet Committee on Price Stability, composed of the Secretaries of Treasury, Commerce, and Labor; the Director of the Bureau of the Budget; and the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers:

"The Nation faces a critical period in its effort to return to price stability. When the President signed into law the tax increase and spending cut, the Nation took the essential first step in combating inflation. Now the benefits of fiscal restraint—for which all taxpayers are paying—need to be reinforced by responsible private decisions.

"We therefore call upon business and labor to exercise utmost restraint in their wage and price decisions. On the average, prices are increasing at an annual rate of 4%; and wages are rising at a rate of 6% to 7%. This is a dangerous road. The public interest is clearly violated by any price increases that widen profit margins and any wage settlements that extend the recent disturbing pattern.

"As prices chase wages and wages chase prices, all Americans lose. Inflation is the cruelest tax of all—hurting most the elderly and others with fixed and low incomes. It undermines our ability to compete in world markets. And in the past, inflationary spirals have been followed by recessions, rising unemployment, and dwindling profits.

"Price and wage restraint is essential in order to attain price stability and preserve prosperity. Recessions and high unemployment are not the remedy for inflation. Nor is there an acceptable solution in mandatory price and wage controls with their loss of freedom and efficiency. Prosperity and price stability can go hand in hand in our free dynamic economy—but only if both public policy and private decisions work together toward that goal."

Examining the Party Records

This is the season for taking sides in the political contests. The campaigns are building up steam for the November general elections. It is often difficult, however, to see the real issues and the past accomplishments in their proper perspective due to the smoke-screen of political promises and convention hoopla.

It is time to count the achievements of the present administration in terms of benefits to the people, and then examine the platform of those who would unseat the incumbents.

The Johnson-Humphrey Administration and the Democrat-controlled 90th Congress have done much for America, and is in the progress of doing even more.

The Congress has stepped up its attack on poverty, made improvements in the Wage and Hour law, passed the biggest housing bill in history to give aid to the poor and moderate income groups.

Social Security and Medicare have been extended to many of our older citizens, to the disabled, dependent and needy.

The struggle for civil rights and social justice has been furthered by legislative acts and the direction of the President and Vice President.

Much has been done to secure Truth in Lending, Truth in Packaging, and progress is being made to give better consumer protection in the purchase of drugs, food, and even real estate.

These latter accomplishments of the 90th Congress have been underscored by AFL-CIO

Secretary-Treasurer William F. Schnitzler. He points out that the hearings which investigated high drug prices and reckless introduction of dangerous drugs, took place "in the face of bitter opposition from powerful lobbies of the drug manufacturers and the American Medical Association."

The AFL-CIO and its affiliated unions—which includes our Lathers International Union—makes up the largest organization of consumers in America. "When borrowers or installment buyers are hoodwinked, union members are cheated," Schnitzler adds.

He further states, "Of course, our interest is not confined to union members alone. We conceive it to be our role to serve as the champion of all the people—to serve, if you will, as the 'people's lobby' on every matter that affects the general welfare."

A separate article in a previous issue, "The Dark Side of the Marketplace," reveals some of the sordid aspects of uncontrolled and unrestrained selling and lending practices being attacked by new and proposed legislation.

After we examine the deeds and objectives of the present Congress and administration, we must look at what their opponents would do—or say they would do—if they were given the opportunity through the election in November.

Michigan Governor George Romney, speaking for the more liberal wing of the Republican Party, made a strong anti-labor address to the Republican National Convention in Miami. He bitterly attacked what he called "excessive collective bargaining power in the hands of excessively powerful union and employer groups."

Speaking as the convention was about to adopt its 1968 platform, Romney said he supported the platform enthusiastically, but added that he wished "it were more complete" in dealing with "problems resulting from our outdated collective bargaining laws."

Romney specifically called attention to the recent wage settlement in the steel industry, charging that its net effect "is higher prices and fewer jobs." He called agreements such as that in steel "abuses of raw economic power" that "generates evermore inflation."

The Republicans have shown their true stand as it relates to the workers of America.

Old politicians, sad to say, are seldom silenced by their failure to be elected by the voters. Take, for example, the movements of former Congressman Fred Hartley. This co-sponsor of the Taft-Hartley law is now seeking funds from the gullible business executives and corporations interested in saving the country, he says, by "breaking the power" of unions.

Hartley, who made a career out of fighting labor since his defeat for reelection to congress in 1948, is co-chairman of the Conference of American Small Business Organizations. In this capacity, he has written letters soliciting "modest" contributions (up to $100) to help promote agitation in the next Congress to enact curbs in unions. He also wants investigations of the National Labor Relations Board, the courts for "abetting" the unions, and other government agencies which have proved themselves progressive or liberal.

Labor Economist Says:

Workers' Wages, Buying Power Rising Too Slowly

Organized labor's top economist has charged that many industries have been "profiteering on wage increases" while, at the same time, they were trying to blame unions for price hikes.

Per-unit labor costs actually fell between 1960 and 1966, but both the prices of those products and the profits on their manufacture and sale rose sharply, said Nathaniel Goldfinger, director of AFL-CIO Dept. of Research.

The labor economist said that when compared to prices and profits, workers' wages have risen very slowly since 1960, and the buying power of wages has risen even less. He said that the situation today "clearly pictures a lack of balance" in the economy, with "skyrocketing profits"—up 84 percent since 1960—"soaring dividends"—up

73 percent since 1960—while workers' earnings rose only 27 percent and "buying power only 10 percent."

Goldfinger appeared recently on Labor News Conference, an AFL-CIO produced public affairs interview, broadcast on the Mutual Radio Network.

Goldfinger said he agreed with Peter L. Bernstein, president of a New York investment counselling service, who was reported recently by the Wall Street Journal as saying: "The pattern is clear enough. Instead of labor costs pushing price up, what we see instead is a sort of profits push. Profits are already well on their way up before prices begin to rise, and prices are well on their way up before wages begin to rise faster than output."

Goldfinger declared that the "crucial factors" in the current economic imbalance are "profit inflation and the attempts of the companies to push prices up to increase the profits on each item of goods sold—to charge as much as the traffic will bear."

"The entire country would benefit from better relationships between profits and wages . . . a more or less equal upward movement of workers' wages and buying power of consumers on the one hand, and business profits on the other," he declared. He emphasized that unless consumer buying power moves at an equal pace, "consumers will not have enough purchasing power to buy what the economy can produce."

Reporters interviewing Goldfinger were Sam Sharkey, labor specialist for the Newhouse newspapers, and Harry Conn, editor of Press Associates, Inc.

Boston Pact Paves Way to 'Model Cities' Labor Accord

As of this month, there are 42 Model Cities programs in operation and 10 others are now being set up. Under the present Federal legislation, the program can be extended to 70 cities.

The purpose of the program, as established in the Model Cities Act of 1966 and the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, is to launch a large scale housing program which can have a meaningful impact toward solving this nation's housing problems.

Organized labor gave its full support to these important laws, and has diligently sought out qualified craftsmen—often within the program areas—to implement necessary construction.

Boston Breakthrough

In every case thus far, however, Model Cities program work has proceeded without the negotiation of a local labor agreement.

A real breakthrough was announced in Boston early in September. It came at the conclusion of two months negotiation by the Boston Building and Construction Trades Council, the Associated General Contractors of Massachusetts, and the Building Trades Employers Association of Eastern Massachusetts. It is believed to be the first of its kind in the nation.

The agreement's basic purpose is to provide the framework, terms and conditions for training and employing minority group members on model cities and urban housing projects. It closely parallels the provisions included in guidelines recently developed by the Building Trades Department of the AFL-CIO.

The Boston agreement specifically provides for the employment of area residents as apprentices, trainees, advance trainees or journeymen, depending on their qualifications and experience.

Fully qualified workers will be employed as journeymen and receive journeymen rates and fringe benefits. However, local unions will determine their acceptance as members. Workers who are not qualified journeymen but who have had some experience will be hired as advanced trainees at not less than the apprentice starting rate. These last two groups will include applicants who are too old to be apprentices. Applicants who meet apprenticeship standards will be assigned to Outreach programs, and if they qualify, will advance through apprenticeship.

A trainee can stay as such for only six months. He must then qualify as an advanced trainee or presumably be dropped. The advanced trainee will move up through on-site training to become a journeyman.

Davis-Bacon Prevails

Trainee and advance trainee rates must be reported to the U. S. Labor Department and are expected to become the approved prevailing rates for the purpose of fulfilling Davis-Bacon Act requirements stipulated in Model Cities legislation.

Instead of following the "maximum use" requirements of the Model Cities law or the "representative number" approach of the Office of Federal Contract Compliance, the Boston agreement provides that only one trainee or advance trainee can be hired for every four journeymen. The ratio is dropped to one, two or three where area journeymen of a particular craft are not available.

The Boston pact's scope is limited to government-financed residential rehabilitation work and to new residential work up to and including four stories. However, it can be extended—if the parties agree—to "other specific projects" in Model Cities programs.

Pact Administration

The agreement will be administered by two committees: (1) an administrative committee representing the Building and Construction Trades Council, the Associated General Contractors, the Building Trades Employers Association, and community minority groups; and (2) an operations committee (assisted by the Workers Defense League) to determine applicant qualifications and wages. The latter committee will have the final voice in the resolution of disputes that arise under the agreement.

The Boston agreement honors the jurisdictional lines of various unions and provides for resolution of disputes under existing machinery. It contains a no-strike, no-lock-out clause covering disputes of all kinds.

Leaders of the Joint Apprenticeship Program of the Workers Defense League, a government financed outreach program, worked with the Boston group in the development of the agreement and will be engaged to assist in recruiting, counseling and orientation of minority group workers.

Words of Hope

This pioneering agreement will face difficult tests in coming months, and the Boston Building and Construction Trades Council secretary Fred M. Ramsey, conceded that the agreement is not perfect and that it will run into a lot of problems, but the unions, contractors, and minority groups "have now developed some degree of trust in each other and are determined to make it work."

Spokesmen for local minority groups such as the United Community Construction Workers and the Black American Interest Together, Inc. indicated that they welcomed the agreement "as a vehicle for getting Negroes into the mainstream" of the construction industry.

Boston Mayor Kevin White called the agreement "worthwhile" and has pledged his assistance in seeing that its objectives are achieved.

If We Fail November

CAN LABOR SURVIVE

What happens if organized labor fails to vote in sufficient numbers November 5 to keep a liberal President and a friendly Congress? These are the questions that thinking citizens must seriously consider now.

The answer is clear. We will face the most violent onslaught of anti-union action in Congress in generations!

Our fears will not be unjustified. There is enough legislation prepared now—ready to be passed in January by a conservative Congress—to deal organized labor a crippling, if not fatal, blow.

Any one of a number of bills, launched as trial balloons in the 90th Congress, would stifle labor progress. Taken as a group, these bills would shatter union gains and unionism as we know it.

Below is documented proof that these ill-inspired bills have already been introduced in the U. S. House of Representatives and Senate.

It is important that we examine these bills and weigh their consequences.

Labor's opponents make no apologies for their actions. They are making a bold, open attack to "get labor."

What about the White House?

The dangers of 1969 would be multiplied drastically if a conservative occupied the White House and worked hand-in-glove with a reactionary Congress. He would not simply go along with Congressional

These Anti-Labor Bills

They would . . .

DESTROY INDUSTRY-WIDE BARGAINING by clamping anti-trust laws on unions (HR 333). This would leave local unions completely at the mercy of industrial giants. In addition, it would revive the discredited "conspiracy" theory that dogged unions a century ago. One proposal along this line promoted by the ultra-conservative American Farm Bureau, which has many friends in Congress and expects to elect more, would make it a conspiracy for unions to secure wage increases "in excess of the gain in productivity."

They would . . .

SMASH TRADITIONAL COLLECTIVE BARGAINING procedure by forcing compulsory arbitration on unions and employers, planting government squarely at the bargaining table (S 79 and S 21). This would disarm labor of its right to strike and encourage employers to sit back and refuse to bargain in good faith.

5...

THE ASSAULT OF '69?

attacks on labor. He could lead Congress in new directions. He could stack federal agencies with anti-labor appointees. He could alter the whole stance of government from a protector of labor's rights to an oppressor.

A victory by any conservative candidate for President—Nixon or Wallace—would inevitably pull into office scores of conservative candidates for Congress. With both branches of government under reactionary control, it would become open season—with a vengeance—on the labor movement.

The Threat is for Real

The bills are for real. They're not the product of a nightmare, though they would have nightmarish results. Every one of them either has been introduced in Congress, or is ready in draft form. Others, equally ominous, are being discussed intently in conservative and ultra-conservative circles.

The big push awaits only the election of a conservative-controlled Congress and a conservative President in 1968.

What YOU can do

Here's what you can do to head it off:

- Keep your eye on the ball. Don't let other issues blind you to facts about the attack on your union and your welfare.
- Inform your fellow Lathers and other unionists about the nature and extent of the threat.
- Support COPE.
- Register.
- VOTE!

Already Prepared:

They would . . .

REPLACE THE NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD, replacing it with a so-called "Labor Court" comprised of 15 judges serving 20-year terms (S 1353). Imagine a reactionary President selecting those who would serve. Nominations for the "Labor Court" would be passed on by the Judiciary Committee, which now is, and for the foreseeable future will remain, under Dixiecrat-conservative GOP leadership. The legislation is tailored for "court-packing" by conservatives and could lead to years of turmoil and trouble for the labor movement. It already has received strong backing from certain elements in the business community, among them the union-busting J. P. Stevens textile firm and over recent NLRB rulings protecting union efforts at the firm's plants.

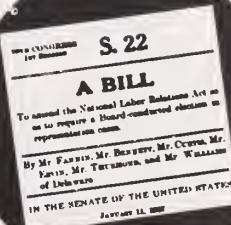

They would . . .

OUTLAW MULTI-UNION BARGAINING by a group of unions with the same employer at the same time (S 1744). Joint bargaining among unions arose as a necessary labor response to a new trend in industry, the growth of conglomerate giants that manufacture or provide service in many different, often unrelated, fields. The multi-union bargaining approach is essential if unions are to be able to deal effectively with such industrial titans.

They would . . .

UNDERMINE LABOR'S POLITICAL EFFORTS by preventing the use of COPE or any international union from collecting voluntary contributions from union members to give financial aid to endorsed candidates in the U.S. House and Senate (S 1880 and HR 11233). Labor's voluntary contributions are one of the important sources of funds for liberal candidates. The effect of this proposal would be to hamstring progressive candidates nationally. The proposal was defeated in the Senate in 1967, but in the event of a conservative victory it would be one of the first bills to come up in 1969.

They would . . .

PROHIBIT "CARD CHECKS" and other informal methods of determining whether a union is the choice of a majority of employees in a bargaining unit (S 22).

Message to Parliament:

Tackle Canada's Serious Problems; Don't Worry About Labor Disputes

Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, offered this advice to Canada's 28th Parliament which opened September 5.

Instead of worrying about labour disputes, tackle the country's most serious problems: high-cost housing, unemployment, rising living costs, crowded and polluted cities and a widening gap between rich and poor.

In a Vancouver address to the annual convention of the Western Canadian Regional Council of the International Woodworkers of America, Mr. MacDonald expressed fears that the federal government may introduce legislation imposing compulsory arbitration of labour disputes under federal jurisdiction.

He said the B.C. legislature has shown the way in its last session by adopting Bill 33—"a complete negation of the collective bargaining process as it is normally practiced in Canada."

"We contend that there is a great deal more for this Parliament to do than to try to seek short-cut and unworkable solutions to collective bargaining disputes."

Top priority should be given to housing, unemployment and rising prices. Crowded and polluted cities were alienating their residents from one another. Canada's treatment of Indians, Eskimos and Metis was "unforgivable and unconscionable."

The gap between rich and poor was widening: "Social and economic stratification and its consequent restriction of economic opportunity is becoming almost a hereditary caste system."

An "abysmal failure of our whole system of value judgments has sent thousands of our children into the Fourth Avenue Districts and Yorkvilles of Canada."

Consider Medicare In Contract Talks

The Canadian government's long awaited medicare scheme became effective July 1, 1968. All provinces may take advantage of its cost-sharing provisions, providing certain conditions are met. Most of them have already elected to do so, and it is expected that most of the other provinces will be participating in the scheme by 1970.

Many collective agreements provide for health and welfare plans for which the employer has to pay the cost in part or in whole. As medicare finally becomes effective in the various provinces of Canada, some of the features presently covered by the privately negotiated plans will be included in the new government plans. Because of this, private plans will be either replaced or substantially modified, and as a result the employers' costs and contributions will be markedly reduced. The introduction of medicare will thus provide the em-

"The right of a worker to withhold his labour is a fundamental part of our democratic system. The alternative is some form of forced labour which has no place in our way of life. In this sense we may say that the right to strike—to withhold his labour—is one of the fundamental rights that distinguish a free man from a slave.

ployer with the opportunity of pocketing the resulting savings, as was the case when the Canada Pension Plan was introduced. In order to ensure that the workers will not lose gains already made at the bargaining table, some unions have negotiated a clause similar to the following:

"If the premium paid by the Employer for any employee benefit is reduced as a result of any legislative or other action, the amount of the saving shall be used to increase other benefits available to the employees, as may be mutually agreed between the parties, or shall be passed on to the employees in the form of increased wage or salary rates."

Even if medicare has not yet been introduced in your own province, your union may want to consider the inclusion of such a clause in any contracts which come up for renewal in the future.

Ohio AFL-CIO Acts:

Labor Files Suit to Rescind Auto Insurance Rate Hike

We have two questions to ask you:

1. How much has your auto insurance gone up in the past three years?

If your answer is substantial, which we suspect it will be, then:

2. Why doesn't somebody do something to stop those skyrocketing costs?

The Ohio AFL-CIO, for one, does not believe the public's interest is being protected in the matter of auto insurance. For this reason, that state labor federation has been actively fighting for over two years to halt the scandalous boosts. During this period it has learned, according to a story published in the Ohio AFL-CIO publication, Focus:

- A large part of the tremendous profits of auto insurance companies are hidden and are not used in calculating your rate increases.

- Ohio law has many safeguards for insurance companies, but offers no protection for the insurance buyer.

- The Ohio Department of Insurance does not and is not able to analyze a rate increase because it refuses to hire an actuary to examine insurance statistics.

- A policyholder or group representing policyholders has no legal right to challenge a rate increase (while the insurance companies do have a legal right to challenge rate changes).

- Even if the Ohio Supt. of Insurance would reject a rate boost, the insurance companies could still charge the new rate until a court of last resort decreed the rate was unjustified. This could take years, only to have the insurance companies file another rate hike.

The core of this nation's insurance problems and high costs can be found in Ohio's ineffective laws which miserably fail to regulate the auto insurance companies. That's understandable, though, since these onesided laws were written by the powerful insurance companies.

The insurance companies gained the upper hand on the citizens back in 1945 when a U. S. law was passed exempting them from federal anti-trust laws, providing the states regulated the industry.

- In a feeble move to comply with the federal law, Ohio (under the guidance of the insurance czars) established laws which pertain to auto insurance.

But Ohio does not provide effective regulation of the auto insurance giants. For example, the insurance companies don't have to ask the state to raise rates, they just do it! The state is told how much the increase will be and when it will go into effect. The state is helpless to act. So is the individual motorist who is forced to pay.

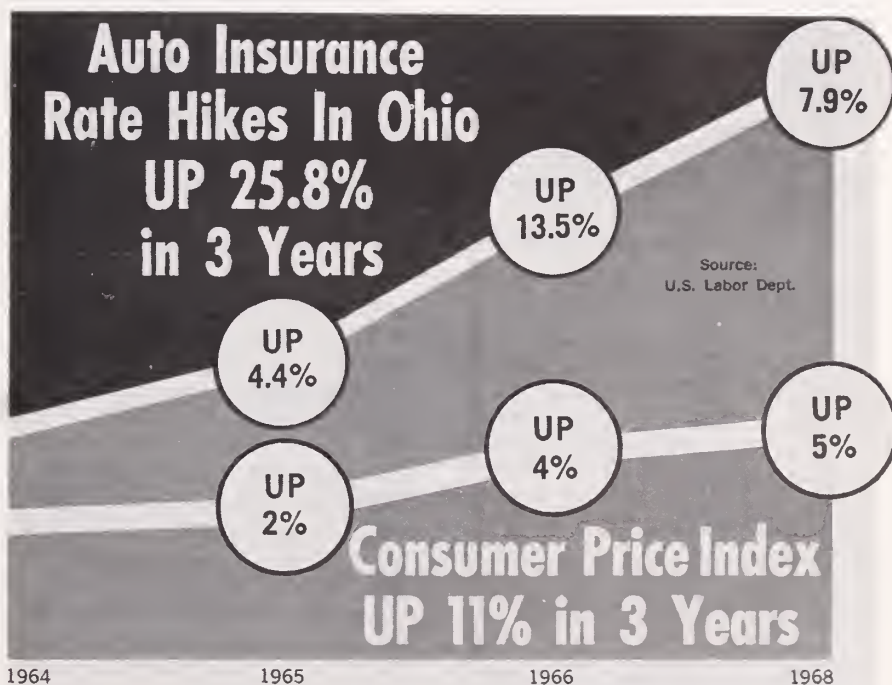

In the past three years, 129 auto insurance companies which set their rates through the Insurance Rating Board have slapped Ohio motorists with three whopping rate hikes. The most recent one was July 10 and is expected to cost some motorists as much as $25 a year additional premiums.

The Ohio AFL-CIO tried to stop the 1966 increase. The labor federation challenged the rate hike in a public hearing before the Insurance Department, and in the courts of Ohio. At both levels, the increase was upheld. Two separate attempts were made to reform the auto insurance laws in the Ohio General Assembly, but both were almost totally ignored by legislators.

On August 1, the Ohio AFL-CIO made another move to protect its members and all Ohio motorists from the profit-hungry auto insurance companies. A lawsuit was filed in Federal Court charging the companies are violating the federal Sherman Anti-Trust Act by price fixing and restraining free trade. Labor has charged the firms are not eligible for the earlier-mentioned exemption because Ohio fails to regulate them.

If the lawsuit is successful, the Ohio AFL-CIO hopes the July 10 rate boost will be rescinded and the insurance companies will be prevented from filing future increases. Then we hope Ohio's leaders will seriously consider reforming state laws to finally offer real protection to Buckeye motorists.

As it now stands, the only way you can truly get your money's worth in auto insurance is to sell your car and put the cash into insurance stock. And we don't recommend that.

Blue Collar Jobs Pay Well, But Often Slighted for Lack of 'Status'

Too many youngsters are turning their backs on well-paying blue collar jobs in favor of lower-paying white-collar ones in the opinion of Hugh C. Murphy, national apprentice director for the U. S. Department of Labor.

Murphy believes that the status of blue-collar jobs needs lifting and their advantages as well-paying careers are being slighted.

"I firmly believe that organized labor, management and government must take up in earnest the task of motivation," Murphy told the 110th Convention of the International Typographical Union meeting here.

"Blue-collar jobs are going begging because there are not enough qualified young persons applying for them. Status seems to be everything today and the skilled occupations just do not seem to have this," Murphy said.

"It must be our job to provide this status, to provide this necessary impetus if the work force is to continue to have a segment called 'skilled.' Our first task is to improve the status of skilled blue collar jobs, whether it requires new titles or special uniforms or better public relations.

"Young people who are thinking about a career do not understand clearly all the potential the blue-collar job has to offer."

Murphy pointed out that a good journeyman can earn anywhere from $7,000 to $15,000 a year in the crafts and trades but young people often bypass these jobs for lower-paying white collar positions.

Murphy told the ITU delegates that in discussing apprenticeship with youngsters, "we must impress upon them the fact that a blue-collar skilled trade, while an excellent career in itself, is often a stepping stone to supervisory and managerial positions, not to mention business ownership."

"Blue-collar jobs have good futures," he said. "Let us make certain in the present that these futures are not denied our young through ignorance."

Business newspaper agrees:

Pressure for Bigger Profits, Not Better Wages, Starts Inflation

The Wall Street Journal has given surprising support to the labor argument that high profits and not high wages started the inflationary trend.

While holding that labor costs are obviously a factor in prices, the businessman's newspaper stated in a recent article that:

"Any attempt to fix the blame for today's inflation, however, shouldn't be limited simply to a consideration of labor costs. The blame, it can be argued, belongs in many places.

"A major culprit may be corporate profits. A glance at the economic history of the post-World War II era certainly suggests that inflation often has been just as much 'profit-push' inflation as 'wage-push'."

The article notes that during the past 20 years there have been three periods in which prices climbed substantially.

"In each instance," the article continues, "labor costs per unit of factory output were declining when the price climb began and these costs continued to decline for a considerable period after the price rise was under way.

"In each case, corporate profits began to increase sharply well before the price climb started."

The article quotes well-known economists as seeing a pattern of climbing profits, efforts by labor to "catch up," and the development of wage patterns that then add to the inflationary circle.

The article further suggests that one way to stop it all is to hold down rising profits.

90th Congress Acts on Last Bills

There was quite a lot of unfinished business, much of it of interest to organized labor, when Congress called it quits for a month's politicking at Miami Beach and Chicago.

Now back in session, Congress must complete as much legislation as possible, with the realization that what isn't handled during the final days of the 90th Congress will die and have to start all over again with the 91st Congress.

The 1968 score had its positive side and its negative one.

Legislation adopted included:

- The long-demanded 10 percent income surtax as requested by President Johnson for the purpose of helping to control inflationary forces that have raised the cost of living at an annual rate of more than 4 percent a year. The $6 billion budget cut, also demanded by Congress as the price for the surtax, is hitting at social welfare programs—something that organized labor has warned against.

- On the plus side Congress voted a housing bill that has brought strong praise from organized labor. It has opened the way to important improvements in housing for the low income and impoverished groups and may well play an important role in reviving the depressed housing industry which is suffering from high interest rates and the scarcity of mortgage money.

- It has continued a good record in the consumer field voting a truth-in-lending bill, a national meat inspection bill and in consideration of a measure that would add poultry and fish to the meat inspection improvements.

- It adopted a hand-gun bill—not a very strong one, but at least a first step toward prevention of the wholesale distribution of handguns. It passed an omnibus crime bill that President Johnson signed, not without misgivings because of the way it opens the door to widespread wire-tapping and weakening of the rights of defendants through criticism of the Supreme Court.

- It adopted a highly important Elementary and Secondary Education Act in the fading months of 1967, an Act that was signed by the President early in January of this year.

On the other hand, there is still a lot of legislation that needs attention before the year is out.

- It still has before it the nomination of Justice Abe Fortas as Chief Justice of the United States and that of Homer Thornberry to replace Fortas on the Court. Efforts will be made to get these nominations before the Senate after the convention recess, but even then a filibuster is threatened by a combination of Dixiecrats and conservative Republicans who want to punish the court in general and Fortas in particular for so-called "liberal" decisions.

- There is still the matter of an adequate law restricting the sale of "long guns" such as rifles and shotguns.

- An emasculated Redwoods conservation bill is in conference and awaits final action. So does a bill establishing a national water commission.

- A highly important Occupational and Health Safety bill is still hanging fire and has still a long way to go before it can be passed.

- There is still to be resolved the problem of the House-passed Food Stamp bill which the liberal-labor-civil rights coalition supported but which was marred by an amendment excluding strikers and college students from receiving the stamps. The AFL-CIO has denounced this rider.

All in all, Congress can wind up the 90th Congress with a considerable number of accomplishments if it is willing to buckle down to the job when it comes back to Washington in September. Admittedly, however, both Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and House Majority Leader John W. McCormack are going to have more than their hands full in keeping the Congressional nose to the grindstone.

For more than 20 years, Hubert Humphrey has been the liberal's liberal. He has been the pace-setter. More than anyone in public life, he has proved he can get things done that need to be done.

Every step on the path of progress over the past two decades bears his imprint:

- Medicare
- Aid to education
- Human rights
- Peace Corps
- Job Corps
- Urban aid
- Food stamps
- Food for peace
- Nuclear test ban
- Arms Control Agency
- War on poverty
- Consumer aid

Today, he is the Democratic nominee for President of the United States. Few candidates have ever run for our highest office with credentials as impressive as Hubert Humphrey's. Few have brought such a record of distinction to their candidacy. None has been such a good friend of working people and the unions that represent them.

The years ahead will need a builder. They will need a man of courage and conviction. They will need a man committed to progress. They will need a man who can convert contention to cooperation and conflict to constructive action.

Hubert Humphrey is such a man. He is a man to trust for our times.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Following up my discussion on the subject of filing jurisdictional reports (October issue, The Lather). I am publishing the following so that you may be further advised.

This is the first of two articles on procedural rules. The second will appear in the next issue.

Procedural Rules and Regulations of the National Joint Board

These procedures shall apply to:

(a) Contractors who employ members of the organizations affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, and who have signed a stipulation setting forth that they are willing to be bound by the terms of the agreement establishing the Joint Board, or who are members of a signatory association of contractors with authority to bind its members, or who are parties to a collective bargaining agreement providing for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes under the procedures herein set forth. The stipulation form adopted by the Joint Board provides:

Date .....

"In signing this stipulation, the undersigned agrees to be bound by the terms and provisions of the agreement effective May 1, 1948, as amended by agreement effective October 1, 1949, creating the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes. In particular, the undersigned agrees to be bound by the provision of the agreement which states: 'any decision or interpretation by the Joint Board (or Hearings Panel) shall immediately be accepted and complied with by all parties signatory to this agreement.' This authorization shall run for the term of the agreement, and shall continue in effect for each year thereafter unless specifically terminated at the renewal date of said agreement which is March 31.

(Signed) ....."

(b) All unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, in the building and construction industry.

Maintenance of Operations on Projects

To prevent jurisdictional disputes from arising on projects or over method of starting a project, unions and contractors, as qualified and designated herein, are directed to follow the procedures outlined below.

Contractor's Responsibility

1. Contractors subletting work should stipulate that subcontractors be bound by agreement establishing National Joint Board and its procedural rules in assignment of work.

2. The contractor who has the responsibility for the performance and installation shall make a specific assignment of the work. For instance, if contractor A subcontracts certain work to contractor B, then contractor B shall have responsibility for making the specific assignment for the work included in his contract. If contractor B in turn shall subcontract certain work to contractor C, then contractor C shall have the responsibility for making the specific assignment for the work included in his contract. It is a violation of the plan for the contractor to hold up disputed work or shut down a project on account of a jurisdictional dispute.

3. The assignment to be made by the contractor shall be according to the following basis:

(a) Where a decision of record applies to the disputed work, or where an agreement of record between the disputing trades applies to the disputed work, the contractor shall assign the work in accordance with such agreement or decision of record. Agreements and decisions of record are compiled in the "Green Book" published by the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, ("Agreements and Decisions Rendered Affecting the Building Industry.") Where a national agreement between the disputing trades applies that has been filed with the Joint Board and attested by the Chairman, even though not an agreement of record, the contractor shall assign the work in accordance with such agreement. In negotiating such national agreements between International Unions, consultation with the appropriate management groups on the making of agreements between International Unions is desirable and should be carried on.

Decisions of record are applicable to all trades. Agreements of record are applicable only to the parties signatory to such agreements.

(b) Where no decision or agreement under (a) applies, the contractor shall assign the disputed work in accordance with the prevailing practice in the locality. The locality for the purpose of determining the prevailing practice shall be defined ordinarily to mean the geographical jurisdiction of the local building and construction trades council in which the project is located.

(c) If a dispute has arisen prior to the specific assignment of work where no decision or agreement under (a) applies, or where there is no predominant practice in the locality, the contractor shall nonetheless make a specific assignment according to his best judgment after consulting the representatives of the contesting trades and considering any arguments or facts the trades may wish to present regarding the applicable decisions or agreements of record or practice in the locality. The contractor should also consult any local association of contractors in the locality regarding the established practice.

4. When a contractor has made an assignment of work, he shall continue the assignment without alteration unless otherwise directed by the Joint Board or by agreement between the International Unions involved.

5. In the event that there is any stoppage of work, or cessation of operations, arising from a jurisdictional dispute following an assignment of work, the contractor is to notify immediately the Chairman of the Joint Board, 815 16th Street N.W., Washington, D. C. 20006.

Such a notice of work stoppage shall indicate:

The contractors, their addresses. Project, location. The disputing trades.

An account of the events leading to the work stoppage.

A full and detailed description of the work in dispute.

The assignment of work that has been made and

The contractor making the assignment.

Union's Responsibility

1. The agreement provides (Article V, Section 1) that "Pending a decision by the Board or such settlements as may be arrived at through the office of the Chairman of the Joint Board, there shall be no stoppage of work arising out of any jurisdictional dispute."

2. When a contractor has made a specific work assignment, all unions shall remain at work and process any complaint over a jurisdictional dispute in accordance with the procedures herein established by the Joint Board. Any union which protests that a contractor has failed to assign work in accordance with the procedures specified above, shall remain at work and process the complaint through its international office. The Joint Board is prohibited from taking action on protests directly from local unions or building and construction trades councils.

3. An International Union may file with the Joint Board a protest against the work assignment of a contractor on a particular project. Such protest of assignment shall indicate the project, the name and address of contractors, location of the project, the disputing trades, an account of events leading to the work assignment, and a full and detailed description of the work in dispute. The International Union shall also indicate the basis of its protest of the assignment by the contractor. The International Union shall cite any decision or agreement of record on which its protest is based. When no decisions or agreements of record are applicable the International Union shall cite the basis for its protest of assignment. Any International Union may also notify the Joint Board of a work stoppage engaged in by another union. The International Union before filing a request for a job decision shall advise its local union to notify the contractors of its claim for the disputed work and to seek to settle such dispute prior to filing the case with the Joint Board.

When the International Union filing a request for a job decision is directed to comply with the requirement of notification to the employer of a jurisdictional dispute, a compliance notice shall be forwarded to the Chairman of the National Joint Board, who shall forward a copy of such notice to the other union or unions involved in the dispute prior to consideration and decision of the National Joint Board.

4. When an International Union has been directed by the Joint Board to direct the return of men to work, or to furnish men to a project, in a jurisdictional dispute, the General President of the International Union shall promptly comply with the order of the Joint Board. He shall use all the authority of the International Union to secure prompt compliance with cease-work-stoppage order of the Joint Board.

In line with the intent of the above paragraph, picket lines of a jurisdictional nature must be handled immediately by the Chairman of the National Joint Board. The Chairman, when a jurisdictional picket line is brought to his attention, will immediately send a communication to the Building and Construction Trades Council and to the International whose local has put up the picket line. In addition, a communication will be sent to any other internationals whose local is recognizing the picket line.

5. The following declaration of policy by the Building and Construction Trades Unions is to be observed:

WHEREAS it is recognized that the establishment of picket lines for purposes of objecting to the assignment of work in the building and construction trades results in jurisdictional strikes; and

WHEREAS such picketing and resultant strikes are in violation of the Constitution of the Building and Construction Trades Department; and

WHEREAS it is herewith the unanimous desire of the General Presidents, the Executive Council of the Department, and the officers of the Department to put a stop to all such illegal picketing, we do on this 15th day of July 1952 herewith declare our policy to be as follows:

1. That no Local Union of an affiliated International Union whose International Union's President's signature appears below shall institute or post picket lines for jurisdictional purposes. To do so will result in immediate disciplinary action by the International President of such Local Union.

2. That no Local Building and Construction Trades Council shall authorize or lend support to any picketing for jurisdictional purposes. To do so will result in immediate steps by the Department officers to revoke the charter of such local Building and Construction Trades Council.

3. That in event pickets are posted by any union for jurisdictional purposes it is our declared policy that all unions are to ignore such picket line pending appropriate disciplinary action by the International President of the Local Union posting such picket line.

4. Each International President is to forward a copy of this Declaration of Policy to all his affiliated Local Unions and District Councils.

The Department officers shall forward a copy of this Declaration of Policy to each local and state Building and Construction Trades Council.

This picture exemplifies the Thanksgiving season as it should be for all Americans; youth, health, abundant food and bountiful harvest. We would pray—and work—so that everyone might have these blessings within a land where freedom, justice, and opportunity exists for all its citizens.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

The elections are over. Television time is no longer filled with "paid political announcements." Newspapers and magazines are gradually finding other, non-political news to print.

Yet, day-to-day work of government goes on, though some congressmen are busy packing and the newly-elected have begun house-hunting in Washington suburbs.

Organized labor can and will continue to pursue its interests before the local, state and federal boards which administer the laws and rulings under which men and women work even when Congress is not in session. The activities of your International, the AFL-CIO, the state councils and districts, in the realm of legislative influence, are by no means ended.

To be sure, some friends of labor in Congress and in the state legislatures were defeated at the polls. We are happy that many of those we supported won.

In any case, the aims and interests of the labor movement will be made known to legislators old and new, friend, foe or uncommitted.

The AFL-CIO reminds us that this is not the time to relax, or to give up. Labor has never had an easy row to hoe. The anti-labor forces have always been present in the Senate and House of Representatives. Labor's friends have pushed through great bills to benefit the worker and the consumer, even over tremendous opposition. The right-to-work advocates, the National Association of Manufacturers, and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce will certainly not relax their efforts; labor must not diminish its influence or cut short its objectives.

It is too early to tell whether or not the newly-elected Congress will have a clear-cut majority of conservatives or liberals. The role of the individual citizen in such a situation becomes vastly important. Your congressman will be very receptive to the desires of his constituency and responsive to "the will of the people."

The present state of affairs puts the burden of passing liberal, constructive legislation back on the American organized labor force. You will be urged many times in coming months to write your congressman and to support COPE. We know you will respond.

We cannot and must not let the gains of the 88th, 89th and 90th Congresses fall to the dust. We must see to it that the constructive social and economic laws passed in 1968 are adequately financed and properly enforced. The big Housing and Urban Renewal Act, Social Security extensions, and the Truth-in-Lending Act are some of these new laws which we must protect and nourish.

The Employment Opportunity bill, the Occupational Safety and Health Bill, and similar measures can still be passed if we pull together.

The elections are over. Our work has just begun, and we must intensify our interest in what happens in Washington, D.C.

Labor has never had it easy at the hands of Congress—even in the best years—and this coming year will certainly be no exception.

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Canadian Construction Spending Increases

Mr. Jean-Luc Pepin, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has released highlights of his mid-year review of Canada's capital investment intentions. His report reveals that a larger house-building program, coupled with expanded investment plans by business, is resulting in additional strength for capital spending to further spur Canada's economy.

Expenditures for new construction in 1968 are now expected to reach more than $10.2 billion. The present construction program is some eight percent larger than that accomplished in 1967, and about one percent higher than reported earlier in the year.

Expenditures for new housing in 1968 are now expected to total almost $2.7 billion—an increase of 13 percent over similar outlays in 1967. Both the number of new houses started and the number completed in 1968 are expected to be larger than had been expected earlier in the year, the present program representing a three percent increase over that established in the previous survey.

In contrast to the expanded investment intentions of 15 percent in the housing and business sectors, planned spending for social capital purposes has been reduced to about 11 percent.

The accomplishment of the larger program revealed by the mid-year survey would mean that capital expenditures in 1968 would account for nearly a quarter of Canada's gross national product—the same proportion as in 1967.

In comparison with the plans announced at the beginning of the year, a larger share of total expenditures will be devoted to providing new housing and to enlarging business capital facilities, while a smaller proportion will go for social capital spending.

Business investment outlays in 1968 will be only slightly below those of the peak year 1966 and will involve substantial additions to the nation's productive capacity and an extensive modernization of existing plants.

The Trade and Commerce survey is conducted each year at this time to determine the extent to which plans reported earlier in the year have been changed to reflect the most recent developments.

CLC President Tells Of 'Whipping Boy' Image

Organized labour may be described as the "whipping boy" of the economy in both the U.S. and Canada.

"Whatever goes wrong, organized labour gets the blame," Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, said in Chicago at the convention of the International Association of Machinists.

"The trade unions of Canada and the U.S. are being made the victims of governmental policies which seek to prevent workers from getting the wage increases they deserve while prices, profits, dividends, rent and interest are permitted to rise regardless of the consequences to the people.

"We have declared in Canada in no uncertain terms that the trade unions will not tolerate the imposition of wage guidelines. It is our impression that they are no more welcome among American trade unionists than they are in Canada. I am glad of this.

"It is one thing to have an incomes

Canadian Taxes Raised

Taxes have been raised in Canada aimed at eliminating a projected $840 million deficit in fiscal 1970, and to balance the budget next year.

The main points in this highly unusual budget change are: (1) a two percent surcharge on personal income taxes, and (2) a second speed-up of corporate income tax payments. The overall purpose of the budget measures is to hold back the fast pace of price rises in Canada.

policy which provides an equitable distribution of the income generated in the economy. It is another to single out wage and salary earners."

New union structures were needed because old trades were vanishing and new ones coming into being. "It is no longer possible to think in terms of my own trade, my own industry, my own union. . . . The jurisdictional lines which are so precious to every union become increasingly tenuous because it is almost impossible to define a jurisdiction as to clearly mark it off from another."

Such a structural breakthrough "would have a profound effect in increasing the proportion of organized workers in the labour force."

Mr. MacDonald added:

"It is only by raising the standard of living of all the people in this country that we can raise our own successfully."

Number of Negro Apprentices Up Sharply

Apprentice Outreach Programs are given a big share of the credit for the doubling of the number of Negroes participating in apprenticeships in the past 18 months.

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz said an estimated 8,100 Negroes are currently in apprenticeship programs registered with the Labor Department or states apprenticeship agencies.

The Outreach programs are currently being conducted in 44 industrial areas by manpower and social action agencies in conjunction with the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Councils.

The number of Negroes entering apprenticeship has risen dramatically in the past two years, Wirtz said. About 1,800 were enrolled in 1966 and more than 2,630 in 1967. In the first six months of 1968 more than 1,400 were registered, he added.

The Workers Defense League, the Urban League's LEAP program and other minority organizations working with the AFL-CIO councils, have placed more than 1,650 Negroes in apprenticeships, the Labor Department said.

EEO-2 Filing Deadline Passed

This year's deadline for filing Apprenticeship Information Report EEO-2 has passed, reports the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Apprenticeship Information Report EEO-2 is required to be filed by all joint labor-management apprenticeship committees which have (a) five or more apprentices in the entire program, and (b) at least one employer sponsor which has 25 or more employees, and (c) at least one local union sponsor which operates a hiring hall or which has 25 or more members.

Our Stars and Stripes Flag Says: "Do You Remember Me?"

Hello, remember me? Some people call me Old Glory, others call me the Stars and Stripes; also, I have been referred to as the Star Spangled Banner. But, whatever they call me, I am your flag or as I proudly state, the flag of the United States of America. There is something that has been bothering me, so I thought that I might talk it over with you, because it is about you and me.

I remember sometime ago—I think it was Memorial Day—people were lined up on both sides of the street to watch the parade. The town's high school band was behind me and naturally I was leading the parade. When your daddy saw me coming along waving in the breeze, he immediately removed his hat and placed it against his left shoulder so that this hand was directly over his heart. Remember?

And you—I remember you. Standing there as straight as a soldier, you didn't have any hat but you were giving the right salute. They taught you in school to place your hand over your heart. Remember little sister—not to be outdone, she was saluting the same as you. I was very proud as I came down your street. There were some soldiers home on leave and they were standing at attention giving the military salute. Ladies as well as men all paying me the reverence that I deserve.

Now, I may sound as if I am a little conceited. Well, I am. I have a right to be. Because I represent the finest country in the world, the United States of America. More than one aggressive nation has tried to haul me down but they all felt the fury of this freedom-loving country. You know. You had to go overseas and defend me.

What happened? I'm still the same old flag. Oh, I have a couple more stars added since you were a boy. A lot more blood has been shed since the Memorial Day so long ago. Dad is gone now. The old home town has a new look. The last time I came down your street, I saw that some of the old landmarks were gone, but in their place, shining majestically in the sun, were a number of new buildings and homes. Yes sir, the old town sure has changed.

But now, I don't feel as proud as I used to. When I come down your street, you just stand there with your hands in your pockets and give me a small glance and then look away. When I think of all the places I've been, Anzio, Guadalcanal, Korea—and now Vietnam. Then I see the children running around and shouting. They don't seem to know who I am. I saw one old man take his hat off and then look around. He didn't see anybody else with theirs off so he quickly put his back on.

Is it a sin to be patriotic anymore? Have you forgotten what I stand for? Have you forgotten all the battlefields where men fought and died to keep this nation free? When you salute me, you are actually saluting them.

Take a look at the Memorial Honor Rolls sometime. Look at the names of those that never came back. Some of them were friends or relatives of yours, probably went to the same school with them. That's what you are saluting not me.

Well, it won't be long until I'll be coming down your street again. So, when you see me, stand straight, place your hand over your heart and you'll really see me waving back—my salute to you. And I'll know that you remembered.

STATE CREDIT LAWS ARE

Want to buy a dime for a quarter?—or maybe peel off a ten dollar bill for a five?

It's not as ridiculous as it sounds. One of the most expensive items in your budget might very well be the cost of money. This is true if you've borrowed money to pay debts or if you are buying anything on a payment plan.

Watching color television or driving a new car now on money you expect to earn in the future is costly and often dangerous, even though many say that such is now "the American way of life."

It's particularly dangerous in certain states. Miss a payment and you may find that your television set is repossessed and you still owe plenty for it.

Miss another payment and your boss may get a court notice to start taking the money out of your salary. If he doesn't want to be bothered doing this, you could be fired.

The next step could be the federal bankruptcy court. Thousands of working people make the trip every year.

One such state where this is possible is Ohio, which not incidentally, has the unwanted distinction of being second in the nation in total number of bankruptcies recorded. Ohio recorded 16,979 such tragedies in that year, and the number rose to 19,254 last year. Impartial bankruptcy referees say most of these failures are due to the state's harsh garnishment law.

In Ohio, these people—most of them working people—watch as their assets are divided among their creditors. They come out of bankruptcy free of debt and with the things they are allowed by law to keep—personal clothing, $500 worth of tools or equipment necessary to their livelihood, 80 percent of their income during the preceding 30 days, and up to $1,000 interest in their home.

And they find that they are immediately targets for the loan sharks and the "easy credit" salesmen again. Under law citizens cannot resort to bankruptcy to remove them from crushing debt for at least another six years.

It's a vicious circle and its victims are workers, people trying to get started in life, people with small incomes and big obligations, people easily victimized by the glib high-pressure, easy credit advertising of certain merchants and loan companies.

The average bankrupt consumer in Ohio is male, white, 30 and has three children. He's a blue collar worker with a tenth-grade education and a salary of around $100 a week.

Unjust Garnishment Laws

In Ohio, however, the garnishment law is being eased, thanks in great part to a long battle by the state AFL-CIO. But garnishments can still leave a family without enough money to exist and force them into bankruptcy.

Under the new Ohio law, a debtor who is head of a household can keep at least 30 percent of his weekly pay for food and other necessities. Only one garnishment is allowed in any 30-day period and the debtor must be given 15-day notice of garnishment.

In some states, no garnishments are now permitted

STACKED AGAINST CONSUMER

The Cognovit Note

Another step on the road to bankruptcy is the cognovit note. Signing such a note is pleading guilty in advance. The holder of the note can go to court and order the garnishment of wages. Organized labor has tried without success to outlaw such notes in Ohio.

It is particularly bad there because merchants sell the notes at a discount to banks, loan firms, or loan sharks.

The purchaser is left with protection if the merchandise he has purchased is faulty or breaks down. The washing machine doesn't wash, but the purchaser has to come clean on the payments.

The bank or credit firm that bought the note can honestly say it didn't sell the merchandise and is not responsible for it. The merchant, who already has his money, couldn't care less.

Methods of repossession often border on burglary. In one case, a federal judge recently threatened to jail a loan company representative who had gone into a home and taken a television set after the debtor had filed bankruptcy. The set at the time was actually the property of the court.

The working of consumer credit laws in such states has led one newspaper to refer to them as a "credit manager's paradise."

One of the problems is that credit is extended to many people who are poor credit risks. If they don't pay, their employers can be forced to take it from their salary. The seller protects himself further by charging inflated prices for his goods and by charging credit rates that border on thievery. State usury laws are sometimes sidestepped by charging a "finder's fee" and other such add-ons. And even if a lender is found guilty of violating the usury act, there is no criminal violation. The borrower, poorly versed in the law, is expected to take his own steps to recover his money in a civil court action.

Although credit buying has done a lot to develop the American economy, current abuses of the system threaten to bring the economy crashing down.

The bankrupt consumer is punished by more than just an empty pocketbook. He often finds himself and his family degraded and morally beaten. He is in a hole from which he may never climb out.

'Truth Day' coming July 1

A federal Truth-In-Lending Law becomes effective July 1, 1969. From that day on lenders and credit merchants will have to disclose the true rate of interest on installment loans and sales—a rate that runs from nine per cent up to 36 per cent on most credit deals.

The interest rate will be called the "annual percentage rate." The law will apply to retailers, banks, personal loan companies, finance companies, credit card plans, credit unions, and all other lenders.

In mortgage loans the lender must reveal the true interest rate including all one-time charges such as payment of "points" and discounts.

In loans involving a lien on property, the borrower will have three business days to cancel any contract signed. If the contract is cancelled, the lender must refund any down payment completely. He must pick up his merchandise within 10 days or forfeit all claim to it.

The "cooling off period" is expected to be a major protection against the fast-talking home-improvement salesmen.

Bait advertising promising specific low down payments or low installments will be banned. The advertiser must tell all: the annual rate of charges and the billing method. Not banned are such phrases as "easy credit terms," "pay nothing for two months," or "low bank rates."

The law does not mention cognovit notes, but a section that becomes effective July 1, 1970 applies to garnishment.

The first 75 percent of a debtor's take-home pay will be exempt from garnishment. Creditors can take nothing if the take-home pay is less than $48 a week. An employer will not be able to fire a worker the first time his pay is garnisheed.

The law has been eight years in the making and is a giant step in consumer protection. The magazine "Consumer Reports" adds these warnings:

"No amount of information will be enough to help millions of consumers escape the toils of endless debt and the total impoverishment, harassment by creditors, despair, disgrace and personal bankruptcy attending it.

"Most of these consumers are counted among the poor and uneducated. They are preyed upon by a certain class of credit merchants who beckon day and night from their slum stores with television sets, furniture, clothing and jewelry on easy terms of only a few dollars a week."

Rulings on Airlines' Marriage, Age Bias May Affect Others

Airlines have been told firmly that they are violating the Civil Rights Act if they fire or ground stewardesses because they marry or pass an arbitrary age limit set by the company.

The historic twin rulings upholding union contentions were issued by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the agency which interprets and seeks compliance with the federal ban on job discrimination based on race, religion, national origin—and sex.

The rulings may, in time, hold meaning for workmen and employers in other industries. The decisions might be applied to a wide range of instances involving layoffs due to age, and to job restrictions—even in the construction trades—where “all-male” workmen have long been the established, if unwritten, rule.

Charges against American Airlines had been brought by Stewardesses Local 550 of the Transport Workers and union officers hailed the EEOC rulings as a “tremendous victory” after years of battling sex discrimination in the airline industry.

Immediately on the heels of the rulings, American Airlines agreed to drop all contract language limiting the job rights of its women flight attendants and came to terms with TWU after 10 months of deadlocked negotiations.

The Air Lines Pilots also hailed the decisions as upholding the rights of members in ALPA's stewards and stewardesses division. More than 20 grievance cases involving marriage and a number concerning age are pending, the division said. ALPA represents several thousand stewardesses on other major U. S. lines.

The EEOC ruling that American Airlines violated the law came in separate decisions. The commission held that TWU members June Dodd of New York and Christiana J. Neal of El Segundo, Calif., lost their jobs for reasons based only on their sex.

Miss Dodd was fired by the airline May 30, 1966, because she refused to accept a transfer to a non-flying job after reaching age 33. Miss Neal was dismissed June 30, 1966, because of a company rule that stewardesses who marry forfeit their job in a plane crew.

The Dodd ruling brought an agreement that some 65 stewardesses who were fired because of age since July 1, 1965, will be recalled with full seniority to a job at an American Airlines base of their choice. The Neal ruling settled a dispute over whether 250 married stewardesses, recalled earlier this year, are entitled to back pay. The EEOC decision made it clear that they are.

The union filed charges in two specific cases based on an EEOC decision of last Feb. 24 that sex is not a bona fide occupational qualification for the position of flight cabinet attendant “because the basic duties of the job could be satisfactorily performed by members of both sexes.”

The commission said it will issue individual decisions in pending charge cases like the two just disposed of.

EEOC said that Miss Dodd became an American Airlines stewardess Feb. 1, 1956 and had an “excellent work record.” On May 27, 1964 management notified her she would have to accept reassignment to a ground job or be terminated at 33. She was offered several such jobs at higher pay but refused them, and was terminated on her 33rd birthday.

The commission rejected the claim of the Air Transport Association, Inc., and individual airlines that, if all incumbents in a job classification are members of one sex, any conditions of employment relating to that job cannot be based on sex. Noting the difference in treatment of male employees, the commission said the company's maximum age restriction for stewardesses is based on sex and thereby violates the law.

Social Security for Young Workers, Too

Today's young workers can look forward to getting social security retirement benefits worth considerably more than the total they will pay into social security toward that retirement protection.

In addition, they have survivors and disability insurance under social security that may mean as much as $75,000 to $100,000 in payments to an individual family, should the worker die or become disabled for work before retirement.

Erroneous calculations continue to circulate, purporting to show that a young worker will not get his money's worth for his social security contributions. The facts show just the opposite.

Even the group of young workers who will be paying into social security for an entire working lifetime, under the schedule of contributions now in the law, will get social security retirement benefits worth at least 15 to 20 percent more than their own contributions toward those benefits, and that includes an allowance for the interest the contributions might have earned.

And it is a practical certainty that they will get a return even higher than that. As wage levels continue to rise, income to the system increases at a faster rate than corresponding benefit liabilities. Benefits can therefore be raised without increasing the contribution rates.

The value of your social security protection grows as the economy grows, unlike the usual private insurance contract which promises a fixed amount of money in return for a specified premium. So while a look at the schedule of benefits and contributions in today's law assures the young worker that social security is a good investment, he can look forward to an even greater appreciation in its value.

This is true not just of his prospective retirement benefits, but also of his survivors and disability protection. Specifically, the family of a young man who dies or becomes disabled will get benefits worth many times the value of his social security contributions.

Failure to Enact Construction Bill Rapped by Labor Department

"What had begun as a year of great promise for saving lives and preventing work accidents will end in a disgraceful disregard for life and limb of the American worker unless a legislative miracle is performed," Assistant Secretary of Labor Esther Peterson has declared.

Speaking before the National Association of Women in Construction meeting in Washington, D.C., Mrs. Peterson cited the failure of the House of Representatives to enact the Construction Safety bill as "one more indication that the private pressure groups are the privileged members of our society, while the people's welfare comes in a weak second."

The House recently failed to muster the two-thirds vote needed to suspend the rules and pass the Construction Safety bill.

Mrs. Peterson said that she found "incredible" the failure of Congress to act favorably on the Construction Safety bill.

"The construction industry has the second highest incidence of disabling and fatal accidents—second only to mining," she said. "Yet the construction industry is the only major industry in the country which has no federal standards for safety on government contracts."

"Once again the special interests have won out," the Labor Department official said. "On the job safety places a poor second to the powerful private interests who stand rigidly opposed to the effective measures necessary to reduce the tragically high rate of deaths and disabling injuries in the workplace."

Mrs. Peterson mentioned the Occupational Safety and Health bill as the other of "two excellent bills . . . before the Congress designed to make the workplace a safe and healthful place for America's workers."

"The Occupational Safety and Health bill was designed to establish enforceable health and safety standards on the job throughout industry and provide research and factfinding in the cause and prevention of occupational health hazards."

"The more modest Construction Safety bill was designed to promote health and safety in the building trades and construction industry in all Federal and federally financed or assisted construction projects."

Mrs. Peterson said that the Occupational Safety and Health bill "has long been bogged down in the legislative process due to the extreme pressures against it by the special interest groups."

Unusual Anniversary Celebration

A highly unusual wedding anniversary was celebrated during the recent Illinois State Council Convention by Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Hooker. Brother Hooker, shown here with his "bride" of 27 years, is a business representative of Local 74, Chicago. In the center is Father Joseph Donahue, who played an important role in the unique celebration. He is Brother Hooker's godfather, performed the wedding ceremony, and also baptized all four Hooker children. Father Donahue is also a lather and member of Local 74. We join many others in offering congratulations to this couple.

Wage Chiseling Increases

American employers continue to underpay their workers at an $80 million-a-year clip, according to the latest Labor Department reports.

Despite a stepped-up program of inspection and education, department staff made no dent in the steadily climbing volume of wage chiseling, deliberate and otherwise, from the pay envelopes of workers whose income is supposed to be protected by U.S. laws governing minimum hourly rates, overtime, equal pay for equal work and public service contracts.

For the year ended last June 20, department reports show that inspectors visited 75,022 business establishments—the largest number ever—and found more than 17 percent of the 2.4 million employees had been underpaid in violation of wage-hour laws.

They uncovered underpayments totaling $80,009,717—a figure exceeded only in one year of the last 13—1966, when heavy overtime wage law violations were uncovered in the oil industry.

The $80 million represented the amount of wages illegally withheld from the pay of 421,916 workers, divided as follows: 169,344 who were paid less than the minimum wages set by the Fair Labor Standards Act—the major wage-hour law; 296,037 who got less overtime than they were entitled to; 11,987 who were not paid the prevailing wages set by the McNamara-O'Hara Service Contracts Act, and 6,622 entitled to higher pay under a 1963 law barring wage discrimination because of sex.

'Winterized' Building Study Undertaken

Seasonal fluctuations in construction employment may be on its way out of existence as the result of action taken by the 90th Congress in its closing days.

President C. J. Haggerty of the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Department made that observation in hailing passage of legislation calling for a study of the problem and recommendations toward solving it.

He pointed out that while it's "only a start toward doing something about a national problem requiring a national solution," it is a start that building trades unions have been seeking for some time.

In testimony before Congress earlier this year, Haggerty said the pattern of sharp layoffs in construction in the fall and winter is as old as the weather—and though supposedly based on it—occurs in both cold and warm climates.

The "unnecessary" fluctuations, he added, result from "obsolete" building codes and government planning that makes money available for construction only in summer months.

Elimination of the fluctuations, he said, would bring "more efficient use of skilled manpower" and also "reduce the cost of construction . . . to the great benefit of all our people."

The study of "seasonality in the construction industry," as an amendment to a bill extending the Manpower Development & Training Act of 1962, would be made by the Secretary of Labor, Secretary of Commerce, and representatives of several federal agencies.

It would also seek resolution of technical problems, changes in procedures of allocating of government contracts and improved planning and scheduling of projects. A report and recommendations would be submitted to the President and Congress by Dec. 31, 1969.

Chief sponsors of the legislation were Rep. James G. O'Hara (D-Mich.): Senators Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) and Winston L. Prouty (R-Vt.).

National Portrait Gallery Short On 'Faces of the Working People'

The Smithsonian Institution has just recently opened another building in its extensive complex of museums. The National Portrait Gallery, located in downtown Washington, D. C., is "devoted exclusively to the faces of America." According to the Smithsonian, the new gallery is "a unique way to view American history through the faces of its famous men and women as politicians, civic leaders, scientists, industrialists and idols.

The new museum does not, however, fully reflect the faces of labor which have contributed so greatly to America's rich heritage.

The museum's first show includes only the sculpted busts of two union leaders, Samuel Gompers and Eugene Debs. Missing are the many other outstanding faces of labor that have left their mark in United States history.

Also, the faces shown in the National Portrait Gallery do not always reflect the subject's most pleasing or favorable pose.

Samuel Gompers, founding president of the American Federation of Labor, is classified as one of America's "altruists." But the larger-than-life marble bust done by Moses Dykarr makes Gompers look more like a tough negotiator about to do battle with management.

The bronze Debs bust by Louis Mayer is classified under "Rebels and Nonconformists." It is an impressive work, with Debs as the thin and gaunt man who served a term in Federal prison for his opposition to World War I.

All the portraits must have been done from life to win a place in the new gallery. Photographs and drawings are included, too.

The collection is housed in one of Washington's oldest buildings. The Patent Office was completed in 1840 and during its history has served as an office building, a civil war hospital and morgue, and in 1865, it was the scene of Lincoln's second Inaugural Ball.

The building's high, vaulted, masonry ceilings will impress any visiting craftsman.

There's a portrait here to interest every union man and woman. If you're an autoworker, you'll appreciate the thin, sharp and acquisitive face of Henry Ford. Newspapermen will grin at the pompous portrait of William Randolph Hearst, with its luxurious background and pretentious pose.

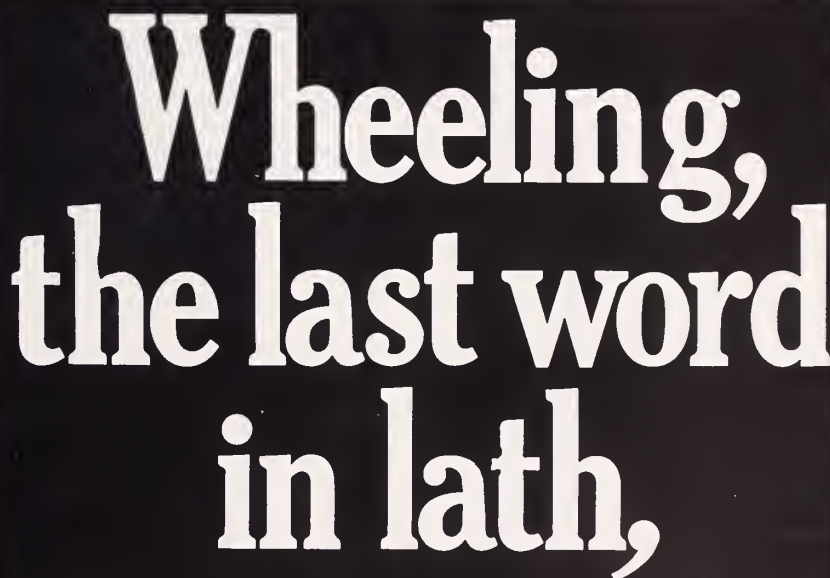

Cornelius Vanderbilt was almost illiterate, but started his dynasty with a $100 million legacy. He had himself done in pure white marble looking like a Roman lord.

The "good guys" are there, too. All the Presidents of the United States; the sarcastic journalist H. L. Mencken, painted in a cynical pose with the light of a dreamer in his eyes: Edison as the inventor; Paul Revere with the tools of his trade; Clara Barton and Jane Addams.

If there are complaints about the opening show, it is about the portraits left out—there are only twelve women in the exhibit and the featured one is Harlow. There are a very few ordinary people or working people shown. It is mostly a picture of middle-class and wealthy America, probably because these are the people who have their portraits painted.

But with the use of more photographs and additional donations from organizations, the gallery will probably reflect the not-so-affluent face of this nation, too.

High School Diploma—A Wise Investment

Larry, 18, is from a small town. He will earn just over $246,000 in his lifetime. Johnny, 18, is from a big city. He can expect to earn more than $340,000 over his lifetime.

This vast difference in their expected lifetime earning power—$94,000—has little to do with Johnny coming from a big city and Larry coming from a small town.

Johnny is a high school graduate. Larry dropped out of school in the ninth grade. That puts a 38 percent gap between the lifetime earning expectations of the two.

A high school diploma is much more than a piece of paper. It's a key to greater success. The further a person goes in school, the wider becomes the gap separating him from those who drop out.

The graduate can expect better jobs—more rewarding jobs with a future, that lead toward a more satisfying life, with many intangible social and cultural advantages.

The dropout, however, can look forward to dreary, menial, low-paying jobs. He can expect long periods of unemployment, often no jobs at all.

This year, 800,000 youngsters will drop out of school. Many will join the two million 16 to 21 year olds in the labor force who have not graduated from high school.

If this trend continues, our Nation will have in the work force by 1975 more than 23 million persons over the age of 26 who lack a high school education. This is an especially grim prospect in view of the fact that tomorrow's jobs will demand an even higher measure of education and skill.

To insure that our young people are equipped for the responsibilities of tomorrow, the President's Council on Youth Opportunity has launched the 1968 Stay-in-School Campaign. The success of this program hinges on the wholehearted support of this community and of every community across the Nation.

If you know someone who is thinking of dropping out, help him stay in school. It's the best investment any of us can make in our future.

Unions' Labor Education Schools Seek to Involve Younger Members

Two union-sponsored projects to involve younger members more directly in the labor movement's operations and activities have produced encouraging results, the AFL-CIO's director of education reported in a network radio interview.

Student reaction at a series of 10 labor education schools held exclusively for younger trade unionists around the country shows they are "hungry for knowledge" about the labor movement and "anxious to join in its role" as a socially progressive force, said Walter G. Davis.

The sole criterion for enrollment in the projects was age, Davis said, with 30, the ceiling. Local unions and central bodies were asked only to send "young people who should show an interest in the local union," he added.

Response from both unions and members was good, Davis said; "We had to turn down prospective students for every school." Davis appeared on Labor News Conference, an AFL-CIO produced public affairs program broadcast Tuesdays at 7:35 p.m., EST, on the Mutual Radio Network.

The union educator said the pilot programs were shaped in light of a recent study indicating a rapidly-growing proportion of younger union members in the United States, and another showing that textbook and other classroom treatment often leaves high school graduates with many "misconceptions" of what the labor movement is all about.

Davis said that while there was some apprehension that such efforts might draw resistance from older union leaders, such fears proved baseless.

"We have been encouraged by business agents and other leaders of the unions," he said. They have cooperated by recruiting students and by setting up committees and other local activities to keep the younger workers involved with the union after they have completed the course, he reported.

The aim, he emphasized, is to give young members a better background in labor's history and goals and keep them active in the union movement at the local level.

Reporters questioning Davis were Sam Sharkey, labor specialist for the Newhouse Newspapers, and Murray Seeger, Washington correspondent for the Los Angeles Times.

It's nice to have enough money to retire on.

It's also nice to be around when it's time to retire.

You want to save a nest egg to retire on? Fine. All we suggest is that you be here to enjoy it. What to do? See your doctor for a thorough health checkup once a year, including a procto. And for women, also a Pap test. In short, the works.

Because most cancers are curable if spotted in time. But your doctor won't be able to spot anything—unless you give him the chance.

If you do, you'll improve your chances of enjoying your retirement. To a ripe old age.

THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL

1903 Lathers-Carpenters Pact Held Valid

The following information has been sent to all affiliates of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union by General President Sal Maso.

November 26, 1968

To: All Local Unions, District, State and Provincial Councils

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The following letter was received in this office November 22, 1968, from the Building and Construction Trades Department, which is self-explanatory. The position of the Carpenters, in this matter, was presented by General President M. A. Hutcheson.

The position of the Lathers was presented by your General President.

November 21, 1968

"Mr. Sal Maso
General President
Wood, Wire and Metal
Lathers International Union
6530 New Hampshire Avenue
Takoma Park, Maryland 20012

Dear Sir and Brother:

The Executive Council of the Building and Construction Trades Department meeting at the Hamilton Hotel, Washington, D. C., on November 20, 1968, took the following action with respect to the request of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America in connection with the 1903 agreement on page 17 of the green book:

'The Executive Council considered the evidence regarding the request of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America to expunge the 1903 agreement between the Carpenters and Lathers from the green book and voted not to grant the request at this time.'

With best wishes, I am

Fraternally yours
/s/ Frank Bonadio
Frank Bonadio
Secretary-Treasurer"

Unions Win Praise for Outstanding Fiscal Report

Annual fiscal reports of unions have won the praise of the nation's leading accountants. Moreover, some reports have been termed model documents after which corporations could pattern their own reports.

Writing in the monthly Management Accounting magazine, Paul W. Demarest said, "corporate accountants could take a lesson from the biennial report of the AFL-CIO."

Conversely, "inconsistencies and inadequacies of corporate annual reports" have been frequently mentioned in accounting circles, he notes. Demarest is an accountant with Fruehauf Corp.

The annual reports of unions, Demarest noted, are filed with the secretary of labor within 90 days after the end of each fiscal year. Any union member may obtain copies of annual reports of his union or any other union on request.

The fiscal documents filed with the Labor Department include:

- Annual receipts listed by source, such as dues, fines, work permits.
- All disbursements — including salaries and other expenses listed by name and total amount for each officer and other employees receiving $10,000 or more per year.
- Loans to officers over $250, listing name, security given and purpose of loan.
- Loans to any business with full details.
- Assets and liabilities detailed to current, fixed and separated categories as cash, land and other holdings.

The government reports are supplemented by internal reports stipulated by each union's charter, Demarest points out. Monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, annual and biennial financial statements are prepared at local, national and headquarters offices of each union group.

Audits also are made semi-annually by certified public accounting firms and these reports are available to members.

Demarest says that the union member can be confident that, with rare exception, the financial transactions of his union are handled in an ethical manner and to his advantage.

In an intense analysis of the 1965 AFL-CIO biennial report, Demarest said "this imposing document contains 326 pages of highly informative material."

He also refers to a section of the report which corporation accountants often omit under similar circumstances:

"AFL-CIO auditors during the period July 1, 1963 through June 30, 1965 found that two local unions were guilty of financial irregularities . . . the bonding company was notified . . . the officers responsible were immediately removed from office . . . immediate recovery was obtained . . ."

"Such precise detail of action taken to protect interested parties is seldom part of the typical corporate statement, where similar unfortunate events do occur," Demarest observed.

Local 564 Is Chartered

Three Washington Lathers Win Craftsmanship Awards

Craftsmanship is very much alive and living in the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area as evidenced by the awards to be presented by the Washington Building Congress to area artisans.

In the belief that superior work should be formally acknowledged, the Washington Building Congress presented Craftsmanship Awards to 19 individual tradesmen and nine awards to tradesmen performing as a working team.

Singled out for honors were three Lathers, members of Local 9 in Washington, D. C.

Richard F. Brown, Sr. was given the coveted award for "Outstanding lathing work" in which he "exhibited great skill and craftsmanship in holding all work to the tight tolerance required," while working on the Morris & Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation and executive offices of the Cafritz Company. Brown, who has earned the award previously, performed the work in the employ of Bruce Brown, Inc. Cafritz Construction Co. was the general contractor, and Maria Bergson Associates of New York was the architect.

Charles E. King earned the Craftsmanship Award for work at the National Presbyterian Church (as reported in a previous issue of The Lather). It was noted that "Lathing work of the main ceiling sanctuary (was) exceptional. Job (was) most unusual in many respects and well performed." King works for Rubino & Farris of Washington, who held the lathing and plastering contract on the church. Charles H. Tompkins Co. was general contractor on the job, and Harold E. Wagoner of Philadelphia was the architect.

R. Howard Smith, Local 9 Lather, and Paul Kieffer, Jr., plasterer were given a team award for their work on the National Geographic Society Membership Operations Building in Gaithersburg, Maryland. In making the presentation, it was noted that "Installation of metal lath and application of acoustic plaster was exceptional. Lath work required extremely close tolerances and application of acoustic plaster accomplished over a large area with no indication of waving or rolling. The pair are employed by R. Floyd Jennings & Son.

Charles H. Tompkins Co. was general contractor, and Mills, Petticord & Mills was the architect.

The craftsmen received recognition at an awards banquet November 15.

Award is presented to Lather Charles E. King, center, by WBC President Anderson. William Farris of Rubino & Farris, King's employer, is at right.

Illegally Fired Workers Get $281,469

...and more back pay is on the way!

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in back wages are now being paid to workers illegally fired by J. P. Stevens & Co. Checks totalling $281,469 have been collected by 32 of the first 71 workers fired and these represent less than half of the payments to be made. When all settlement checks have been received it is estimated that the final sum may cost Stevens more than $1 million.

This sum, representing settlements in only the first of five decisions against J. P. Stevens, will climb substantially higher when back pay involving another 39 of the first group fired and yet another 40 illegally fired workers is collected.

Of the total paid to date, $174,696 went to 16 workers in South Carolina and the other $105,773 was collected by 16 of the 18 employees illegally fired in Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

Victory came for the workers after a long court battle by Textile Workers Union of America and the NLRB to force the company's compliance with a labor board ruling that Stevens had violated the law by firing the workers for engaging in union activities. An appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court by the company to upset the NLRB ruling against the firm failed when the high court refused to review the case.

The checks ranged from $4,960 to $18,022 and include the amount of wages and fringe benefits that the workers would have earned at the company, less the amount earned on jobs since they were illegally fired. Mrs. Virginia Sibley of Great Falls, S.C., received the $18,022 check on behalf of her late husband, William, who was fired in July 1963 after having worked 21 years as a card tender for Stevens.

Checks received by the illegally fired workers were for gross earnings before state and federal taxes and Social Security payments have been subtracted. For example, Horace Anderson of Piedmont, S.C., received $10,331.84 after taxes and deductions on a settlement of $14,704. He will, however, receive more after he files an amended income tax.

The nation's highest court refused to consider the company's appeal from a National Labor Relations Board finding that the Stevens firms had engaged in flagrantly illegal conduct to smash a union organizing drive in the Carolinas.

It was the second time within a year that the high court in effect upheld NLRB findings that the big textile chain—a major U.S. government contractor—engaged in “massive” unfair practices to punish and discourage employee activity on behalf of the Textile Workers Union of America.

In Stevens No. 2 case, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, New York City, had ordered enforcement of an NLRB finding 18 months ago that Stevens officials in North and South Carolina plants were guilty of:

- Firing employees for their union activity.
- Punching union supporters, spying on them, threatening them, discriminating against them and otherwise interfering with their right to engage in organizational activity.

The latest case involves 17 workers fired in 1964 for joining TWUA, and one employee fired for testifying as a government witness at an NLRB hearing. The NLRB, and the 2nd Circuit judges ordered Stevens to rehire the 18 workers, give them backpay for their wage losses and stop its terroristic drive to destroy their legal forces. That order now can be enforced.

In a similar case, called Stevens

No. 1, the Supreme Court previously let stand an order finding the giant chain guilty of illegally firing 71 other workers in 1963 and intimidating others to destroy any vestiges of union organization in 20 Carolina plants. Stevens complied with this latter order by offering reinstatement to 69 surviving victims.

In the wake of the latest Supreme Court action, the TWUA called on the National Labor Relations Board to institute contempt proceedings against the Stevens firm for its continuing violation of the law “in the face of court decisions directing the company to cease and desist from such actions.”

TWUA Pres. William Pollock told newsmen that “the normal processes of justice apparently have no effect on J. P. Stevens. What is apparently needed to bring this company to its senses are fines and imprisonment for contempt of court orders.”

Three other charges against the Stevens firm are pending on appeal. They grew out of the company's continuing union-smashing actions in the face of NLRB and court orders that it obey the law.

Stevens carried the first two Appeals Court rulings to the high court in challenges to the unusual remedies devised by the labor board to force the chain to stop breaking the law. In Stevens No. 2, the firm is now under these orders:

- Give union representatives for a one-year period “reasonable access” to all plant bulletin boards.
- Read the board's order to all its employees at meetings called during working hours.
- Mail a copy of the NLRB order to all employees in the company's Carolina plants, and post copies asserting that Stevens will obey the law and stop its illegal actions.

THE NEEDED FARM SHOWDOWN

Problems of agriculture and farm issues don't particularly fire up the urban, industrial worker.

Usually he wants good farm produce at reasonable prices and that's about it.

However, there is much more that concerns him about agriculture, directly affecting his pocketbook. The biggest of these is farm subsidies, the millions of dollars paid out to "farmers" to assure their fair rate of return.

What once was a good and necessary move to protect the small family farmer has become too often a grab on tax revenues by corporate, anti-labor empires in the South and Southwest.

It is now a loophole in the tax laws which provides bonanzas for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the 90th Congress, for example, it was proposed that a ceiling of $20,000 per farmer be paid under the farm subsidy program. It didn't get too far, but in the process, some interesting facts about subsidies came to light.

In 1967 a total of 9,952 individuals received more than $20,000 under the program. Their total bundle was $408,139,006.

What is of particular interest is that 8,778 farmers in 15 cotton states received $362,220,699 of the total paid out. The biggest payments went to farmers in Texas ($99,619,326), California ($67,633,575) Mississippi ($63,206,052), Arizona ($34,615,953) and Arkansas ($33,571,340).

These states and the other deep South states send to Washington some of the most ultra conservative members of Congress. They have consistently fought socially progressive legislation, measures to aid the decaying urban centers and to strengthen organized labor.

When the farm subsidy program was set up in the late 1930's it was designed to assist the small family farmer. Also, many members of Congress from urban areas supported the subsidy program because it was socially desirable. Also, many Congressmen with rural constituents, in turn, backed social legislation.

Now the whole pattern has been radically altered.

This new pattern was dramatized during the second session of the 90th Congress when the House Labor Subcommittee was debating a proposal to give the farm workers the benefits and rights under the National Labor Relations Act.

Rep. W. R. Poague (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, dominated by the cotton states' Representatives, passed a hurried resolution asking the House Labor Committee not to enact such legislation.

The Labor Subcommittee was furious. Chairman Frank Thompson, Jr. (D-N.J.) asked Poague to appear before his committee. The resulting confrontation summed up the entire problem.

Poague, representing the big farmers of his state which had the largest sum under the farm subsidy program, condemned the whole concept of farm unionism.

Thompson and committee members such as O'Hara and Ford of Michigan, Brademas of Indiana and Scheuer of New York laid into Poague. They reviewed the record of the House Agriculture Committee on social and economic legislation. All negative. Then they read the record of the House Labor Committee on farm subsidies. All positive.

The warning which was given to Poague was that if conservatives with an interest in agriculture persist in their reactionary stands the urban, liberal Democrats would stop supporting plush farm subsidies.

This threat has been made before but rarely carried out. However, if liberal Democrats from urban areas line up with Republicans from the Middle-East, Northeast and Northwest—who usually oppose farm subsidies—they could place a low ceiling on payments.

The original concept of farm parity was to determine what prices farmers would have to receive to enjoy the same relative purchasing power as during the same period when things were "fair."

This was designed for the small, family farmer. He still needs all of the support that our economy can afford. But in many states where a few empire-farmers receive more than the entire anti-poverty program some rethinking is in order.

Whatever the makeup of the 91st Congress, the time is ripe for action.

Anticipated Attacks on NLRB Begun

It appears that many of the campaign fears expressed prior to the recent general elections were justified. It was reported in the labor press that if conservatives scored a victory, there would be an attempt made to scuttle the National Labor Relations Board.

The anti-labor clamor for such a change is already being heard. A story carried in several national newspapers reported that Representative John M. Ashbrook (Republican of Ohio) says he and other Republican congressmen will ask President-Elect Richard Nixon to abolish the NLRB.

Ashbrook told the Allegheny County League of Women Voters recently that labor cases should be handled by the regular U.S. courts.

"The judges start with a body of law, but the NLRB starts with politics and ends with politics," Ashbrook said.

He further charged that "arrogant union leaders" must be curbed, and cited New York City as a "horrible example" of what happens when public officials give in to "excessive" labor demands.

"There are very few persons in public life with nerve enough to say anything adverse about organized labor," Ashbrook added.

Legislation was introduced in the Senate in the last session of Congress (S. 1353) which would abolish the NLRB, and replace it with a so-called "Labor Court" comprised of 15 judges serving 20-year terms.

Under this proposed law, nominations for the "Labor Court" would be passed on by the Senate Judiciary Committee, which has been and will remain in Southern Democrat-Conservative Republican leadership. The legislation, which may come up again in the 91st session of Congress, would be hand-tailored for "court packing" and could lead to year of turmoil and trouble for the labor movement.

What's in a Word?

'Accident' Is Meaningless Crutch

The English language needs a new word. One of the tried and true combinations of letters has lost its meaning.

The word "accident" has to go.

It means nothing.

If a man dies in a traffic crash, he died in an accident.

If a man dies after being shot by a friend and hunting companion, he died in an accident.

If a man falls off a ladder, trips over a roller skate on a stairway or swallows lye instead of stomach powder his death is listed as an "accident."

Every so-called "accident" has a cause, an unsafe act, an unsafe practice or an unnoticed hazard.

Last year more than 11,000 Canadian men, women and children died in what were officially listed as "accidents."

There was a cause for each of those deaths.

In nearly all of them, no, in EVERY one of them, someone was at fault. Some person made an error in judgment or a mistake. The link may be tenuous and unclear but some human being was responsible for those deaths.

That is stretching a point to an extreme but it's a point that demands stretching.

We have misused the word accident too long.

The word is used to describe something that was not done deliberately. It is used as a crutch and a cover-up. It helps us escape responsibility for carelessness, blindness or stupidity.

Throw the crutch away.

Find a new word.

Or better still use the right word or group of words.

Read through your daily newspaper. Count the number of times the word "accident" is used. Then count the number of times it could be replaced by some other word, or group of words.

A driver wasn't looking, a hunter didn't know the gun was loaded, a mother didn't think her baby could reach that bottle of pills...

Most "accidents" are carelessness, ignorance, stupidity or negligence.

It makes no difference to a dead man whether you say he died in a hunting "accident" or that he died because someone was careless.

He is dead.

No, it makes no difference to him.

But it can make a difference to the living. Awareness that "accidents" have causes could save lives.

Let's call a spade a spade.

When you hear the word "accident" think back to the cause, instead of hiding behind a meaningless word.

It could save a life.

ELDERLY LOSE $41.5 MILLION ANNUALLY IN DRUG NAME GAME

The nation's elderly would save at least $41.5 million a year if doctors prescribed drugs by generic (scientific) names instead of by manufacturers' brand names, a government report concluded.

A 139-page report of a Task Force on Prescription Drugs also found that the health needs of those over 65, compounded by the high cost of drugs, are "a medical and economic problem of major importance."

The task force, which has been studying the drug industry since May, 1967, was established under the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare through directive from Pres. Johnson.

The report entitled The Drug Users, is devoted not only to the cost of drugs used by the elderly but also to their ability to pay for them and their patterns of drug use.

The task force analyzed some 175 million prescriptions written for elderly persons in 1966, the last year for which pertinent data were available.

From these data it compiled a master list of 409 most-frequently used drugs.

Of the 409 drugs, the study found that 67 could have been obtained from more than one manufacturer—the rest being subject to patents or to other arrangements which in effect, fixed their prices.

"If these 67 had been dispensed as low-cost generic name products," the report said, "the savings at the retail level—providing the same mark-ups were set by the pharmacists—would be about $41.5 million, or 27.7 percent."

Still further savings could be achieved, the report indicated, if lists of drugs used by government and other health programs regularly included generic name products.

The study found that 10 drugs accounted for 20 percent of all the prescriptions surveyed and that eight of those were still protected by patents so that no generic equivalent was available.

The 10 included tolbutamide, for treatment of diabetes; chlorthalidone, a tranquilizer; chlorothiazide, a diuretic used in treating kidney and heart diseases; four types of pain killers and phenobarbital, a sedative.

All of these medicines are used by the elderly on a day-in day-out basis causing them to have "extraordinary expenses for drugs," the report said.

The problem is intensified, it added, because the needs for drugs among the elderly increases at the very time of life when their income declines.

The study reported that per capita expenditure for prescription drugs in fiscal 1965 for the elderly was $41.40, almost four times greater than the $12.77 figure for those under 65.

It also cited statistics which showed that among the elderly, women paid more for drugs than men and whites expanded far more on drugs than non-whites—"reflecting the greater affluence" of whites.

Craft Unions Stress Record on Prefabs

Union craftsmen "will build and man any project that American industry can design," a representative of the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Dept. told the annual Building Products Executives Conference in Washington, D.C., recently.

Speaking to more than 500 manufacturing executives in attendance, William J. McSorley, assistant to the president of the BCTD, also exploded "myths" that construction workers oppose progress in the building industry.

He cited a recent study, financed by the department, on prefabrication in the building industry, which found that in the long run prefabrication will open new opportunities to build-trades unions.

"We have never resisted prefabrication per se," McSorley said, pointing to the fact that union members currently are building structures in Washington that are more than 70 percent comprised of prefabricated parts.

Elsewhere, McSorley told how union members handle the machinery that makes possible the movement of prefabrications, and how they use and welcome many other new techniques, tools and materials in construction.

'We Condone Poverty'

The Cure: Not Charity But Fair Wages

"The Poverty We Condone" was the title of the following editorial published by the Globe and Mail on September 30, and later published in Canadian Labour, concerning the strike of 100 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers in Picton, Ontario.

Present basic pay rates at the struck Proctor-Silex plant in Picton are 93 cents an hour for women, $1.27 for men. (The company is offering a 6 per cent increase for women, bringing the base rate to 98.5 cents, plus an incentive offer that would bring the total rate to at least $1 an hour. The offer is 6 or 7 cents an hour for most of the men, with very few to receive the top increase of 15 cents.)

Despite the dramatics of helicopter delivery of strikebreakers, these are the facts that should capture the attention of Canadians. They paint a picture that, strike or no strike, is intolerable.

A man making $1.27 an hour would earn $2,641.60 a year. If he were married and had one child, that would put him $358.60 below what the Economic Council of Canada has figured is the point where bitter poverty begins. If he had two children, it would put him $958.40 below this point. A woman trying to support one child on her 93-cent an hour wage would be $565.60 a year below it.

The Council emphasized, moreover, that these startling points for poverty were very conservative: a more decent standard would see these people floundering further hundreds of dollars a year behind. But using even the more miserly of its definitions of poverty, it found that 4,200,000 Canadians, including 1,700,000 children, met its cruel requirements back in 1961.

The average Canadian does not need the Council to tell him that it is impossible for a family of three to live with anything remotely approaching dignity on $2,641.60 a year: his own budget tells him so. A family might do it without going hungry if it lived in a Newfoundland village where the fish were plentiful and free, but not in any of the built-up parts of Canada where most of our people live. Yet, as the Council pointed out with anger, more than a quarter of our non-farm population is forced to live in this appalling poverty. The Proctor-Silex rates are probably neither the best nor the worst: merely grimly representative.

What such figures spell out is that, if we are conscientiously to get down to the business of lifting large numbers of our fellow citizens out of poverty, it can't all be done by charity.

There are two kinds of poor people in Canada: those who are unable, for physical or mental reasons, to sustain themselves and must have their support in welfare; and a far larger group who struggle to sustain themselves—and in so doing must often live below the charity level. In 1965, one-fifth of all Canadian families had an average income of $2,263, while a family of four, giving up the effort to support itself and going on welfare, could collect at least $2,400.

Many special causes of poverty exist, but very important among them are unrealistically low minimum wage scales.

In Ontario the minimum wage is $1 an hour for men and women, except in the construction industry where it is $1.25 an hour. But there are many exceptions. Farm and domestic labour is, for instance, excluded from even this meagre protection. Companies are permitted to pay less, and use incentive payments to boost their workers past the minimum by requiring them, of course, to earn them by putting forth maximum effort.

Using the Economic Council's standard as a measure, Ontario's minimum wage rates are indefensible, and Ontario's Deputy Minister of Labour, Thomas Eberlee, has predicted an increase before the end of the year. But the hinted increase is only 25 cents an hour, which would leave the wages still out of touch with reality.

Ontario should have a minimum wage at present of $1.50 an hour, and it should apply to every worker. There should be no extra 25 cents an hour for construction workers, and no exemptions for any healthy workers, except perhaps for young students working in casual jobs for a limited number of days a year.

The war on poverty will bog down if it is viewed as only a matter of increasing government handouts. A greater part of it relates to ensuring that all workers are paid at least a decent minimum for their labour.

EEOC Amends Procedures on Discrimination Cases Deferred to State, Local Agencies

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has amended its regulations to simplify filing procedures for parties in states and localities where there are fair employment practice agencies to which the Commission defers in the initial handling of discrimination charges.

EEOC said the complexity of present procedures are often confusing to parties who file charges that are under the concurrent jurisdiction of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, which EEOC administers, and state or local law.

Following is a summary of amended regulations as it appeared in the Federal Register. The changes affect Title 29, Labor Chapter XIV, EEOC, Section 1601.12 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Because the amendments adopted are procedural in nature, the provisions of Section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. 1003, for public notice and delay in effective date are inapplicable. This amendment becomes effective November 6, 1968.

In order to give full weight to the policy of Section 706(b) of the Act (which affords state and local fair employment practice agencies an opportunity to resolve disputes involving alleged discrimination concurrently regulated by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and state or local law), the EEOC adopts the following procedures with respect to allegations of discrimination filed with the Commission where there is no evidence that such allegations were earlier presented to the state or local agency.

It is the experience of the Commission that because of the complexities of the present procedures, persons who seek the aid of the Commission are often confused and even risk loss of the protection of the Act. Accordingly, it is the intent of the Commission to simplify filing procedures for parties in deferral states and localities, and thereby avoid the accidental forfeiture of important federal rights.

The following procedures shall be followed with respect to cases arising in the localities to which the Commission defers:

Any document, whether or not verified, filed at any field office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or at Washington, D.C., which may constitute a charge cognizable under Title VII, shall be deferred to the appropriate state or local agency pursuant to the procedures set forth below.

1. All such documents shall be dated and time stamped on receipt.

2. A copy of the original document shall be transmitted by registered mail, return receipt requested, to the appropriate state or local agency.

3. The aggrieved party shall be notified, in writing, that the document which he sent to the Commission has been forwarded to the state or local agency, and that unless the Commission is notified to the contrary, on the termination of state or local proceedings, or after 60 days have passed, whichever comes first, the Commission will consider the charge to be filed with the Commission and commence processing the case.

4. The 60-day period shall be deemed to have commenced on the receipt of the document by the state or local agency as evidenced by the date indicated on the return receipt. On notification of termination of state proceedings or the expiration of 60 days, whichever comes first, the Commission will consider the charge to be filed with the Commission and commence processing the case.

5. In cases where the document is filed with the Commission more than 150 days following the alleged act of discrimination but less than 210 days therefrom, the case shall be deferred pursuant to procedures set forth above: Provided, however, that unless the Commission is earlier notified of the termination of the state or local proceeding, the Commission will consider the charge to be filed with the Commission on the 209th day following the alleged discrimination and will commence processing the case.

Construction Stability Set As Government Goal

President Johnson has called on all government departments and agencies to help reduce seasonality in construction in a move to lower costs and provide stable employment and incomes for construction workers.

As a major purchaser of the work of the construction industry, the President said in a memorandum, the government "has an indirect effect on fluctuations in construction activity. We in the federal government have a unique opportunity to help reduce seasonality in construction."

AFL-CIO President George Meany wired the President on behalf of the Federation and the Building & Construction Trades Dept. and its president, C. J. Haggerty, "warm thanks for your thoughtful and meaningful action."

More than any other single step yet taken, he said, "your memorandum can help solve the unnecessary and antiquated practice of construction seasonality that wastes literally millions of man-hours of productive work annually, forces trained workers to lose approximately 600 work hours a year, creates financial hardship for many of the 4 million workers in this industry, forcing them to draw unemployment compensation and, often, welfare payments."

The seasonality issue crystallized some years ago when the Building Trades Department President C. J.

Haggerty made a Labor Day message plea that the government act to ensure year-round construction work. Since then, there have been Congressional and Labor Department reports on what can be done to give construction workers the normal 2,000 hours of work annually instead of the 1,400 they now average because of weather work stops.

Haggerty in a recent speech also pointed out that other countries have licked or greatly improved the winter problem.

Heated concrete buildings enclosed in plastic that admits light and sunshine, improved materials that can be worked in cold weather, and a wide variety of technical innovations are now used in many northern countries, such as Scandinavia and the Soviet Union to keep construction going the year round. In addition, countries such as Canada give government subsidies to encourage building during their long and extremely cold winters.

President Johnson directed department and agency heads to notify the Bureau of the Budget by July 1, 1969, what steps had been taken to comply with the memorandum.

The President called on the agencies with responsibility for direct or indirect expenditure of construction funds to take seven specific steps toward achieving the goal of stable employment.

The steps outlined in the memorandum call for:

- Insuring that planning and programming of construction gives "due consideration" to reducing seasonal variation.
- Making contracts and scheduling projects with regard to local conditions.
- Encouraging completion dates and penalty clauses that facilitate the stretch-out of work into the off-season.
- Determining whether current appropriation and authorization procedures introduce a seasonal pattern into letting contracts and scheduling of construction.
- Encouraging the recipients of federal grants and loans for construction to reduce construction seasonality.
- Identifying and distributing information on techniques and procedures for facilitating year-round construction.
- Taking additional steps to promote scheduling of construction activity during off-season periods.

The President asked each department and agency to report to the director of the Bureau of the Budget for reports on steps taken to comply with the memorandum and directed the secretaries of Labor and Commerce to report to Congress by the end of 1969.

GE LOSES EMPLOYEE-FUND CONTROL

General Electric Co.'s attempt to operate an employee's mutual fund plan without the employee-investors having any voice in its administration has been blocked by a Securities & Exchange Commission hearing examiner.

GE's sole control of the fund was opposed by the Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers and three other unions.

The company had asked to be exempt from the Investment Company Act so it could appoint all five trustees of the fund and by-pass requirements which would assure the participants periodic information about the fund's operations.

The fund is part of GE's savings and security program for its employees.

If the ruling by SEC hearing examiner Sidney L. Feiler stands through a review by the full commission it will be the first time the SEC has denied an exemption sought by a company to requirements governing investment-savings funds for employees.

Feiler said that all hourly employees who participate in the fund pay a premium and run the financial risk of losing company contributions if they withdraw from the program within three years after enrollment.

Since the employee-investors run this risk, Feiler said the exemption for GE on the election of fund directors was not consistent with the protection of investors under a section of the act.

The annual election of directors places the control of the fund with the participants and makes it responsive to their wishes and judgment, Feiler noted.

The effort of GE to assure careful and successful operation of the fund is no substitute for the right of "employee-investors to have an effective voice in determining those matters themselves," he said.

But since the company makes a substantial contribution to the fund, Feiler said that it would be appropriate for GE to select two of the five trustees, with the other three elected annually by employee-investors.

Illinois City Enacts Scab Law

Danville, Illinois, has become the 98th municipality in the United States and the eighth in Illinois to enact a law banning the import and hiring of professional strikebreakers.

The ordinance, passed by the city council, makes it illegal to "recruit, procure, supply or refer" any person who customarily and repeatedly offers himself for employment to replace a worker involved in a labor dispute.

Social Security Benefits Increase Is Urged

The new Nixon Administration will have some major decisions to make on social security. And the outgoing Secretary of Health, Education & Welfare, Wilbur J. Cohen, is leaving behind some suggestions—and some policy questions to be resolved.

Speaking at a University of Michigan conference on social security, Cohen urged a general increase of 50 percent in benefits, including a $100-a-month minimum in social security payments.

"We may not be able to do this all at once," he commented, "but the first step should be a 15 percent across-the-board benefit increase, with an increase in the minimum monthly benefit to $70 for a single retired worker or widow and to $105 for a couple."

Cohen, a professor of social welfare administration at the university, has been on leave since 1961 to serve in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations.

He told the 90 social security experts from government, labor, business and education that Nixon—despite entering office while the opposition party controls Congress—will have "a unique opportunity to continue the progress that has been made" in the past eight years.

Cohen anticipates disputes over social security improvements.

"There will always be some people," he noted, "who say: 'It costs too much.' It adds to inflation.' 'It will bankrupt the country.' 'It will destroy thrift and private initiative.' 'It will take us down the road to socialism.'"

"We should know these arguments well by now. We have heard them for the past 30 years. But I don't think they'll stand up as well in the future, because we are gradually moving toward a society which wants greater economic and social justice."

Cohen suggested immediate action in three areas:

- Creation of a new mechanism to "keep the system up to date with rising wages and to make the benefits inflation-proof."

- Increase in the amount of earnings counted under social security, in stages up to $15,000," to make the program more effective for those who earn somewhat above the average as well as for average and below-average earners."

- Expanded medicare protections "against the heavy cost of prescription drugs."

The outgoing HEW secretary also listed several dozen questions on social security facing the Nixon Administration. Among them:

- Should medicare protection be extended to the disabled?

- Should some kind of health insurance be provided for young children of poor families?

- What should be the balance between social adequacy and individual equity in social security protection?

- How far should the program go in preventing and reducing poverty?

On the poverty question, Cohen pointed out that social security is already keeping 10 million Americans above the poverty line and that a $100 monthly minimum would lift 4.4 million more above it.
